Perez Terms Civil Rights Bills 'Vicious'

Says Governors, Or Legislators Could Be Jailed

WASHINGTON (Special) — Plaquemine Parish District Attorney Leander Perez said Friday the administration would gain the right to jail state governors, legislators and other officials if its civil rights bills pass.

He said the administration measures are "even more vicious" than he had imagined until he studied them closely.

Perez said before testifying at senate judiciary subcommittee hearings that one of the bills gives the U. S. attorney general power to start legal action against anyone who even writes a "communication" against a federal court order to integrate schools.

BOARD POWERS

Such a communication, he said, might even be a simple letter of a governor to the state legislature urging passage of laws to delay integration.

Or, he said, it could be the mere introduction of such a bill by a legislator.

He also noted that the bill could permit the attorney general to arrest school children under certain conditions.

Perez said the administration bill exempts school children from prosecution if they hinder integration on orders from school officials. But spontaneous picketing by the students, he said, should make them liable to arrest.

He added that the penalties included in the bills are a $10,000 fine or five years imprisonment, or both.

"That makes them a felony," he stated. "in many states a person convicted of a felony can no longer hold office."

At the hearing, Perez testified before Sen. Sam J. Erwin Jr., (D) N. C. another staunch defender of states rights, who presided in the absence of subcommittee chairman Thomas Hennings (D) Mo.

Much of Perez's testimony repeated charges made three weeks ago before a corresponding House committee that the 1954 desegregation decision of the supreme court "worsened race relations not only in the south but all over the country."

"The use of federal coercive power to force racial integration upon an unwilling free people can only result in tragic consequences," he said.

Reds Rebuff Peace Plan For Germany

Herter Keenly Disappointed At Soviet's Stand

GENEVA (UPI) — Russia attacked the western peace plan for a united Germany Friday as an "impossible" program that could drive the foreign ministers' conference into deadlock. It proposed instead a treaty to keep East Germany Communist and pull West Germany out of NATO as a neutral.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko left no doubt that the Western package plan on Berlin and reunification of Germany would be totally unacceptable, although he did not flatly reject it outright. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter was reported "keenly disappointed" at the Soviet stand. A U. S. spokesman said Gromyko was trying to make the division of Germany permanent.

DENOUNCES PLAN

Gromyko, who apparently conferred beforehand with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev on his strategy, denounced the Western package as "muddled," "utterly impossible" and calculated to "drive the conference into deadlock from the outset."

Gromyko made it clear that Russia was determined to fight for its own plan which includes turning

N.B. James Is Louisiana GOP Leader

James was taken into custody about 1:30 p.m. Friday when he voluntarily appeared in the U.S. Marshal's office here.

He was released on $2,000 bond set by U. S. Commissioner James M. Barton.

The banker was charged in a secret indictment returned by the grand jury Thursday. The indictment accuses James of embezzlement of furniture and fixtures belonging to the Farmerville bank which he formerly headed. The charge is a felony.

WEST MONROE

James reportedly acquired the furniture and fixtures from a West Monroe firm which went bankrupt and was forced to give the items to the bank.

James is charged with taking the items and putting them to his own use.

The indictment listed the value of the furniture and fixtures in "excess of $100."

True value, however, is reported to be several thousand dollars.

Federal indictments do not usually list the true value in embezzlement cases, but described the value as simply in excess of $100.

James has held high offices in the Louisiana Republican party for many years and is presently chairman of the GOP state central committee and a member of the GOP preparation committee.

In 1958 he resigned the position and established the James Security Company, a Farmerville loan Company which he serves as president.

He is also an officer in the First

GETS NO PROMISES

Long Asks U.S. Tax Probe Delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Earl Long said Friday Internal Revenue Service Agents made "no promises" on his request that they delay an investigation of his personal income "until the governor's race is over."

He said the agents were "courteous but made no promises." The tax troubles, he said, apparently stem from money he was supposed to have received in the fight against the right-to-work bill.

GIVES ANSWER

When asked how much he owes the government, Long said: :

"I would say about six bits. I'm liable to get more out of them than they get out of me."

Long brought his tax troubles into the open Wednesday night when he addressed a joint session of the fiscal Legislature.

The Internal Revenue Service, he said, investigated his income in 1939 and gave him a "clean bill of health" in the probe that lasted until 1952.

Capt. Douglas Durett of the Louisiana state police, one of aides while on the trip, said Long wanted the postponement because he is too busy with the Production By Industry Sets Record

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board said Friday the nation pulled still further out of the recession in April with industrial production rising to a record high.

The board's index of mine and factory output climbed two points to 149 per cent of the 1947-49 average on the strength of substantial increases in production of such durable goods as autos, TV sets and furniture. Steel production reached 93 per cent of capacity.

The index reached its previous high of 147 in March. At the depth of last year's recession it fell to 126.

"Economic activity continued to increase in April," the board said. "Industrial production rose further and housing starts remained at an exceptionally high level. Gains in employment were widespread and the decrease in unemployment was considerably more than seasonal."

It said consumer incomes and buying were at record levels. However, wholesale prices of industrial commodities continued to climb in April and early May, raising the prospect of further retail price hikes later.

In another report, the Commerce Department said corporations issuing public reports paid out 810 million dollars in dividends in April, a jump of 30 million dollars over the comparable month last year. Dividend payments for the first four months of 1959 totalled $3,870,000,000, up 2½ per cent over last year.

The government reported last Monday that unemployment dropped by 735,000 in April to 3,627,000, the lowest point since December, 1957. The number of persons holding jobs rose by 1,185,000 to a record April high of 65,012,000.

Solons Hand Mild Rebuke To President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower drew a mild rebuke from the House Appropriations Committee Friday. His Agriculture Department was accused of violating the law.

In a double-barreled action, the committee cut $142,199,365 from new farm funds for the fiscal year starting July 1 and made a token reduction of $270,000 in appropriations for some agencies operating under the Executive Office of the President.

But the committee approved the entire $10,255,500 which Eisenhower asked to run the office of the President, including one million dollars for the President's emergency fund. The committee said this should be used with the utmost restraint.

ADD RESTRICTIONS

The cut in agriculture funds leaves the department with $3,939,165,498 to finance its operations during the coming year, assuming the House ratifies the committee's action next week. Written into the money allotments were new restrictions on soil bank programs.

The President's emergency fund is one into which he may dip for unforeseen emergencies affecting national defense. The committee said the fund has been used on occasion "to initiate projects, committees and agencies which lend themselves to perpetuation long beyond the defensible pretext of emergency."

For other activities related to the executive office the committee approved $3,083,000. It cut $250,000 from funds requested for "management improvement and $20,000 from the subversive activities control budget.

While voicing disagreement in general with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson's policies, the committee directed its major barbs at the Commodity Credit Corporation's failure to offer more of its farm surpluses for sale on a competitive basis in world markets.

Mansfield Urges Foreign Aid Halt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called Friday for a halt to all economic and military aid grants within three years to end waste and corruption and head off a public revolt against the whole aid idea.

Outright grants, described as "give-aways" by critics of the program, account for about 75 per cent of the $3,900,000,000 in new foreign aid funds requested by President Eisenhower for the next fiscal year starting July 1.

Mansfield, a key member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said in a Senate speech that any foreign aid needs still existing after the three-year period should be met through repayable loans.

PLANS AMENDMENTS

The Montana Democrat also disclosed he will offer amendments to abolish the International Cooperation Administration, which now administers the aid program, and end what Mansfield called the outlays.

Mansfield said Congress either must come to grips with a "thorough-going reform" of the aid program this session or face a possible "tide of public reaction so

New Engine Runs On Any Kind Of Fat

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—A new internal combustion engine the French developer claims can burn any kind of liquid fat or oil was announced Friday at the International Petroleum Exposition.

It was described as so efficient it burns 20 per cent less fuel for a given output of power, gives 20 per cent more useful torque at a given speed and generates 20 per cent more horsepower.

The engine is said to be able to burn unrefined crude oil, whale oil, vegetable oil, kerosene, kitchen cooking oil or even hair dressing — without adjustment or change as the fuels are switched.

The announcement was by M. Paul Berliet, president of Automobiles M. Berliet, of Venisseux, France, near Lyon.

At present, Berliet said, the engine is designed for heavy military or industrial uses but holds promise for conversion into power for family automobiles, for which gasoline mileage would be doubled.

'Gremlins' Delay Debut Of Costly U.S. Rocket Ship

"We are having the expected teething trouble with its complicated systems," a government official admitted Friday after disclosing that the craft's expected top speed is 4,000 m.p.h.

The X15, at first scheduled for only one captive flight, has been carried aloft three times and is due for two more.

Trip No. 4 is tentatively set for next week at this desert test center 100 miles north of Los Angeles. The all-out effort to blast 100 miles or more to the edge of space, once expected late this spring, is now "sometime this year."

Current major trouble with the X15, says a source close to the program, is its auxiliary power systems. These operate the hydraulic system which works the controls.

Son Of Crooner Ordered To Pay Child Support

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dennis Crosby, son of crooner Bing Crosby, was ordered Friday to pay $350 monthly for support of a baby girl pending trial of a young mother's paternity suit against him.

Dennis, 25, who denied paternity, was ordered to pay the money, plus $2500 attorney fees, to Mrs. Marilyn Miller Scott who charged he fathered the child, Denise Michelle, 17 months.

The slim brunette said she already was receiving $300 a month from Crosby attorneys but needed more. She had sought $450.

Superior Court Commissioner Victor J. Hayek made the award. No date for trial of the paternity suit was set, which presumably meant Young Crosby would pay the temporary support pending settlement in or out of court.

Friday's action followed appearance in court of both Dennis and Mrs. Scott, whose attorney agreed that a new blood test will be taken from the child for comparison with Dennis' blood in the paternity issue.

The young singer - disc jockey took the stand to answer questions about his financial status. Speaking just above a whisper, Dennis said he lived with his wife and two children in a $42,000 home.

Asked about his assets, Dennis said he was worth $208,000 and was eligible for payments from a trust fund from the estate of his mother, the late Dixie Lee Crosby.

PLAYS 'ROBIN HOOD'

Teacher Charged In Bank Fleecings

MANASSAS, Va. (UPI)—A modern day "Robin Hood" school teacher whose father was a famous Methodist bishop and prohibition leader faced charges Friday of fleecing a series of banks in five states.

Richard M. Cannon, 60, was accused of using the money to entertain school children in his classes. He was held in jail here awaiting authorities from California where he is wanted on two charges of bouncing checks, one of auto theft and another of paole violation from San Quentin Prison.

Parents of his students circulated a petition to raise money so Cannon, who lived frugally so he could spend his money to take the children to dinner and the movies, could hire a lawyer.

Cannon is the son of the late James N. Cannon Jr. of Virginia, Methodist bishop whose fiery leadership was a prime factor in the passage of prohibition.

Warrants also awaited Cannon in Tennessee, Mississippi, Missouri and Arkansas where he allegedly practiced his hit-and-run bank cheating scheme.

He was arrested when recognized by a local bank officer from a wanted bulletin published by the American Bankers Protective Assn. He was living quietly as a third-grade teacher at an elementary school in nearby Occoquan, Va.

Cannon attended the University of California, Duke University and the University of Mississippi and holds a Masters Degree.

Cannon was yanked from a job at a Los Angeles area school in 1954 and sent to San Quentin Prison to serve a five-year sentence for embezzling $1,900 from the College of the Pacific.

Paroled in 1957, he passed two bad checks, bought a car with another worthless check and

Lynch Arrests May Come Soon

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The FBI is poised to arrest seven persons in connection with the lynching of a 23-year-old Negro who was charged with raping a white woman, it was reported Friday.

The Commercial Appeal, in a dispatch from Poplarville, Miss., said the arrests are expected to be made over the weekend. The newspaper quoted unnamed authoritative sources.

The 40 FBI agents working on the case have questioned many persons in the Bogalusa, La., and Hattiesburg, Miss., area since M. C. Parker was dragged from the Poplarville jail by a group of masked men.

The dispatch said sources close to state and local authorities indicated that anyone accused of being mob members would face two charges—a state murder charge, and a federal charge of conspiracy to deprive Parker of his civil rights.

FIRST SHIP OF ITS KIND

Work Launched On Nuclear Destroyer

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — The keel of the Navy's first nuclear-powered, guided missile destroyer leader was laid Friday at Bethlehem Steel Co.'s shipyard.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, (R-Mass), member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told a shipyard audience the event ushered in "another bright new era for the U.S. Navy — another milestone for U.S. leadership throughout the world."

Present for the ceremonies was Rear Adm. Hyman Rickover, USN, father of nuclear power in ships, who inscribed his initials on the keel plate.

The new ship, the second nuclearpower Navy craft to be built here, is to be named the Bainbridge for Commodore William Bainbridge, hero of the Tripoli War and the War of 1812. The guided missile cruiser, USS Long Beach, now under construction, is scheduled to be launched in July.

The Bainbridge will be armed with surface-to-air Terrier missiles and will have the most modern antisubmarine weapons.

The 7,600 ton craft will be capable of "virtually unlimited" cruising radius at higher speeds than conventionally-powered destroyers. It will be 540 feet long and 56 feet wide.

"We are having the expected teething trouble with its complicated systems," a government official admitted Friday after disclosing that the craft's expected top speed is 4,000 m.p.h.

The X15, at first scheduled for only one captive flight, has been carried aloft three times and is due for two more.

Trip No. 4 is tentatively set for next week at this desert test center 100 miles north of Los Angeles. The all-out effort to blast 100 miles or more to the edge of space, once expected late this spring, is now "sometime this year."

Current major trouble with the X15, says a source close to the program, is its auxiliary power systems. These operate the hydraulic system which works the controls.

Singer, Bride Off For Europe

"We hope to have as many children as possible," Miss Taylor told newsmen. "Maybe an even dozen."

Son Of Crooner Ordered To Pay Child Support

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dennis Crosby, son of crooner Bing Crosby, was ordered Friday to pay $350 monthly for support of a baby girl pending trial of a young mother's paternity suit against him.

Dennis, 25, who denied paternity, was ordered to pay the money, plus $2500 attorney fees, to Mrs. Marilyn Miller Scott who charged he fathered the child, Denise Michelle, 17 months.

The slim brunette said she already was receiving $300 a month from Crosby attorneys but needed more. She had sought $450.

Superior Court Commissioner Victor J. Hayek made the award. No date for trial of the paternity suit was set, which presumably meant Young Crosby would pay the temporary support pending settlement in or out of court.

Friday's action followed appearance in court of both Dennis and Mrs. Scott, whose attorney agreed that a new blood test will be taken from the child for comparison with Dennis' blood in the paternity issue.

The young singer - disc jockey took the stand to answer questions about his financial status. Speaking just above a whisper, Dennis said he lived with his wife and two children in a $42,000 home.

Asked about his assets, Dennis said he was worth $208,000 and was eligible for payments from a trust fund from the estate of his mother, the late Dixie Lee Crosby.

PLAYS 'ROBIN HOOD'

Teacher Charged In Bank Fleecings

MANASSAS, Va. (UPI)—A modern day "Robin Hood" school teacher whose father was a famous Methodist bishop and prohibition leader faced charges Friday of fleecing a series of banks in five states.

Richard M. Cannon, 60, was accused of using the money to entertain school children in his classes. He was held in jail here awaiting authorities from California where he is wanted on two charges of bouncing checks, one of auto theft and another of paole violation from San Quentin Prison.

Parents of his students circulated a petition to raise money so Cannon, who lived frugally so he could spend his money to take the children to dinner and the movies, could hire a lawyer.

Cannon is the son of the late James N. Cannon Jr. of Virginia, Methodist bishop whose fiery leadership was a prime factor in the passage of prohibition.

Warrants also awaited Cannon in Tennessee, Mississippi, Missouri and Arkansas where he allegedly practiced his hit-and-run bank cheating scheme.

He was arrested when recognized by a local bank officer from a wanted bulletin published by the American Bankers Protective Assn. He was living quietly as a third-grade teacher at an elementary school in nearby Occoquan, Va.

Cannon attended the University of California, Duke University and the University of Mississippi and holds a Masters Degree.

Cannon was yanked from a job at a Los Angeles area school in 1954 and sent to San Quentin Prison to serve a five-year sentence for embezzling $1,900 from the College of the Pacific.

Paroled in 1957, he passed two bad checks, bought a car with another worthless check and

Lynch Arrests May Come Soon

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The FBI is poised to arrest seven persons in connection with the lynching of a 23-year-old Negro who was charged with raping a white woman, it was reported Friday.

The Commercial Appeal, in a dispatch from Poplarville, Miss., said the arrests are expected to be made over the weekend. The newspaper quoted unnamed authoritative sources.

The 40 FBI agents working on the case have questioned many persons in the Bogalusa, La., and Hattiesburg, Miss., area since M. C. Parker was dragged from the Poplarville jail by a group of masked men.

The dispatch said sources close to state and local authorities indicated that anyone accused of being mob members would face two charges—a state murder charge, and a federal charge of conspiracy to deprive Parker of his civil rights.

FIRST SHIP OF ITS KIND

Work Launched On Nuclear Destroyer

QUINCY, Mass. (AP) — The keel of the Navy's first nuclear-powered, guided missile destroyer leader was laid Friday at Bethlehem Steel Co.'s shipyard.

Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, (R-Mass), member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, told a shipyard audience the event ushered in "another bright new era for the U.S. Navy — another milestone for U.S. leadership throughout the world."

Present for the ceremonies was Rear Adm. Hyman Rickover, USN, father of nuclear power in ships, who inscribed his initials on the keel plate.

The new ship, the second nuclearpower Navy craft to be built here, is to be named the Bainbridge for Commodore William Bainbridge, hero of the Tripoli War and the War of 1812. The guided missile cruiser, USS Long Beach, now under construction, is scheduled to be launched in July.

The Bainbridge will be armed with surface-to-air Terrier missiles and will have the most modern antisubmarine weapons.

The 7,600 ton craft will be capable of "virtually unlimited" cruising radius at higher speeds than conventionally-powered destroyers. It will be 540 feet long and 56 feet wide.

Legislature and his campaign plans.

"I don't think he'll get the deferment," Durett said.

Long went to Washington two or three weeks ago, Durett said, and discussed his request for a postponement with Treasury Secretary Anderson and a revenue service official identified only as Rhodes.

The two men, Durett said, were sympathetic to Long's request, but they contended other revenue officials were not.

Durett said Long considered the whole matter a political issue and claimed he is being made a target because he is a Democrat who didn't vote for President Eisenhower.

Long said he couldn't understand how Congress could have reversed the rules so that a man accused of tax violations had to prove his innocence.

"I really believe the next presidential candidate should advocate repeal of this nefarious, undemocratic, un-Christian method of harrassing innocent people," he said.

The Internal Revenue Service, as per usual custom, refused to discuss Long's announcement of the investigation.

Long said he would confer with Louisiana's congressional delegation during his stay in Washington.

"I'm going to talk to them about the tidelands case, taxation, and who will be the next President so I can be in on the ground floor," he said.

West Berlin into a "free, demilitarized city."

He said the Western plan "ties up complicated questions of a different nature in one single tangle which makes their solution in fact impossible."

His own plan was a re-hash of earlier Soviet proposals which vaguely said the Big Four should "help" East and West Germany reach agreement between themselves on reunification.

Gromyko slapped down Western hopes for an early compromise on the Berlin and German crisis by trotting out the Soviet draft peace treaty originally unveiled last Jan. 10 and rejected by the West at the time.

The Soviet Foreign minister brushed off the Western plan of step-by-step reunification of Berlin and Germany in a 45-minute speech at the fifth conference session in the Palais des Nations.

The Western plan, unveiled Thursday, is "based on deliberate ignoring of the real situation in Germany, on whose territory there have long been two independent sovereign states," Gromyko said.

A U.S. delegation spokesman said Gromyko had offered "nothing new nor constructive" despite six months of preliminary negotiations with the West on the issues.

The Soviets still were dedicated to the proposition that the Western Allies must quit West Berlin and let the city be turned into a free, demilitarized zone"—which would be ripe for Communist conquest.

But Western officials maintained hope that Gromyko's virtual rejection, coming so soon, was not a final answer. Khrushchev was reported studying the Western plan.

—West and East Germany to refrain from force.

—West Germany to quit NATO and East Germany to leave the Communist Warsaw Pact.

—West Berlin to be a free, demilitarized city pending unification of the two Germanies.

—All foreign forces and bases withdrawn from both Germanies within a year of the treaty coming into force.

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, chairman of Friday's session, said he would study the Soviet proposal, but he challenged Gromyko's attempt to blame present tensions in Germany on the West.

"He referred to the division of Europe into two military camps and to the accumulation of arms," Lloyd said in an off-the-cuff rebuttal to Gromyko. "Well, we have our own views as to where responsibility for that lies."

Assessing the Gromyko offering, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding told newsmen later that the Soviet Union was trying to perpetuate Germany's division.

"It has presented the same old proposals and Mr. Gromyko's exposition of them has not made them any more palatable than they were on January 10."

Gromyko was believed to have checked with Khrushchev before making his proposal Friday. But he himself was Russia talking, and he sounded like Vyacheslav M. Molotov, his predecessor at so many past conferences on Germany.

He ignored an appeal by Lloyd to consider the West's plan seriously and "not discard it out of hand."

State Lions To Convene In Monroe

The annual three-day state Lions Club convention is scheduled to get underway here May 22, 23, and 24, M. Kelley Thompson, general convention chairman announced. The Lions Clubs of Monroe and West Monroe, which will host the event, are working to organize numerous activities to entertain the visiting delegates during the three-day convention.

"More than a thousand Lions are expected to converge on the Twin Cities for what promises to be one of our best state conventions in history," commented Thompson.

One high point of the convention will be the election of five new district governors. Outgoing district governors to be replaced at the convention are Lester Carr, district 8-1, Monroe; W. O. Brown, district 8-0, Abbeville; Dr. W. J. Robinson, district 8-1, Natchitoches; Louis J. Ourso, Jr., district 8-N, Hammond; and Anthony J. Cangemi, district 8-S, Thibodeaux.

Included in the entertainment schedule, Thompson reported, will be a Friday night dance at the Frances Hotel when each district will present its top amateur act as part of a stunt show.

DINNER

A barbeque dinner will be served on the West Monroe fairgrounds Saturday, and another dance is scheduled at the exhibit building later that day. Tony Almerico's Dixie Land band will be the featured musicians.

Finis E. Davis, second vice president of Lions International, of Louisville Kentucky, will deliver a keynote address at a Saturday luncheon in Frances hotel. At the same time, ladies of the convention will attend a style show on the Virginia hotel roof.

At a breakfast Sunday morning on the Frances hotel roof, Wilburn Wilson, treasurer of Lions International, of Chicago, will deliver an address, topic of which has not been announced.

The convention is to close shortly before noon Sunday, following the election of officers.

FBI Critics Given Advice By Governor

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. J. P. Coleman cautioned Mississippians Friday against letting side issues in the lynching of Mack Charles Parker cloud Mississippi's reputation as a law-abiding state.

Coleman told his news conference that he had heard "some small opposition to the presence of the FBI in Pearl River County" investigating Parker's abduction from the Poplarville jail April 25 and shot to death and dumped into the Pearl River.

Parker had been charged with raping a pregnant white woman Feb. 24. He was lynched two days before his trial was to begin.

Coleman said the Parker lynching "will not do Mississippi anything like the harm that the Till case did, public relationswise."

In 1954, Emmett Till, a 14-year-old Chicago Negro, was kidnaped from his home after allegedly whistling at a white woman. A body was found but the trial did not prove it was Till's and the two men charged with murder in Till's death were acquitted.

Coleman said in a statement: "I want to point out that "1. Under U. S. laws, these men, the FBI, could have come in anyway after 24 hours.

"2. If these violators (the lynchers) were from outside Mississippi, the only chance for that to be established was by the FBI because of their jurisdiction beyond state lines which our law enforcement agencies cannot do.

"3. The presence of the FBI utterly assured the country that this incident has not been winked at because of the wide co-operation given by local and state officers.

"4. No finer thing could have possibly happened than to have the president of the United States say the people of Mississippi couldn't be condemned for this (lynching), and that no new laws were necessary.

"5. The constitution of the state of Mississippi requires me to take a special oath to see that all laws are faithfully executed.

"Parker was accused of a violation of the law which the courts no doubt would have determined and to take a subject out of the hands of the law also is a violation of the law. I am sworn to uphold that law the same as any other law.

"I hope that side issues and incidental considerations will not lead the people of Mississippi to lose sight of the fact that we are a law abiding people and that we want the rest of the country to respect us as such."

Mansfield Urges Foreign Aid Halt

strong that it will swamp the entire undertaking."

"I may be wrong," he said, "but I am persuaded that time is running out on foreign aid."

Mansfield said outright grants and gifts represent the "areas of decay in foreign aid" and have caused "fissures of corruption," and "areas of great waste and inefficiency."

Equally serious, he said, they have caused a "burgeoning hostility between the American people who must foot the bill and the peoples of the recipient nations."

Mansfield said he believed recipient nations would "welcome" the new loan approach to foreign aid and would "redouble their own efforts" in the knowledge that the program would end in three years.

The Montana senator also said his proposal would strengthen the Development Loan Fund, which was set up by Congress at the administration's request to make economic development loans to lagging foreign nations.

He said his proposed amendment to the foreign aid bill would transfer ICA personnel and funds to the State Department and put military phases of aid into the Defense Department.

Mansfield said Congress twice had tried to bring about such a reshuffling as a "prerequisite to a sane and adequate aid program."

But he said when Congress voted to abolish the Mutual Security Administration, the administration moved it to the Foreign Operations Administration. When Congress voted to abolish FOA, he said, the administration "countered by replacing FOA by ICA."

British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, chairman of Friday's session, said he would study the Soviet proposal, but he challenged Gromyko's attempt to blame present tensions in Germany on the West.

"He referred to the division of Europe into two military camps and to the accumulation of arms," Lloyd said in an off-the-cuff rebuttal to Gromyko. "Well, we have our own views as to where responsibility for that lies."

Assessing the Gromyko offering, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Andrew Berding told newsmen later that the Soviet Union was trying to perpetuate Germany's division.

"It has presented the same old proposals and Mr. Gromyko's exposition of them has not made them any more palatable than they were on January 10."

Gromyko was believed to have checked with Khrushchev before making his proposal Friday. But he himself was Russia talking, and he sounded like Vyacheslav M. Molotov, his predecessor at so many past conferences on Germany.

He ignored an appeal by Lloyd to consider the West's plan seriously and "not discard it out of hand."

State Lions To Convene In Monroe

The annual three-day state Lions Club convention is scheduled to get underway here May 22, 23, and 24, M. Kelley Thompson, general convention chairman announced. The Lions Clubs of Monroe and West Monroe, which will host the event, are working to organize numerous activities to entertain the visiting delegates during the three-day convention.

"More than a thousand Lions are expected to converge on the Twin Cities for what promises to be one of our best state conventions in history," commented Thompson.

One high point of the convention will be the election of five new district governors. Outgoing district governors to be replaced at the convention are Lester Carr, district 8-1, Monroe; W. O. Brown, district 8-0, Abbeville; Dr. W. J. Robinson, district 8-1, Natchitoches; Louis J. Ourso, Jr., district 8-N, Hammond; and Anthony J. Cangemi, district 8-S, Thibodeaux.

Included in the entertainment schedule, Thompson reported, will be a Friday night dance at the Frances Hotel when each district will present its top amateur act as part of a stunt show.

DINNER

A barbeque dinner will be served on the West Monroe fairgrounds Saturday, and another dance is scheduled at the exhibit building later that day. Tony Almerico's Dixie Land band will be the featured musicians.

Finis E. Davis, second vice president of Lions International, of Louisville Kentucky, will deliver a keynote address at a Saturday luncheon in Frances hotel. At the same time, ladies of the convention will attend a style show on the Virginia hotel roof.

At a breakfast Sunday morning on the Frances hotel roof, Wilburn Wilson, treasurer of Lions International, of Chicago, will deliver an address, topic of which has not been announced.

200-Pound Anvil Causes Big Bill

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (UPI) — Whoever put a 200-pound anvil in the middle of U. S. 74 here Thursday night can reclaim it now. There's a $1,000 repair bill for Thomas L. McNab's car attached.

McNab said it was "like an explosion" when his car hit the anvil, which ripped out the transmission and ripped through the gas tank.

FBI Critics Given Advice By Governor

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Gov. J. P. Coleman cautioned Mississippians Friday against letting side issues in the lynching of Mack Charles Parker cloud Mississippi's reputation as a law-abiding state.

Coleman told his news conference that he had heard "some small opposition to the presence of the FBI in Pearl River County" investigating Parker's abduction from the Poplarville jail April 25 and shot to death and dumped into the Pearl River.

Parker had been charged with raping a pregnant white woman Feb. 24. He was lynched two days before his trial was to begin.

Coleman said the Parker lynching "will not do Mississippi anything like the harm that the Till case did, public relationswise."

In 1954, Emmett Till, a 14-year-old Chicago Negro, was kidnaped from his home after allegedly whistling at a white woman. A body was found but the trial did not prove it was Till's and the two men charged with murder in Till's death were acquitted.

Coleman said in a statement: "I want to point out that "1. Under U. S. laws, these men, the FBI, could have come in anyway after 24 hours.

"2. If these violators (the lynchers) were from outside Mississippi, the only chance for that to be established was by the FBI because of their jurisdiction beyond state lines which our law enforcement agencies cannot do.

"3. The presence of the FBI utterly assured the country that this incident has not been winked at because of the wide co-operation given by local and state officers.

"4. No finer thing could have possibly happened than to have the president of the United States say the people of Mississippi couldn't be condemned for this (lynching), and that no new laws were necessary.

"5. The constitution of the state of Mississippi requires me to take a special oath to see that all laws are faithfully executed.

"Parker was accused of a violation of the law which the courts no doubt would have determined and to take a subject out of the hands of the law also is a violation of the law. I am sworn to uphold that law the same as any other law.

"I hope that side issues and incidental considerations will not lead the people of Mississippi to lose sight of the fact that we are a law abiding people and that we want the rest of the country to respect us as such."

KATMANDU, Nepal (UPI) — The government announced Friday that Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru will visit Nepal June 11-14 in response to King Mahendra's invitation.

Mansfield Urges Foreign Aid Halt

strong that it will swamp the entire undertaking."

"I may be wrong," he said, "but I am persuaded that time is running out on foreign aid."

Mansfield said outright grants and gifts represent the "areas of decay in foreign aid" and have caused "fissures of corruption," and "areas of great waste and inefficiency."

Equally serious, he said, they have caused a "burgeoning hostility between the American people who must foot the bill and the peoples of the recipient nations."

Mansfield said he believed recipient nations would "welcome" the new loan approach to foreign aid and would "redouble their own efforts" in the knowledge that the program would end in three years.

The Montana senator also said his proposal would strengthen the Development Loan Fund, which was set up by Congress at the administration's request to make economic development loans to lagging foreign nations.

He said his proposed amendment to the foreign aid bill would transfer ICA personnel and funds to the State Department and put military phases of aid into the Defense Department.

Mansfield said Congress twice had tried to bring about such a reshuffling as a "'prerequisite to a sane and adequate aid program."

But he said when Congress voted to abolish the Mutual Security Administration, the administration moved it to the Foreign Operations Administration. When Congress voted to abolish FOA, he said, the administration "countered by replacing FOA by ICA."

He also drew a five-year sentence in connection with an armed robbery charge in the same incident.

$100 Million Atom Smasher Proposed

IN WAGE DISPUTE

Workers Strike At Missile Base

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—Union carpenters struck at dawn in a wage dispute at this missile test base Friday and nearly 3,000 other workers refused to cross picket lines. But missile operators apparently were not immediately affected.

Pan American World Airways, which supports Cape operations under government contract, assigned supervisory personnel to shores usually performed by maintenance personnel.

Work on 50 million dollars in construction projects, however, was at a standstill. The 150 carpenters involved in the strike were constructing a launching pad for the Army's untested Pershing ballistic missile and facilities for the Titan ICBM.

The Air Force declined to comment on whether missile operations would be affected. But informed sources said the strike would probably not hamper launchings and other tests unless it dragged on for more than a week.

Employes of missile manufacturers remained on the job.

The Air Force estimated that 1,500 building tradesmen and 1,450 members of the Transport Workers Union and the Teamsters Union "failed to report to their jobs."

The Transport Workers and the Teamsters are known as the "housekeepers of the Cape. They are the truck drivers, the cafeteria personnel, repairmen, and general handymen of the base.

The carpenters struck after a fruitless last-minute meeting with civilian contractors Thursday. At 5 a.m. union members with crude-ly-lettered signs showed up at both entrances to the Cape and at access roads to Patrick Air Force Base.

Patrick, located 15 miles south of the Cape, is headquarters of the Air Force missile test center. Some of the carpenters were engaged in building projects there also.

Federal Mediator John L. Kenney of Tampa, who presided over three weeks of negotiations between the carpenters and the Associated General Contractors (AGC), met separately with representatives of both groups Friday. But he said he had nothing to report.

Mrs. McClanahan Rites Scheduled

Funeral services for Mrs. Pearl V. McClanahan, who died Thursday, will be held at 10 a. m. Saturday in the chapel of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home with the Rev. George W. Pomeroy and Rev. Lea Joyner officiating. Interment, under the direction of Hixson, will be in Riverview cemetery.

Mrs. McClanahan, 49, had been in failing health for several months. She lived at 1413 North Sixth street, Monroe.

Resident of Monroe for the past 40 years, Mrs. McClanahan was a member of the First Methodist Church of Monroe.

She is survived by her husband, Robert R. McClanahan of Monroe; one son Robert Ray, Monroe; two daughters, Mrs. M. S. Foster, Minneapolis, Minn., and Mrs. Wayne H. Ford, Jr., Lake Charles; one brother, Wylie Sedberry, Houston; mother, Mrs. W. B. Sedberry, Monroe; and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Curt Duggins, Bert Coverdale, Dr. H. H. Bauer, Pete Medak, W. B. Rainer and James Johnson.

Twining Making Progress After Cancer Surgery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Nathan F. Twining was reported making "satisfactory progress" Friday in his recovery from a lung cancer operation.

The Defense Department said the 61-year-old chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff spent a comfortable night. It said there were "no new developments" in his condition.

2 Men Wounded In Gun Battle

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Two men shot and wounded each other Friday in a wild west style gun fight on a downtown street corner.

Police said the men, Calvin F. Summers, 23, a sailor, and Jimmy C. Fuller, 23, fired at each other six times with revolvers before both fell to the ground.

Both men were booked on charges of attempted murder. Police said the argument started when Summers called Fuller, a Negro, "some bad racial names."

Steel Contract Talks Recessed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steel negotiators, keeping one eye on Washington, held "good exploratory discussions" for two hours Friday and then recessed their joint contract bargaining talks until Tuesday.

The atmosphere was cool at the start, with the industry negotiators refusing to answer any questions about Thursday's meeting between David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, and President Eisenhower.

Industry observers admitted the union scored a major public relations victory as a result of McDonald's "social call" on the President, whom the union chief described as "my good friend."

Both sides were cognizant of continuing Washington pressure for a non-inflationary steel pact this year. President Eisenhower has warned that the federal government would not stand "idly by" and permit another wage-price spiral.

Both McDonald and R. Conard Cooper chief industry negotiator, said their bargaining teams would spend the next three days preparing arguments and counter arguments on the "several matters" which had been discussed.

The first week of brass tacks negotiations ended with no apparent progress having been made toward a new contract for 500,000 steel workers. The present three-year agreement expires June 30.

After the bargaining talks were recessed, McDonald had a private lunch with Francis Cardinal Spellman at the latter's residence. McDonald later told reporters he and the Cardinal talked about "many matters" including the negotiations.

At a joint press conference, McDonald noted that Wall Street attributed the sharp rise in steel stocks to his meeting with Eisenhower. Pointing at the industry negotiators, McDonald said, "they should be very happy at what happened."

The industry team sat quietly in the room while McDonald talked about the stock market.

The labor leader admitted that he had purchased two shares of U.S. Steel stock in 1921 at $98 a share. As a result of stock splits over the years, his two shares have grown to 12, which are worth around $1,200 now.

"That's pretty good," McDonald quipped.

McDonald said we asked for a recess Monday so he could attend a meeting of the executive board of the AFL-CIO.

Nation's Center Of Population Is Moved Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has moved the nation's center of population 17 miles from its old location in Illinois to reflect the granting of statehood to Alaska and Hawaii.

The Census Bureau said Friday the new center, based on figures collected in the 1950 census, is about three miles northeast of Louisville, Ill. The old center was eight miles north-northeast of Olney, Ill.

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII will reduce the number of private and special audiences for visitors because they are interfering with his pastoral work, it was announced Friday.

Widow Says Slain Negro Was 'Goaded'

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — The widow of a 70-year-old Negro killed in a gunbattle with lawmen filed a complaint here Friday, contending her husband was goaded into the fatal shooting of a white man.

Elnora Causey said she made the statement to FBI agents because she wanted to clear her husband's name as a murderer.

Jonas Causey was shot and killed by sheriff's deputies last Sunday. Officers said they went to his home to arrest him for the fatal shooting of Orville Bailey on May 10. Sheriff Leighton Miller said he believed "bad blood" existed between the two men for some time.

W. B. Knight, who was with Bailey when he was shot and killed, said they were ambushed when they drove past the Causey place in a truck. Knight was slightly injured from a shotgun charge.

Officers who tried to arrest Causey said they tried to persuade him to surrender and tossed tear gas shells into the house before he opened fire and was killed when officers shot into the house.

Causey's wife contended Bailey had harrassed her husband and claimed Bailey shot into their house shortly before he was killed. She also claimed that Causey killed Bailey in self-defense.

In her statement to FBI agents, Causey's wife also said she wanted Knight prosecuted, but she did not give any reason. She said earlier that Knight and her husband had been friends.

The FBI office in emphis, which has jurisdiction over north Mississippi, would not comment on receiving the woman's complaint.

Aaron Henry, president of the Coahoma County chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, also said Causey's wife filed the complaint. He said the NAACP on both the state and local levels had been asked to aid in her case.

SURGERY PERFORMED

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Eleven-year-old Judy Guillot, who was stabbed last week by a young boy, is recovering today from surgery for a blood clot. Judy was the companion of Cathy Fehler, who was killed by the same boy. Hospital officials said the clot was believed the cause of paralysis of Judy's legs.

The atmosphere was cool at the start, with the industry negotiators refusing to answer any questions about Thursday's meeting between David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, and President Eisenhower.

Industry observers admitted the union scored a major public relations victory as a result of McDonald's "social call" on the President, whom the union chief described as "my good friend."

Both sides were cognizant of continuing Washington pressure for a non-inflationary steel pact this year. President Eisenhower has warned that the federal government would not stand "idly by" and permit another wage-price spiral.

Both McDonald and R. Conard Cooper chief industry negotiator, said their bargaining teams would spend the next three days preparing arguments and counter arguments on the "several matters" which had been discussed.

The first week of brass tacks negotiations ended with no apparent progress having been made toward a new contract for 500,000 steel workers. The present three-year agreement expires June 30.

After the bargaining talks were recessed, McDonald had a private lunch with Francis Cardinal Spellman at the latter's residence. McDonald later told reporters he and the Cardinal talked about "many matters" including the negotiations.

At a joint press conference, McDonald noted that Wall Street attributed the sharp rise in steel stocks to his meeting with Eisenhower. Pointing at the industry negotiators, McDonald said, "they should be very happy at what happened."

The industry team sat quietly in the room while McDonald talked about the stock market.

The labor leader admitted that he had purchased two shares of U.S. Steel stock in 1921 at $98 a share. As a result of stock splits over the years, his two shares have grown to 12, which are worth around $1,200 now.

"That's pretty good," McDonald quipped.

McDonald said we asked for a recess Monday so he could attend a meeting of the executive board of the AFL-CIO.

Nation's Center Of Population Is Moved Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has moved the nation's center of population 17 miles from its old location in Illinois to reflect the granting of statehood to Alaska and Hawaii.

The Census Bureau said Friday the new center, based on figures collected in the 1950 census, is about three miles northeast of Louisville, Ill. The old center was eight miles north-northeast of Olney, Ill.

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII will reduce the number of private and special audiences for visitors because they are interfering with his pastoral work, it was announced Friday.

Widow Says Slain Negro Was 'Goaded'

CLARKSDALE, Miss. (AP) — The widow of a 70-year-old Negro killed in a gunbattle with lawmen filed a complaint here Friday, contending her husband was goaded into the fatal shooting of a white man.

Elnora Causey said she made the statement to FBI agents because she wanted to clear her husband's name as a murderer.

Jonas Causey was shot and killed by sheriff's deputies last Sunday. Officers said they went to his home to arrest him for the fatal shooting of Orville Bailey on May 10. Sheriff Leighton Miller said he believed "bad blood" existed between the two men for some time.

W. B. Knight, who was with Bailey when he was shot and killed, said they were ambushed when they drove past the Causey place in a truck. Knight was slightly injured from a shotgun charge.

Officers who tried to arrest Causey said they tried to persuade him to surrender and tossed tear gas shells into the house before he opened fire and was killed when officers shot into the house.

Causey's wife contended Bailey had harrassed her husband and claimed Bailey shot into their house shortly before he was killed. She also claimed that Causey killed Bailey in self - defense.

In her statement to FBI agents, Causey's wife also said she wanted Knight prosecuted, but she did not give any reason. She said earlier that Knight and her husband had been friends.

The FBI office in emphis, which has jurisdiction over north Mississippi, would not comment on receiving the woman's complaint.

Aaron Henry, president of the Coahoma County chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, also said Causey's wife filed the complaint. He said the NAACP on both the state and local levels had been asked to aid in her case.

SURGERY PERFORMED

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Eleven-year-old Judy Guillot, who was stabbed last week by a young boy, is recovering today from surgery for a blood clot. Judy was the companion of Cathy Fehler, who was killed by the same boy. Hospital officials said the clot was believed the cause of paralysis of Judy's legs.

New Child Danger

A new danger to infants and young children, which may equal or surpass the abandoned refrigerator as a lethal instrument, has been disclosed by the National Safety Council. This new danger is the plastic bags that go into almost every home in the nation as covers for newly-cleaned clothes, groceries and scores of other products.

Deaths of three children from this cause within a 24-hour period brought a warning from the safety council that 100 children may be killed this year by plastic bags. These deaths followed several others that had already been reported.

Part of the fatality list has been laid to the do-it-yourself method of using the bags as plastic covers for pillows. Some of the infants have become wedged under the pillows and have been unable to escape from the soft, smothering plastic.

During the 24-hour period, one baby died in Indianapolis, Ind. Then, at Riegelsville, Pa., a five-month-old baby pulled a plastic bag over her head while her mother was gone. At Los Angeles, Calif., a two-year-old girl climbed into a closet while she was supposed to be taking a bath. Shortly afterward her mother found her dead in a 30-inch plastic bag.

Some of the operators of dry cleaning establishments which send the flimsy, cleaning plastic bags into homes have demanded legislation requiring that all such bags be labelled dangerous. In Chicago a cleaning plant operator announced immediate discontinuance of the use of the bags.

"We have between $2,000 and $3,000 worth of them on hand but the investment certainly is not worth exposing one child to the danger involved," he said.

For a good many years, exposed, unused refrigerators with catch locks which can be opened only from the outside have been one of the most serious threats to the lives of small children. Despite the enactment of laws in many states requiring the removal or destruction of locks on unused, exposed boxes the death toll is still alarmingly high. No community is immune from dangers of this kind.

Now the plastic bag seems destined to become a death rival of the abandoned refrigerator unless some action is taken to reduce the danger.

Marking the bags "dangerous" might be partly effective but would be unlikely to be completely so. Unless clothing or merchandise were removed immediately from the bags and unless the bags were destroyed, the "danger" signs might not do much good. If the bags were left in closets or lying around in other places, the children certainly would pay no attention to the signs, any more than they do to poison medicine left within their reach.

The question of safety, possibly involving the use of thinner, crisper plastic, should be worked out by authorities and the bag manufacturers.

British Satellites

Some evidence that a new desire is awakening in Britain for a resumption of its place among the leading nations of the world is seen in an announcement by Prime Minister Harold Macmillan that his country is getting ready to enter the artificial earth field.

Mr. Macmillan said Britain may send satellites into orbit either with the cooperation of its British commonwealth partners or with the United States. One statement by the prime minister is significant and encouraging. He said:

Ever since the end of World War II, Americans generally have been disappointed by the apathy of British and French officials and people in regard to participating in the world defense effort. Britain turned its attention almost entirely to economic projects, leaving the question of defending the world against Russia largely to the United States. France has been in a confused situation, with its officials and people more concerned with making a living than with defending themselves against Russian invasion.

A turn for the better as far as nationalist feeling and patriotism are concerned was taken in France when Gen. Charles de Gaulle became prime minister. He has given the nation more strength and stability and is moving toward greater possible defense efforts.

Apparently Prime Minister Macmillan of England has become convinced that his nation cannot survive by bread alone and that it must join in the scientific advancement recently dominated by the United States and Russia if it is to reassume a position of importance and strength in world affairs.

Mr. Macmillan said British experts are studying the possibility of adapting as satellite projectors military rockets now under development in his country.

"This," he said, "will put us in a position, should we decide to do so, to make an all-British effort."

Britain has arranged to start immediately on the construction of instruments to be carried on the satellites. Mr. Macmillan said he was unable to estimate what it would cost Britain to put a satellite into orbit if it decided to use a British rocket.

A much better balance of power among the nations of the world will be attained if Britain, France and West Germany regain at least a considerable part of their former strength.

Who's Over-Eating?

Long celebrated for its news releases on various facts and oddities, the National Geographical Society has come up with a new one. It says pigs never over-eat. This is about like pigs don't eat like pigs.

Thousands of people who have been accused of eating like pigs may be glad to discover that they weren't being insulted after all. This really gives fat people a break when they are told they are eating like pigs.

Anyone who has watched almost any pig knows three things full well. The first is that the pig will gulp his feed down at a tremendous rate, especially if there are other pigs trying to eat as fast as he does. The second is that he will eat all he can hold, sometimes eating almost to the point of bursting. The third is that he will eat so much that he will get so fat he can hardly walk.

That may not be over-eating for pigs but lots of people who eat that way have been not only accused of over-eating but of eating like pigs.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAY'S

Many Industries Seen As Hurting Own Trade

How easy it is to find a single cause for all our difficulties and a single solution for all our problems! Anthony B. Meany has all the answers. He worked them out after years of study. Nobody else quite reached the same conclusions but who is to say that one man's judgment is not as good as another's? So let us have a look at what Anthony B. Meany has discovered about the ills of mandkind:

"Gas and oil producers supply millions of radio listeners with baseball and various kinds of 'free' home entertainment actually removing necessity of product by keeping cars in garages.

"Auto industry furnish indoor musicals, 'free,' keeping car wheels from turning, thereby saving wear and tear of automobiles. Retarding transportation, prosperity's greatest factor.

"Soap companies' operettas, spellbinding us in our living rooms —keeping our bodies and wearing apparel cleaner—and soap bills fewer.

"Cosmetic radio dramas reduce need for going outdoors and more cosmetics.

"Magazines engage radio story tellers. Cut down potential reading time.

"Newspapers donate full pages to radio programs; the arch enemy of the printed word. Oftimes a cheaper substitute for daily papers.

"Clothing and fur makers radio-chaining us to armchairs. Reduce our demand for out-door apparel, men and machines at the farm and factory and money at the market place.

"Children's Programs at home keep them quiet and inactive. Decrease need of clothes, shoes, bread and other food energy.

"And so on and on, day and night, promoting mass inactivity and underconsumption, paralyzing industry, ever since the inception of commercial chain broadcasting."

There is this much reason in what Anthony B. Mearry says: if you stay at home and watch television, you do not wear out shoe leather or the tires of a car. Also you do not eat more hot dogs than you need to and do not get indigestion and therefore do not buy indigestion remedies. Therefore you add to the unemployment. But suppose a man likes to sit home, by the fireside, his wife knitting a pair of socks, his dog snoring, television murdering somebody, all in peace and contentment—must he wear a hat in the house to increase employment?

Surely Meany is not opposed to the family system and love and all that. He writes me that he has spent 30 years seeking for a solution to our problem of unemployment and that "our economists have overlooked these factors in their approach to this most serious problem of our times." I must say that the economists often overlook much but they are usually simple men who rarely become rich out of their knowledge.

The point I wish to make is that there is no one cause for our troubles and there is not one solution. The complications of modern life are so numerous, the world has become so large and its population so multitudinous that hundreds of small factors enter into every question that he world faces today.

When we thought in terms of Europe and America only and regarded the rest of the world as colonies, as weak and backward areas not to be taken too seriously, to be shot down when they became troublesome, life was much simpler. But today these very weak and backward peoples, black, yellow and brown, are asserting themselves in a manner that cannot be ignored.

In fact, it may so happen before many decades that we shall be more concerned about the upsurge of these colonial peoples than about conflicts in Europe. It may even come to pass that the Russians become as concerned, if not as frightened as the West is, about this population explosion in Asia and Africa and its effect upon the rest of the world.

I quoted Meany's analysis only to show how easy it is to lay down a cause and to find a solution for anything. But causes are really difficult to discover; solutions are even more difficult to find. Karl Marx found an answer in economic determinism but that has not proved to be the answer because spiritual, emotional, traditional, religious factors have proved equally significant in the reaction of peoples to the course of events. Life grows more complicated. The solutions to its problems grow more complex.

Two Men Reveal Killer Instinct

WASHINGTON, D. C. — It was a tragi-comic show — that white-faced duel between Commerce Secretary Lewis Strauss and U. S. Senator Clinton Anderson. It was the ever - rolling, non-improving enmity of two good men with the killer instinct to destroy each other.

John Galsworthy wrote a play called "Strife" in which two splendid characters, one from Labor and one from Management, tore each other and the community to bits, to the profit of none. Near the final curtain there is this speech which could have been written about the Strauss-Anderson conflict: ". . . the two best men both broken!. . . All this—all this — and — and for what?" Mark Twain in "Huckleberry Finn" telis of a bloody Arkansas feud which caused many deaths but the reason for which its principals on both sides had long forgotten. We hold "peace" conferences between mighty nations, we build grandiose temples to "peace," like the impressive UN building in New York. Yet we watch with no surprise, considering it quite normal, when two elderly tycoon - statesmen engage in a "you're-a-liar" and "you're another" contest which could easily cause one or both to keel over with a stroke or a heart attack.

This reporter watched nearly the whole of the running battle from a place where he could see both men's faces. The antagonists, both up in their 60's, both graced with wealth and honors, both with wives in the same social circle, both first - name friends in the past. could not have exhibited more loathing if they had been Hitler and Stalin meeting in Hades. Strauss would grimace with pain, smite his brow, stage-whisper in protest while Anderson read the scroll of "falsehoods" which were charged against the Secretary. Anderson would wince, roll his long frame in agony, whisper instructions to his committee spokesman, Gale McGee, when the Secretary rebutted the charges. Strauss' ruddy face went gray, his lips trmebled, his voice broke during his counterattack upon the Senator. Anderson's sagacious, friendly countenance turned savage with fury and pallid with frustration as the Secretary poured on the sarcasm.

It was a fight with too many referees, too many kibitzers, and not enough peace - makers. Republican Senators Scott and Schoeppel tried to see that their President's appointee got fair treatment in the clinches. Democratic Senators McGee and Monroney did what they could to help Anderson. Two other Democrats, to their high credit, kept insisting on a fair fight — they were Pastore and Lausche. But in all mercy, what was needed was somebody to take the two contestants in the back room, grab each by the wrist and force them to shake hands. For years I have made it a habit, which has greatly enriched my life with friendships, to say to colleagues with whom I have quarreled: "Look, Freddie Othman died last year, and Tom Stokes, the year before, and you or I may be next. If you insist on a quarrel, it's going to be one - sided. Life's too short." Some good friend ought to try that soothing formula on Strauss and Anderson.

There is every reason, of course why the Senate ought to examine presidential appointments. The 86th Senate, conscious of some criticism of past instances, has been leaning over backwards to do its duty in this respect. Associate Justice Potter Stewart was thoroughly examined, and 17 Senators registered against him at the end. They were doing their duty, and the record of their disapproval will stand in the history of the court.

Both Stewart and Strauss, unlike ex - Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce, were recess appointments and were already in office before the Senate got around to their confirmation. There is unwisdom in this practice and it has clearly shown up in the Stewart - Strauss examples. The President should make his major appointments while the Senate is in session, and unless there is overriding reason to do otherwise, the Senate should give much more priority to its function of advice and consent in presidential appointments. Many Senators are inclined to vote for a dubious candidate rather than drag him from an office where he is already ensconced. But the confirmation process is getting out of hand when it becomes a personal shooting match.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Too Much Fat— Too Much Food

I keep reminding readers that in 99 per cent overweight cases can be attributed to overeating—and nothing else. Today we have the saga of a fat man who could "blame it on his glands." I present this letter to show you the difference between the two types of obesity.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a fat man. I weighed 340 pounds when I got a heart attack in Hot Springs in July, 1958. I am 64 years old and am down to 300 now. Can't seem to get below it. I am 5-foot 5.

Here is my story. When I was born I weighed 15 pounds. I grew up within normal weight limits. I got married at 23 and my weight was still normal. I have a son 38 years old. He has a wonderful build. He has a daughter of seven who is beautiful. She dances, sings, plays the piano and is very good at school.

But I'm a little ahead of myself. After my marriage, I began to have terrific headaches and gained weight. I went to a doctor and he diagnosed my condition as due to trouble with my pituitary gland. I tipped the scale at 450 pounds. I was a machinist at the stock yards and lost my job.

I then went into the grocery store business. I could carry a 100 - pound bag of sugar up to the third floor as easily as if it were a bag of toothpicks. But I was a sick man. The doctor made arrangements for me to receive special X-ray treatments for the pituitary gland. After a while I began to lose and came down to 260 pounds.

But it wasn't only glands. I was a big eater. I could get rid of a half a duck, dumplings and sauerkraut just like that. I went back to work. It all ended with a heart attack. Considering that I carried all that weight for 64 years, I consider myself lucky to be alive—Mr. L. L.

CAT PROBLEM

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I find your column in our paper interesting and helpful. Now I am coming for some help myself. I think my request is "different."

I visited my son and my new daughter - in - law a few weeks ago. While there I found out that the dish their cat eats out of is washed with their own dishes. I didn't want to be a trouble-making mother-in-law, so I left quietly. I will cut out your answer, and send it to them. — Mrs. H.H.

ANSWER: Cat and dog lovers will hate me for this. Nevertheless, I go along with Mrs. H. H. I don't mind having a puppy or grown dog lick my face or hands —but not my dishes. Next time you talk to your son, tell him how you feel about it — and that you have at least one more on your side. Otherwise, Mrs. H.H., that cat will keep you out of your own son's home.

MANAGEMENT OF PERNICIOUS ANEMIA

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: How often should vitamin B12 be taken for pernicious anemia? — Mrs. L. H.

ANSWER: Proper dosage depends upon your own doctor's evaluation of your condition. Most doctors believe that better results are obtained by injecting this drug than taking it by mouth.

If the condition has just been diagnosed treatment is at first intensive — given daily, especially in patients who have numbness and "pins and needles" sensations in hands and feet.

However, as the blood improves, injections are spaced. After a while an injection of 30 micrograms of B12 every few weeks or once a month will be sufficient to control pernicious anemia.

Atlanta Seeks Trading Crown

ATLANTA, Ga. — Atlanta is out to put itself on the map as the trading center of the South.

Construction has just got underway on a $20,000,000 merchandise mart and international coliseum that its sponsors say has no equal anywhere in the country today.

When the mammoth project is completed some time in the fall of 1960 merchandisers, manufacturers, buyers and sports promoters will be able to assemble 25,000 people under one roof for a trade show, some huge sporting event or a national convention.

The 11 - story mart alone will contain approximately 1,000,000 square feet of office and show room space. Connected to the mart by a concourse the coliseum will include 350,000 square feet of unobstructed floor space equal in size to five football fields laid side by side. It will be larger than New York's Madison Square Garden and San Francisco's Cow Palace combined.

Robert M. Holder, who built Atlanta's famed Peachtree Industrial Boulevard and the man who first conceived of the mart-coliseum some 20 years ago, points out:

"Thousands of little store-owners in the seven Southeastern States, whose buying habits will be radically changed by the advent of the mart, will no longer need to look enviously at Dallas, Chicago, San Francisco and New York marts.

"We have moved into the gap created by the inertia of businessmen in the South who have steadfastly refused to believe in their own South."

Holder believes Atlanta is the natural distribution hub of a great and growing market that extends West to Mississippi and as far north as Virginia. This region accounts for 14 per cent of the nation's retail sales or better than $29 billion annually.

The developer makes it clear that the Atlanta project is not designed to compete with New Orleans' trade mart or that it will even enter international trade.

The Atlanta mart - coliseum is going up in picturesque rolling hill country about 25 miles North east of the city. Since most buyers travel by car today, according to Holder, a primary consideration was to find a site that could accommodate thousands of automobiles. Hence, this location which will have facilities for parking 10,000 autos.

Situated at the junction of two Federal interstate highways, the mart - coliseum will be able to feed traffic into a new expressway that runs right into downtown Atlanta.

Adjacent to the project a 1,000-room motel — described as the world's largest — will soon go up.

Holder said he knew long before signing the contract for the mart and coliseum that it would have to be built well outside the city which could not prosperously bear such an enormous wholesale center without severely damaging its retail merchants.

Montgomery Critical Of War Leaders

OXFORD, England (UPI) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery Friday night criticized American statesmanship again, but this time he directed his fire against the late President Roosevelt and other World War II leaders.

Montgomery apologized "very sincerely" two weeks ago for his criticisms of current American leadership made in an interview just before he visited Moscow and met with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev. His comments on President Eisenhower, former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his successor, Christian A. Herter, drew sharp rebuffs from the British press and members of the government.

Friday night, Montgomery said the American plans for a second front in Europe in 1942 "would have involved the Allies in a disaster which would have prolonged the war for years."

One of the reasons, he said, was that United States troops were too green.

The field marshal's criticisms of American wartime political and military strategy came in the first of two lectures he is giving at Oxford on "The Conflict Between East and West." Some had been voiced previously by Sir Winston Churchill and other British wartime leaders.

After America entered the war, Montgomery said, "the great aim of the American chiefs of staff was to concentrate all available forces for a cross-channel invasion of France and to smash Germany by a decisive blow in 1942 —only six months after they entered the war—so they could turn their great strength against Japan."

Daily Devotional

Be still and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth. - Psalm 46:10

The stillness and serenity of work and hustle of six days it is good to know that we can have a rest and change of pace. But we lose much of the value of the Sabbath if we do not attend religious services. We can be quiet in the home, perhaps, or we can drink in the beauties of nature on the golf course or motoring, but there is something lacking in these things that the true followers of Christ find only in the atmosphere and fellowship of our places of worship.

O God, help us to serve Thee all our days and to keep the Sabbath holy and dedicated to Thy cause. In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

British Satellites

Some evidence that a new desire is awakening in Britain for a resumption of its place among the leading nations of the world is seen in an announcement by Prime Minister Harold Macmillan that his country is getting ready to enter the artificial earth field.

Mr. Macmillan said Britain may send satellites into orbit either with the cooperation of its British commonwealth partners or with the United States. One statement by the prime minister is significant and encouraging. He said:

Ever since the end of World War II, Americans generally have been disappointed by the apathy of British and French officials and people in regard to participating in the world defense effort. Britain turned its attention almost entirely to economic projects, leaving the question of defending the world against Russia largely to the United States. France has been in a confused situation, with its officials and people more concerned with making a living than with defending themselves against Russian invasion.

A turn for the better as far as nationalist feeling and patriotism are concerned was taken in France when Gen. Charles de Gaulle became prime minister. He has given the nation more strength and stability and is moving toward greater possible defense efforts.

Apparently Prime Minister Macmillan of England has become convinced that his nation cannot survive by bread alone and that it must join in the scientific advancement recently dominated by the United States and Russia if it is to reassume a position of importance and strength in world affairs.

Mr. Macmillan said British experts are studying the possibility of adapting as satellite projectors military rockets now under development in his country.

"This," he said, "will put us in a position, should we decide to do so, to make an all-British effort."

Britain has arranged to start immediately on the construction of instruments to be carried on the satellites. Mr. Macmillan said he was unable to estimate what it would cost Britain to put a satellite into orbit if it decided to use a British rocket.

A much better balance of power among the nations of the world will be attained if Britain, France and West Germany regain at least a considerable part of their former strength.

Who's Over-Eating?

Long celebrated for its news releases on various facts and oddities, the National Geographical Society has come up with a new one. It says pigs never over-eat. This is about like pigs don't eat like pigs.

Thousands of people who have been accused of eating like pigs may be glad to discover that they weren't being insulted after all. This really gives fat people a break when they are told they are eating like pigs.

Anyone who has watched almost any pig knows three things full well. The first is that the pig will gulp his feed down at a tremendous rate, especially if there are other pigs trying to eat as fast as he does. The second is that he will eat all he can hold, sometimes eating almost to the point of bursting. The third is that he will eat so much that he will get so fat he can hardly walk.

That may not be over-eating for pigs but lots of people who eat that way have been not only accused of over-eating but of eating like pigs.

"Molehills!"

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAY'S

Many Industries Seen As Hurting Own Trade

How easy it is to find a single cause for all our difficulties and a single solution for all our problems! Anthony B. Meany has all the answers. He worked them out after years of study. Nobody else quite reached the same conclusions but who is to say that one man's judgment is not as good as another's? So let us have a look at what Anthony B. Meany has discovered about the ills of mandkind:

"Gas and oil producers supply millions of radio listeners with baseball and various kinds of 'free' home entertainment actually removing necessity of product by keeping cars in garages.

"Auto industry furnish indoor musicals, 'free,' keeping car wheels from turning, thereby saving wear and tear of automobiles. Retarding transportation, prosperity's greatest factor.

"Soap companies' operettas, spellbinding us in our living rooms —keeping our bodies and wearing apparel cleaner—and soap bills fewer.

"Cosmetic radio dramas reduce need for going outdoors and more cosmetics.

"Magazines engage radio story tellers. Cut down potential reading time.

"Newspapers donate full pages to radio programs; the arch enemy of the printed word. Oftimes a cheaper substitute for daily papers.

"Clothing and fur makers radio-chaining us to armchairs. Reduce our demand for out-door apparel, men and machines at the farm and factory and money at the market place.

"Children's Programs at home keep them quiet and inactive. Decrease need of clothes, shoes, bread and other food energy.

"And so on and on, day and night, promoting mass inactivity and underconsumption, paralyzing industry, ever since the inception of commercial chain broadcasting."

There is this much reason in what Anthony B. Mearry says: if you stay at home and watch television, you do not wear out shoe leather or the tires of a car. Also you do not eat more hot dogs than you need to and do not get indigestion and therefore do not buy indigestion remedies. Therefore you add to the unemployment. But suppose a man likes to sit home, by the fireside, his wife knitting a pair of socks, his dog snoring, television murdering somebody, all in peace and contentment—must he wear a hat in the house to increase employment?

Surely Meany is not opposed to the family system and love and all that. He writes me that he has spent 30 years seeking for a solution to our problem of unemployment and that "our economists have overlooked these factors in their approach to this most serious problem of our times." I must say that the economists often overlook much but they are usually simple men who rarely become rich out of their knowledge.

The point I wish to make is that there is no one cause for our troubles and there is not one solution. The complications of modern life are so numerous, the world has become so large and its population so multitudinous that hundreds of small factors enter into every question that he world faces today.

When we thought in terms of Europe and America only and regarded the rest of the world as colonies, as weak and backward areas not to be taken too seriously, to be shot down when they became troublesome, life was much simpler. But today these very weak and backward peoples, black, yellow and brown, are asserting themselves in a manner that cannot be ignored.

In fact, it may so happen before many decades that we shall be more concerned about the upsurge of these colonial peoples than about conflicts in Europe. It may even come to pass that the Russians become as concerned, if not as frightened as the West is, about this population explosion in Asia and Africa and its effect upon the rest of the world.

I quoted Meany's analysis only to show how easy it is to lay down a cause and to find a solution for anything. But causes are really difficult to discover; solutions are even more difficult to find. Karl Marx found an answer in economic determinism but that has not proved to be the answer because spiritual, emotional, traditional, religious factors have proved equally significant in the reaction of peoples to the course of events. Life grows more complicated. The solutions to its problems grow more complex.

Two Men Reveal Killer Instinct

WASHINGTON, D. C. — It was a tragi-comic show — that white-faced duel between Commerce Secretary Lewis Strauss and U. S. Senator Clinton Anderson. It was the ever - rolling, non-improving enmity of two good men with the killer instinct to destroy each other.

John Galsworthy wrote a play called "Strife" in which two splendid characters, one from Labor and one from Management, tore each other and the community to bits, to the profit of none. Near the final curtain there is this speech which could have been written about the Strauss-Anderson conflict: ". . . the two best men both broken!. . . All this— all this — and — and for what?" Mark Twain in "Huckleberry Finn" tells of a bloody Arkansas feud which caused many deaths but the reason for which its principals on both sides had long forgotten. We hold "peace" conferences between mighty nations, we build grandiose temples to "peace," like the impressive UN building in New York. Yet we watch with no surprise, considering it quite normal, when two elderly tycoon - statesmen engage in a "you're-a-liar" and "you're another" contest which could easily cause one or both to keel over with a stroke or a heart attack.

This reporter watched nearly the whole of the running battle from a place where he could see both men's faces. The antagonists, both up in their 60's, both graced with wealth and honors, both with wives in the same social circle, both first - name friends in the past, could not have exhibited more loathing if they had been Hitler and Stalin meeting in Hades. Strauss would grimace with pain, smite his brow, stage-whisper in protest while Anderson read the scroll of "falsehoods" which were charged against the Secretary. Anderson would wince, roll his long frame in agony, whisper instructions to his committee spokesman, Gale McGee, when the Secretary rebutted the charges. Strauss' ruddy face went gray, his lips trmebled, his voice broke during his counterattack upon the Senator. Anderson's sagacious, friendly countenance turned savage with fury and pallid with frustration as the Secretary poured on the sarcasm.

It was a fight with too many referees, too many kibitzers, and not enough peace - makers. Republican Senators Scott and Schoeppel tried to see that their President's appointee got fair treatment in the clinches. Democratic Senators McGee and Monroney did what they could to help Anderson. Two other Democrats, to their high credit, kept insisting on a fair fight — they were Pastore and Lausche. But in all mercy, what was needed was somebody to take the two contestants in the back room, grab each by the wrist and force them to shake hands. For years I have made it a habit, which has greatly enriched my life with friendships, to say to colleagues with whom I have quarreled: "Look, Freddie Othman died last year, and Tom Stokes, the year before, and you or I may be next. If you insist on a quarrel, it's going to be one - sided. Life's too short." Some good friend ought to try that soothing formula on Strauss and Anderson.

There is every reason, of course why the Senate ought to examine presidential appointments. The 86th Senate, conscious of some criticism of past instances, has been leaning over backwards to do its duty in this respect. Associate Justice Potter Stewart was thoroughly examined, and 17 Senators registered against him at the end. They were doing their duty, and the record of their disapproval will stand in the history of the court.

Both Stewart and Strauss, unlike ex - Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce, were recess appointments and were already in office before the Senate got around to their confirmation. There is unwisdom in this practice and it has clearly shown up in the Stewart - Strauss examples. The President should make his major appointments while the Senate is in session, and unless there is overriding reason to do otherwise, the Senate should give much more priority to its function of advice and consent in presidential appointments. Many Senators are inclined to vote for a dubious candidate rather than drag him from an office where he is already ensconced. But the confirmation process is getting out of hand when it becomes a personal shooting match.

Waiting For You

I miss you, darling, but I must . . . Be patient every day . . . And keep my courage up as long . . . As you must be away . . . It is not easy for me while . . . I walk in loneliness . . . Because I love you, and you are . . . My every happiness . . . I see you in the sun and moon . . . And all the stars that shine . . . And in my heart that loves you so . . . I know that you are mine . . . But there is never any thought . . . Or dream to take the place . . . Of your endearing self in my . . . Affectionate embrace . . . Nothing and no one else on earth . . . Could mean so much to me . . . As you are all I want in life . . . And you will always be.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Too Much Fat— Too Much Food

I keep reminding readers that in 99 per cent overweight cases can be attributed to overeating—and nothing else. Today we have the saga of a fat man who could "blame it on his glands." I present this letter to show you the difference between the two types of obesity.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a fat man. I weighed 340 pounds when I got a heart attack in Hot Springs in July, 1958. I am 64 years old and am down to 300 now. Can't seem to get below it. I am 5-foot 5.

Here is my story. When I was born I weighed 15 pounds. I grew up within normal weight limits. I got married at 23 and my weight was still normal. I have a son 38 years old. He has a wonderful build. He has a daughter of seven who is beautiful. She dances, sings, plays the piano and is very good at school.

But I'm a little ahead of myself. After my marriage, I began to have terrific headaches and gained weight. I went to a doctor and he diagnosed my condition as due to trouble with my pituitary gland. I tipped the scale at 450 pounds. I was a machinist at the stock yards and lost my job.

I then went into the grocery store business. I could carry a 100 - pound bag of sugar up to the third floor as easily as if it were a bag of toothpicks. But I was a sick man. The doctor made arrangements for me to receive special X-ray treatments for the pituitary gland. After a while I began to lose and came down to 260 pounds.

But it wasn't only glands. I was a big eater. I could get rid of a half a duck, dumplings and sauerkraut just like that. I went back to work. It all ended with a heart attack. Considering that I carried all that weight for 64 years, I consider myself lucky to be alive—Mr. L. L.

CAT PROBLEM

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I find your column in our paper interesting and helpful. Now I am coming for some help myself. I think my request is "different."

I visited my son and my new daughter - in - law a few weeks ago. While there I found out that the dish their cat eats out of is washed with their own dishes. I didn't want to be a trouble-making mother-in-law, so I left quietly. I will cut out your answer, and send it to them. — Mrs. H.H.

ANSWER: Cat and dog lovers will hate me for this. Nevertheless, I go along with Mrs. H. H. I don't mind having a puppy or grown dog lick my face or hands —but not my dishes. Next time you talk to your son, tell him how you feel about it — and that you have at least one more on your side. Otherwise, Mrs. H.H., that cat will keep you out of your own son's home.

MANAGEMENT OF PERNICIOUS ANEMIA

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: How often should vitamin B12 be taken for pernicious anemia? — Mrs. L. H.

ANSWER: Proper dosage depends upon your own doctor's evaluation of your condition. Most doctors believe that better results are obtained by injecting this drug than taking it by mouth.

If the condition has just been diagnosed treatment is at first intensive — given daily, especially in patients who have numbness and "pins and needles" sensations in hands and feet.

However, as the blood improves, injections are spaced. After a while an injection of 30 micrograms of B12 every few weeks or once a month will be sufficient to control pernicious anemia.

Atlanta Seeks Trading Crown

Construction has just got underway on a $20,000,000 merchandise mart and international coliseum that its sponsors say has no equal anywhere in the country today.

When the mammoth project is completed some time in the fall of 1960 merchandisers, manufacturers, buyers and sports promoters will be able to assemble 25,000 people under one roof for a trade show, some huge sporting event or a national convention.

The 11 - story mart alone will contain approximately 1,000,000 square feet of office and show room space. Connected to the mart by a concourse the coliseum will include 350,000 square feet of unobstructed floor space equal in size to five football fields laid side by side. It will be larger than New York's Madison Square Garden and San Francisco's Cow Palace combined.

Robert M. Holder, who built Atlanta's famed Peachtree Industrial Boulevard and the man who first conceived of the mart-coliseum some 20 years ago, points out:

"Thousands of little store-owners in the seven Southeastern States, whose buying habits will be radically changed by the advent of the mart, will no longer need to look enviously at Dallas, Chicago, San Francisco and New York marts.

"We have moved into the gap created by the inertia of businessmen in the South who have steadfastly refused to believe in their own South."

Holder believes Atlanta is the natural distribution hub of a great and growing market that extends West to Mississippi and as far north as Virginia. This region accounts for 14 per cent of the nation's retail sales or better than $29 billion annually.

The developer makes it clear that the Atlanta project is not designed to compete with New Orleans' trade mart or that it will even enter international trade.

The Atlanta mart - coliseum is going up in picturesque rolling hill country about 25 miles North east of the city. Since most buyers travel by car today, according to Holder, a primary consideration was to find a site that could accommodate thousands of automobiles. Hence, this location which will have facilities for parking 10,000 autos.

Situated at the junction of two Federal interstate highways, the mart - coliseum will be able to feed traffic into a new expressway that runs right into downtown Atlanta.

Adjacent to the project a 1,000-room motel — described as the world's largest — will soon go up.

Holder said he knew long before signing the contract for the mart and coliseum that it would have to be built well outside the city which could not prosperously bear such an enormous wholesale center without severely damaging its retail merchants.

Montgomery Critical Of War Leaders

OXFORD, England (UPI) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery Friday night criticized American statesmanship again, but this time he directed his fire against the late President Roosevelt and other World War II leaders.

Montgomery apologized "very sincerely" two weeks ago for his criticisms of current American leadership made in an interview just before he visited Moscow and met with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev. His comments on President Eisenhower, former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and his successor, Christian A. Herter, drew sharp rebuffs from the British press and members of the government.

Friday night, Montgomery said the American plans for a second front in Europe in 1942 "would have involved the Allies in a disaster which would have prolonged the war for years."

One of the reasons, he said, was that United States troops were too green.

The field marshal's criticisms of American wartime political and military strategy came in the first of two lectures he is giving at Oxford on "The Conflict Between East and West." Some had been voiced previously by Sir Winston Churchill and other British wartime leaders.

After America entered the war, Montgomery said, "the great aim of the American chiefs of staff was to concentrate all available forces for a cross-channel invasion of France and to smash Germany by a decisive blow in 1942 —only six months after they entered the war—so they could turn their great strength against Japan."

Daily Devotional

Be still and know that I am God: I will be exalted among the heathen, I will be exalted in the earth. - Psalm 46:10

The stillness and serenity of work and hustle of six days it is good to know that we can have a rest and change of pace. But we lose much of the value of the Sabbath if we do not attend religious services. We can be quiet in the home, perhaps, or we can drink in the beauties of nature on the golf course or motoring, but there is something lacking in these things that the true followers of Christ find only in the atmosphere and fellowship of our places of worship.

O God, help us to serve Thee all our days and to keep the Sabbath holy and dedicated to Thy cause. In Christ's name we ask. Amen.

DISTRICT COURT ACTION

Three Sentenced To State Prison

Three persons, two of which had received parole or probation from the state penitentiary at Angola for similar offenses, were sentenced to the prison for simple burglary yesterday by judge David I. Garrett in Fourth District Court.

Garrett leveled a blast at the leniency with convicts in Angola after the records showed that two of the three persons who pleaded guilty to one or more counts of burglary had served but a small portion of previous terms.

In one incident, involving 13 counts of burglary, the judge remarked that his serving of 13 months must be "some sort of a record."

The man, identified as George Spencer Wilson, 20-year-old Negro, pleaded guilty to three counts of burglary and was given nine years on each count. Wilson told the court he had previously been sentenced for 13 other counts of burglary, but received release after serving only 13 months of his sentence.

The second ex-convict who faces a return to Angola was identified as John Henry Lee, Negro, who pleaded guilty to one count of burglary. He received a five-year sentence for the burglary of Long's Skelly Service Station April 25.

The third person to be sentenced to Angola, Wilbert Walker, Jr., had previously entered a plea of guilty for burglary and received five years. He had no prior record, the judge noted, but was wanted on a similar offense in Lincoln Parish.

OTHER ACTION

In other actions, Garrett fined eight persons $300 and costs of court for operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. They were Wiley F. Crawford· Max Richmond Clayton Williams, Walter Kent, Edward M. Wilson, Charles H. Kennedy, Billy R. Causey and Marvis Gene Jackson.

Two others, pleading guilty to second offense drunk driving, were fined $400 and costs of court and sentenced to 125 days in the Ouachita Parish jail. They were John I. Patterson and Lennis D. Odom.

Four persons pleaded not guilty to operating motor vehicles while under the influence of intoxicating liquors. Albert Viola will face trial as a second offender June 26; as will Lucian E. Waggoner and George Earl Kemp for first offenders. Robert Neal's trial was set for June 19.

Two persons, charged with illegal possession of a central nervous system stimulant, pleaded not guilty. Ernest H. Lamb will be tried June 26 for this count, along with disturbing the peace. Lee Cusack will be tried May 29 for the illegal possession count, no chauffer's license and fradulent use of a chauffeur's license.

C. O. Friend and Mrs. C. O. Friend charged a not-guilty plea to guilty on a count of theft by check of $30. In addition Friend faces another charge of automobile theft. The two were remanded for sentence.

John Henry Williams, charged with burglary of the Broadmoor Drive In May 11 entered a not-guilty plea and will be tried November 3.

H. G. Pointer, alias H. G. Porter, pleaded not guilty to forgery which allegedly occurred April 20, and will be tried November 2.

A motion for the attorney for John W. Morgan, charged in a grand jury indictment with accessory after the fact, for a bill of particulars was overruled by Garrett. Morgan, who was acting as a bouncer at the Southside Club March 22, when a Choudrant man was reported shot by Ed Lucky, is charged on the grounds that he attempted to conceal him. Lucky, after the shooting.

The attorney asked that a bill of particulars be attached to the judge's ruling.

Girl, 5, Begins Rabies Shots; Cat Found Dead

The big yellow cat that scratched Rhonda Sue Marks last Sunday has been found dead under the Marks house, but five-year-old Rhonda had to start her anti-rabies shots Friday anyway.

Since the cat had apparently been dead for several days, it was impossible to examine its brain for rabies symptoms.

The 14 shot series which utilizes a new serum that is safe and causes little pain, was begun, just to be safe.

Mrs. H. A. Marks, mother of Rhonda, stated that she had suspicions that the cat's "foaming at the mouth" and subsequent death might have been caused by poison.

Mrs. Marks expressed thanks to the many people who phoned in response to an article which solicited aid in trying to locate the cat.

He is married to the former Miss Mattie Maud Smith of Duback and they live in a ranch-style home in Farmerville.

Since the cat had apparently been dead for several days, it was impossible to examine its brain for rabies symptoms.

The 14 shot series which utilizes a new serum that is safe and causes little pain, was begun, just to be safe.

Mrs. H. A. Marks, mother of Rhonda, stated that she had suspicions that the cat's "foaming at the mouth" and subsequent death might have been caused by poison.

Mrs. Marks expressed thanks to the many people who phoned in response to an article which solicited aid in trying to locate the cat.

N. BRYANT JAMES

Federal Savings and Loans Association of Union Parish.

James reportedly acquired the property from the West Monroe Harold Bradley Men's Furnishing Store on December 5, 1957.

The store went bankrupt shortly before then and James' bank had a claim against the estate.

CHARGES

About two weeks later, according to the federal indictment, James took the furniture and fixtures and converted them to his own use. The indictment does not specify how this occurred.

The federal government entered the case because the bank is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

James will be arraigned in Monroe, since the case falls within the jurisdiction of the Monroe Division of the Western District of Louisiana.

Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr. is chief judge of the division and probably will hear James' plea.

The charge carries a penalty of up to five years imprisonment, or a $5,000 fine, or both.

James did not appear as a witness at the hearing which convened Tuesday and reported out Thursday. His indictment was one of four kept secret until the indicted persons could be put under arrest.

An active member of the First Baptist Church of Farmerville, James is in his middle 50's.

He is married to the former Miss Mattie Maud Smith of Duback and they live in a ranch-style home in Farmerville.

The grand jury which indicted James was handled by U. S. Attorney T. Fitzhugh Wilson, also a Republican.

Miss Hines was identified by West Monroe Police as the driver of a vehicle travelling north on N. 9th. The other driver was listed as Miss Mary Roberts, 24, Rt. 4, Monroe, headed east on Stella Street.

The Roberts car was damaged slightly and the Hines car was demolished, police added.

No charges were listed last night.

A man stopped by deputies of the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department Thursday night had admitted a series of bad check charges in Galveston County, Texas, which will run into several thousand dollars, according to officials.

The department has been notified that Texas authorities hold three felony warrants for the man identified as Angus Willard Jennings, 30, of LeMarque, Texas. The charges include automobile theft, Sheriff Bailey Grant said.

Jennings late yesterday signed a waiver of extradition and will be returned to Galveston County to face the charges, Grant added.

Jennings was stopped by deputies on a routine patrol late Thursday night. When he failed to produce papers showing the ownership of the automobile which he was driving, the deputies took the man to the parish jail for a further check.

Found in the automobile was a check protector, which allegedly had been used to write the checks, and a large book of checks on a gas company.

Godfrey Tells Of Operation

IN HOSPITAL INTERVIEW

Weeping Godfrey Tells Of Operation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Arthur Godfrey disclosed in tears Friday that surgeons who removed half of his left lung in a cancer operation 15 days ago also had found and taken out a cancerous growth around the main artery leading from his heart.

The 55-year-old radio and television entertainer broke down and wept as he talked to newsmen while departing from the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center for further convalescence at his Manhattan apartment.

Surgeons had removed the upper half of his left lung, containing a cancerous tumor, in a five-hour operation on April 30. Until Friday, it had not been known that cancer had been found elsewhere in his body.

"That damnable thing was not only in my lung, but was wrapped around my aorta," said Godfrey. "The surgeon would have been within his right to let it go and sew me up. His courage and competence gave me a break and he got it out.

"Had the knife slipped one way or the other, had he made one wrong stroke, I wouldn't be here talking to you now. I don't know why I got this break. I do know I'm grateful and I'll do my damndest to deserve it."

The aorta carries blood from the heart to other parts of the body.

The "old red-head" met newsmen with a smile. But as he talked his voice quavered and trailed off and he burst into tears. He wiped his eyes with a handkerchief.

"What overwhelmed me was all of you and all your interest," he said. "You must take to the people this message from me, which may be of some help to others.

"As I said, I felt good physically, but inside I was afraid, because I didn't know. Like all aviators, I'm not afraid of anything I know about. Everytime a pilot takes off, he knows it could be his last time.

"He takes what we call calculated risks. He has confidence in his own skill and in his machine and in the people who work with him."

At one point, his press agent, Dick Krolik, interceded and tried to end the interview but Godfrey insisted that "I gotta tell 'em this."

Godfrey recalled that his trouble began when X-rays showed a "thing" in his lung.

"My doctors told me it could be any number of things, and that they had better go in and have a look," he said. "I had the finest surgeons, nurses and facilities in the world.

"Thank God, we live in this age we do. So I went through this check list and said 'engine ok, fuselage ok, take off.' I placed myself in the hands of these fine people."

Godfrey said he felt fine when he entered the hospital and he felt fine now.

Examiner Rules For State Firm On Buying Gas

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Federal Power Commission examiner ruled Friday that United Gas Pipe Line Co., Shreveport, La., should be allowed to buy natural gas produced in the North Henderson field area of Rusk County, Tex.

Examiner Richard N. Ivins also held that Phillips Petroleum Co., Bartlesville, Okla., and Union Producing Co., Shreveport, should be allowed to sell the gas to United.

His decision will become a final commission order if no review is initiated within 30 days.

WATER ALCOHOLICS

LONDON (UPI) — Two physicians Friday reported the strange cases of nine patients who suffered the effects of intoxication from drinking water.

Drs. Erasmus Barlow and Hugh de Wardener, writing in the quarterly journal of medicine, said the patients at St. Thomas' Hospital showed all the symptoms of drunkenness without having consumed alcohol.

The physicians said these "compulsive water drinkers" turned to water for the same psychological reasons that turn others into alcoholics.

The doctors termed the water drunks "hydrolics," and said their drunkenness stemmed from the dilution of their blood with water, thus feeding less oxygen to the brain.

ON PLANE CONTRACTS

U.S. Agency Says Firms Overcharge

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government's General Accounting Office said Friday Cessna Aircraft Co., of Wichita, Kans., submitted to the government prices for B52 bomber tail assemblies and tooling that were 37 per cent above costs.

The office, which serves as congressional watchdog over government spending, said a second investigation showed that the Reinhold Engineering and Plastics Co. Norwalk, Calif., charged the government $178,000 too much for other plane parts.

Last week the office accused Lockheed Aircraft Corp. of submitting plane cost figures to the Air Force which the company knew were $41,110.600 too high. It said Lockheed would have made an additional profit of $1,251,007 but for government auditors.

Cessna, which produced the B-52 tail assemblies under a subcontract with Boeing Airplane Co. put a $6,324,970 price tag on them. Comptroller General Joseph Campbell said in a report to Congress that they actually cost $4,621,329.

Campbell said the case proved the need for "continued vigilance" by the Air Force in its contracting. He added that Cessna's bid was accepted "apparently without effective evaluation of the price either by Boeing or the Air Force."

Campbell's report was turned over to the House Government Operations Committee for study and possible action.

Boeing protested the report. It voiced "increasing concern" over the approach taken by Campbell's auditors in examining such contracts. The company said they ignored a firm's total performance and concentrated on "aspects which lend themselves to adverse criticism."

Campbell said he had recommended the Air Force keep a close eye on the subcontracting, pricing and administrations of big defense contractors.

In the Reinhold case, Campbell said the Air Force had issued instructions stressing the need for effective administration of major subcontract pricing, but "we believe these instructions are inadequate."

Japan Rejects Soviet Proposal On Neutral Role

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan told the Soviet Friday it would not join the "neutral" camp, as the Russians requested.

The government also turned down a Soviet proposal to create an atom-free zone in the Far East. The Japanese reply to the Soviet note of May 4 was delivered to Russian Ambassdaor Nikolai Fedorenko by Vice Foreign Minister Hisanari Yamada.

The Japanese told the Russians they intended to continue a policy of cooperation with the Western powers along United Nations principles.

INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT

The nation's industrial output rose to a new record high in April, the government reported. The Federal Reserve Board's index for miners and factories rose two points last month to 149 per cent of the 1947-49 average on the strength of substantial increases in durable goods production.

STEEL

Steel wage negotiators met for "two hours of good exploratory discussions" and then recessed their joint talks until Tuesday. R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for the industry, said the four-man bargaining teams discussed "several matters" but he declined to identify them.

AUTOS

The auto industry, producing 12 to almost 30 per cent ahead of sales, expects to hit the June 30 strike deadline in the steel industry with the highest mid-year new car inventory in history, Ward's Automotive Reports said. At the same time Ward's revealed the companies also are building up their stocks of assembled automobiles against the possible bog-down in the steel industry.

FORD

The Detroit Ford Dealers Assn. and 22 Ford dealers were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of price-fixing. The indictment charged that the dealers and their association engaged in a combination and conspiracy to raise, fix and stabilize the retail prices of Ford cars sold in metropolitan Detroit.

Profit Taking Lowers Stock Mart Prices

NEW YORK (UPI)—Profit-taking, coming on the heels of the rise to new record highs, caused backsliding in recent strong favorites such as the electronic and steel shares and gave the stock market its first decline in a week.

Interest in gold shares was spurred by prevalent talk of the possibilities of any increase in the U.S. price for the precious metal and gains in the group ranged to 4 points in McIntyre Porcupine, 3⅛ in Homestake Mining.

There were other strong features—Texas Pacific Land Trust, Adams-Millis, Warner Brothers, Libbey-Owens-Ford, Mead Corp., Procter & Gamble, Carter Products, Mesta Machine, U.S. Plywood, up 2 to 4 points.

Uncertainty, evident from the start of the week-end session, was heightened just before the close when leading commercial banks hiked their prime lending rates from 4 to 4½ per cent. The move, considered a forerunner of tighter credit all around, was reflected in some easing in the U.S. government bond market but it was said the full effect could not be assessed until Monday.

Volume lightened on the decline to 3,510,000 shares from 3,660,000 on Thursday when the market set a new all-time high.

Electronics were among the hardest hit by the realizing with declines of 5¾ in Zenith, 3½ Motorola, around 2 points in Litton Industries, Texas Instruments and Raytheon.

Steels, market leaders in the Thursday rise on speculation about the meeting of President Eisenhower and Steelworker President David McDonald, were marked down all around — as much as 2⅜ points in U.S. Steel, 3 in Youngstown Sheet & Tube and 1⅞ in Lukens. American Steel Foundries, however, ran up over a point on a favorable earnings report and forecast.

Rails showed losses around a point in Atlantic Coast Line, Rock Island and Great Northern, nearly 2 in Louisville & Nashville but a point gain in Kansas City Southern.

Recent City Invention

Six tractors which pull double duty as insect fogging machines were devised for use by the city sanitary department recently. Athur Barker, right, department superintendent, invented the method which allows fog to be ejected from the exhaust of the tractors at the same time grass is being cut. Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard, left, has praised the machine combination and noted that many vacant lots in the city have been cut and fogged for mosquitoes during the past few days by use of the one operation. COTTON

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures closed unchanged to 40 cents a bale lower Friday. Trading was slow with the market lacking fresh incentive.

Nearby July was under moderate pressure of liquidation but later recovered partially on buying that some quarters thought was for a Memphis account. The selling reflected sentiment that July will not be able to maintain its high premium over current crop months since the government selling price for cotton is expected to be lower next season.

New crop futures moved in a range of 40 cents a bale. Spot house buying readily absorbed hedging and liquidation.

Brisk selling of cotton cloth for deliveries ranging into early 1960 was reported.

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market was a stiky affair again Friday but it finished slightly on the higher side after dragging along both above and below previous closes.

Both the setbacks and advances were too limited to influence either buying or selling in more than moderate volume. May wheat and rye were down as much as a cent in early activity but they steadied quickly before pulling out stop loss liquidation. Nearly all other contracts shifted only in small fractions.

Cash corn dealers boosted their bids for the fourth consecutive day, offering up to $1.31¾ for No. 2 yellow hard, the highest price since last Sept. 5.

Wheat futures closed ½ cent a bushel lower on May to ⅜ higher on new crop months, May $1.88½-⅜; corn ⅛-⅜ higher, May $1.26⅝-¾; oats ¼ higher to ⅛ lower, May 68⅜; rye ½ lower to ½ higher, May $1.34¾-35; soybeans unchanged to ⅝ higher, May $2.31.

CHICAGO (AP) — The butcher hog market went to a top price of $17.75 Friday, the highest in more than three months, although it was paid very sparingly.

It was the third successive market advance. Prices were steady to 25 cents higher but the gain was mostly on weights over 230 lbs.

The peak was paid for 33 head of 215 lb sorted No. 1 grade, equal to the previous high paid on Jan. 23, and another small lot of 210 lb No. 1s brought $17.60, matching the top of Thursday.

Several lots of mostly No. 1 grade is the 190-215 lb range cleared at $17.25-17.50. The 190-220 lb mixed 1s and 2s were $17.00-17.25 and mixed 1-3 grades of the same weights $16.50-17.00. Sows were steady at $12.00-14.50.

There were not enough slaughter steers or heifers on sale to test the market. The small supply was mostly cows, but a few vealers and bulls sold at quotably steady prices. Vealers were $26.00-34.00 for standard to good kinds and bulls $22.50 - 25.00 for utility and commercial grades.

The sheep market had nothing of sufficient quality on sale to test top prices there. A few ewes moved at $5.00-6.50.

INDUSTRIAL OUTPUT

The nation's industrial output rose to a new record high in April, the government reported. The Federal Reserve Board's index for miners and factories rose two points last month to 149 per cent of the 1947-49 average on the strength of substantial increases in durable goods production.

STEEL

Steel wage negotiators met for "two hours of good exploratory discussions" and then recessed their joint talks until Tuesday. R. Conrad Cooper, chief negotiator for the industry, said the four-man bargaining teams discussed "several matters" but he declined to identify them.

AUTOS

The auto industry, producing 12 to almost 30 per cent ahead of sales, expects to hit the June 30 strike deadline in the steel industry with the highest mid-year new car inventory in history, Ward's Automotive Reports said. At the same time Ward's revealed the companies also are building up their stocks of assembled automobiles against the possible bog-down in the steel industry.

FORD

The Detroit Ford Dealers Assn. and 22 Ford dealers were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of price-fixing. The indictment charged that the dealers and their association engaged in a combination and conspiracy to raise, fix and stabilize the retail prices of Ford cars sold in metropolitan Detroit.

Profit Taking Lowers Stock Mart Prices

NEW YORK (UPI)—Profit-taking, coming on the heels of the rise to new record highs, caused backsliding in recent strong favorites such as the electronic and steel shares and gave the stock market its first decline in a week.

Interest in gold shares was spurred by prevalent talk of the possibilities of any increase in the U.S. price for the precious metal and gains in the group ranged to 4 points in McIntyre Porcupine, 3⅛ in Homestake Mining.

There were other strong features—Texas Pacific Land Trust, Adams-Millis, Warner Brothers, Libbey-Owens-Ford, Mead Corp., Procter & Gamble, Carter Products, Mesta Machine, U.S. Plywood, up 2 to 4 points.

Uncertainty, evident from the start of the week-end session, was heightened just before the close when leading commercial banks hiked their prime lending rates from 4 to 4½ per cent. The move, considered a forerunner of tighter credit all around, was reflected in some easing in the U.S. government bond market but it was said the full effect could not be assessed until Monday.

Volume lightened on the decline to 3,510,000 shares from 3,660,000 on Thursday when the market set a new all-time high.

Electronics were among the hardest hit by the realizing with declines of 5¾ in Zenith, 3½ Motorola, around 2 points in Litton Industries, Texas Instruments and Raytheon.

Steels, market leaders in the Thursday rise on speculation about the meeting of President Eisenhower and Steelworker President David McDonald, were marked down all around — as much as 2⅜ points in U.S. Steel, 3 in Youngstown Sheet & Tube and 1⅞ in Lukens. American Steel Foundries, however, ran up over a point on a favorable earnings report and forecast.

Rails showed losses around a point in Atlantic Coast Line, Rock Island and Great Northern, nearly 2 in Louisville & Nashville but a point gain in Kansas City Southern.

Recent City Invention

Six tractors which pull double duty as insect fogging machines were devised for use by the city sanitary department recently. Athur Barker, right, department superintendent, invented the method which allows fog to be ejected from the exhaust of the tractors at the same time grass is being cut. Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard, left, has praised the machine combination and noted that many vacant lots in the city have been cut and fogged for mosquitoes during the past few days by use of the one operation. COTTON

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures closed unchanged to 40 cents a bale lower Friday. Trading was slow with the market lacking fresh incentive.

Nearby July was under moderate pressure of liquidation but later recovered partially on buying that some quarters thought was for a Memphis account. The selling reflected sentiment that July will not be able to maintain its high premium over current crop months since the government selling price for cotton is expected to be lower next season.

New crop futures moved in a range of 40 cents a bale. Spot house buying readily absorbed hedging and liquidation.

Brisk selling of cotton cloth for deliveries ranging into early 1960 was reported.

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market was a stiky affair again Friday but it finished slightly on the higher side after dragging along both above and below previous closes.

Both the setbacks and advances were too limited to influence either buying or selling in more than moderate volume. May wheat and rye were down as much as a cent in early activity but they steadied quickly before pulling out stop loss liquidation. Nearly all other contracts shifted only in small fractions.

Cash corn dealers boosted their bids for the fourth consecutive day, offering up to $1.31¾ for No. 2 yellow hard, the highest price since last Sept. 5.

Wheat futures closed ½ cent a bushel lower on May to ⅜ higher on new crop months, May $1.88 ½-⅝; corn ⅛-⅜ higher, May $1.26 ⅝-¾; oats ¼ higher to ⅛ lower, May 68⅜; rye ½ lower to ½ higher, May $1.34¾-35; soybeans unchanged to ⅝ higher, May $2.31.

LIVESTOCK

CHICAGO (AP) — The butcher hog market went to a top price of $17.75 Friday, the highest in more than three months, although it was paid very sparingly.

It was the third successive market advance. Prices were steady to 25 cents higher but the gain was mostly on weights over 230 lbs.

The peak was paid for 33 head of 215 lb sorted No. 1 grade, equal to the previous high paid on Jan. 23, and another small lot of 210 lb No. 1s brought $17.60, matching the top of Thursday.

Several lots of mostly No. 1 grade is the 190-215 lb range cleared at $17.25-17.50. The 190-220 lb mixed 1s and 2s were $17.00-17.25 and mixed 1-3 grades of the same weights $16.50-17.00. Sows were steady at $12.00-14.50.

There were not enough slaughter steers or heifers on sale to test the market. The small supply was mostly cows but a few vealers and bulls sold at quotably steady prices. Vealers were $26.00-34.00 for standard to good kinds and bulls $22.50 - 25.00 for utility and commercial grades.

The sheep market had nothing of sufficient quality on sale to test top prices there. A few ewes moved at $5.00-6.50.

Northeast Favored To Win Track Title

McNeese's reign as champion and 11 records are in danger in the annual Gulf States Conference track meet in Natchitoches today where Styron - powered Northeast State is favored to win its first title.

Coach Lew Hartzog's crack Indian thinclads have given GSC track its biggest boost in years with impressive showing in the Southwestern Recreation Meet, the Florida and SLI Relays and the LSU Invitational but the defending champion and Louisiana Tech's deep squad could make this year's affair just as close as last year's when the Cowboys edged Northwestern by a half point.

Tech is the only GSC school to defeat Northeast this year, edging the Indians by 2 2-3 points in a meet at Natchitoches which also included Northwestern.

The Tribe has won five dual or triangular meets, lost to East Texas State by one point and Tech, won the LSU Invitational and the Northwestern Relays and the Southwestern Recreation college division, and finished fourth in the university class in the SLI and Florida Relays.

Tech, well stocked in sprinters headed by Pat Garrett, good middle distance men headed by Russell Lewis and distance runners led by Don Martin, is expected to pick up most of its joints with second and third place finishes.

McNeese has most of the stars back from last year's championship team but most of them haven't turned in as impressive a showing as they did in 1958. McNeese also has the same problem as Northeast—lack of depth.

Northwestern is expected to cominate the field events but is poor in track strength. The other conference members, Southeastern and Southwestern, are figured a few steps below the top four.

Northeast standard-bearers, third in the league last year, have bettered GSC records in the 100, 220, mile, two mile, high and low hurdles and 880 and mile relays this season.

The Styron twins, sophomores Dave and Don, have accounted for most of the record-bettering, Dave having turned in a 9.4 century, three-tenths of a second under the record, and a 20.6 220, six-tenths of a second under the mark, and Don running the high hurdles three-tenths of a second under the record of 14.5 and the lows in 22.4, eight-tenths of a second better than record.

The Styrons also run legs on the Indians' crack mile relay team that has bettered the conference record practically every meet, their best being a 3:15.5 clocking, a full two and seven-tenths seconds under the GSC mark. Jim Mouser and Dick Hays round out the team.

Don "Buddy" Eiland of Northeast holds the season's best time in the mile and two mile with clockings of 4:16.9 and 9:42.6. The league mile record is 4:20.8 and the two-mile mark is 9:51.1.

Another Northeast performer, Gene Hagan, has bettered the GSC's existing pole vault record with a 13 foot, three inch vault but a broken foot bone suffered in the Southwestern Recreation Meet in March has hurt his chances for a new record.

Hagan hit the 13-3 mark twice before being injured but hasn't come close to the conference record of 13-0 since.

Tech's Russell Lewis has bested the existing 880 run mark of 1:55.8 with a 1:54.1 clocking while Northwestern's Dale Hoffpauir is expected to break the record of 206-11 in the javelin. Hoffpauir has thrown the spear 212-2½ this season.

In the broad jump, McNeese's Don Troutman has bettered his own GSC record of 23-½ with a 23-9 leap this season.

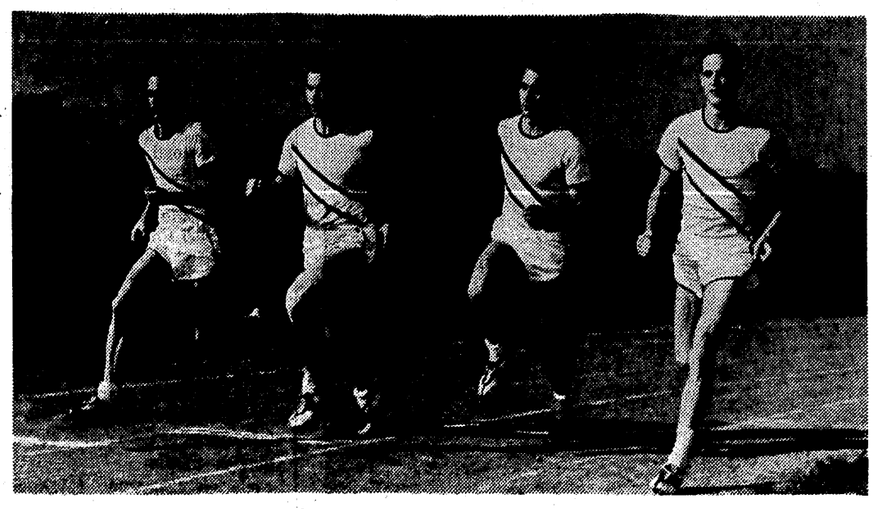
Only in the 440 dash, where Northwestern's Charles Hennigan holds the record of 47.9, the shot put, where Demon Bert Heckel's 51-5½ is the record, the discus, where August Gueldner holds the mark with 151-4½, the high jump the record 6-6 and fifteen-sixteens by NSC's Ted Duggan, the 440 relay, where Northeast holds its only record, a 41.0 clocking and the pole vault do new records appear unlikely.

Oddly enough, Northeast has all four runners back from the record-setting 440 relay team of last year but has never come closer than five seconds of equaling the mark this season in a winning performance although they ran a wind-aided 40.8 in losing to East Texas State. Roger Beumer has replaced Jerry Ivy on the 440 team this season. The Styrons and Don Reynolds are the other members.

Heckel is back for Northwestern but the burly footballer hasn't come close to his record-setting performances of last year during the 1959 season.

Today's meet gets underway at 10 this morning with preliminaries in the 100, 220 and 440 and finals in the javelin and discus. Prelims in the high and low hurdles follow at 10:30.

Finals in 15 events will be held at night in Northwestern stadium with the first to start at 7 o'clock.



Indian Sprint Specialists

Cards Drop Phils Behind Mizell, 8-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) —Miserly 4-hit pitching by Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, coupled with a lusty 12-hit St. Louis barrage—including three home runs and his own two-run triple—buried Philadelphia 8-2 Friday night.

Solo homers by George Crowe, Ken Boyer and Bill White added icing to the cake as the Cardinals opened a four-game series in which they hope to drop Philadelphia into the National League basement spot the Cards now hold.

Mizell's own muff enabled the Phils to end a 23-inning scoring drought. With one out in the fifth, he dropped George Anderson's pop fly. The next man up struck out but Jim Hearn followed with a walk and Richie Ashburn singled to load the bases. Granny Hamner smashed a double to bat in two unearned runs.

Mizell struck out 10 and walked only one. He retired the last 13 Phils in order.

Vinegar Bend sent in the two scores in the Card's four-run second after consecutive singles by Bill White, Joe Cunningham and Hal Smith produced the first run of the inning. Gino Cimoli's single sent Mizell across with the final run of the frame. And George Crowe's following single sent Phils' starter Robin Roberts to the showers.

Hearn replaced Roberts and let the Cardinals have two runs before leaving in favor of a pinch batter in the sixth. Jack Meyer finished up for the Phils.

Morrow In Century Win Over Norton

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Olympic champion Bobby Marrow of Texas won the 100-yard dash, defeating arch rival Ray Norton of San Jose State in a feature race of the Coliseum Relays Friday night.

Morrow, in front from the start, beat Norton to the tape by inches as both were clocked over the grass course in 9.6.

Running side by side, Morrow took a quick lead. He held it down the lane. Norton appeared to gain a few inches in the final 10 yards but could not overhaul the 1956 triple gold medal winner in the Olympic Games at Melbourne.

Bob Poynter of Sas Jose State was third, timed at 9.7.

Bill Dellinger of the Air Force, formerly of Oregon, won the mile run, coming from behind to beat Jerome Walter, Southern California Striders, in the final yards. Ed Moran of Penn State, who took a lead 220 yards from home, appeared to tire and finished third.

The winning time was 4:09.5.

Favored Dallas Long, bedridden by the flu Thursday, tossed the ball 60-11¾ to qualify for the finals but bowed out after his three preliminary puts.

Glenn Davis, former Ohio State runner, won the 440-yard dash in 46.5 with Mike Larrabee, Southern Cal Striders, second.

Eddie Southern of the University of Texas, Davis' chief rival, did not run in the event.

BOSTON (AP) — Catcher Sammy White of the Boston Red Sox suffered a back injury in Friday night's game with the Cleveland Indians. He was taken to a hospital for Xrays.

There was no indication of how the injury occurred.

Harrison Leads Snead Golf Festival At Halfway Point

BY GEORGE BOWEN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Dutch Harrison, the Arkansas golf traveler, rolled into the halfway lead of the Sam Snead Festival Friday by shooting his second straight 2-under par 68.

The 136 total put the 49-year-old Harrison, now playing out of St. Louis, Mo., one stroke up on Snead, the 47-year-old host of the $10,000 tournament. Snead turned in a 69 behind his opening 68 for 137.

The two members of the old guard took over from 25-year-old Doug Sanders of Cedartown, Ga., and 23-year-old Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia, who had held the first round lead with 67s.

Sanders went one over par for a 71 on his second tour of the 6,497-yard course and dropped into third place at 138. Crampton soared to 73 and was in a tie for sixth place at 140.

Temperature during the second round dropped to 52 degrees and was accompanied by gusts of wind so troublesome that only five of the 54 pros were under par.

"It was cold out there and the wind eddied around to be tricky," Harrison said in behalf of his shivering colleagues.

However, Harrison's putter was on the hot side and enabled him to enhance his chances for his third victory in the 12 tournaments on Snead's green pasture. Harrison won in 1955 and 1957 while Snead has triumphed four times, including last year.

Harrison rolled in putts of 20 and 30 feet on the first and third holes to save him pars. A10-footer gave him a birdei on the seventh but he gave back the stroke on the next hole with a bogey when he shot over the green.

A six-iron left him only as inch birdie putt on the 13th and he steered in another from 35 feet on the 15th.

The leaders:

Dutch Harrison	68-68—136
Sam Snead	68-69—137

Doug Farr and Vohn Myers Jr., both of McNeese, shared third place with 218 each.

Northeast Favored To Win Track Title

McNeese's reign as champion and 11 records are in danger in the annual Gulf States Conference track meet in Natchitoches today where Styron - powered Northeast State is favored to win its first title.

Coach Lew Hartzog's crack Indian thinclads have given GSC track its biggest boost in years with impressive showing in the Southwestern Recreation Meet, the Florida and SLI Relays and the LSU Invitational but the defending champion and Louisiana Tech's deep squad could make this year's affair just as close as last year's when the Cowboys edged Northwestern by a half point.

Tech is the only GSC school to defeat Northeast this year, edging the Indians by 2 2-3 points in a meet at Natchitoches which also included Northwestern.

The Tribe has won five dual or triangular meets, lost to East Texas State by one point and Tech, won the LSU Invitational and the Northwestern Relays and the Southwestern Recreation college division, and finished fourth in the university class in the SLI and Florida Relays.

Tech, well stocked in sprinters headed by Pat Garrett, good middle distance men headed by Russell Lewis and distance runners led by Don Martin, is expected to pick up most of its joints with second and third place finishes.

McNeese has most of the stars back from last year's championship team but most of them haven't turned in as impressive a showing as they did in 1958. McNeese also has the same problem as Northeast—lack of depth.

Northwestern is expected to cominate the field events but is poor in track strength. The other conference members, Southeastern and Southwestern, are figured a few steps below the top four.

Northeast standard-bearers, third in the league last year, have bettered GSC records in the 100, 220, mile, two mile, high and low hurdles and 880 and mile relays this season.

The Styron twins, sophomores Dave and Don, have accounted for most of the record-bettering, Dave having turned in a 9.4 century, three-tenths of a second under the record, and a 20.6 220, six-tenths of a second under the mark, and Don running the high hurdles three-tenths of a second under the record of 14.5 and the lows in 22.4, eight-tenths of a second better than record.

The Styrons also run legs on the Indians' crack mile relay team that has bettered the conference record practically every meet, their best being a 3:15.5 clocking, a full two and seven-tenths seconds under the GSC mark. Jim Mouser and Dick Hays round out the team.

Don "Buddy" Eiland of Northeast holds the season's best time in the mile and two mile with clockings of 4:16.9 and 9:42.6. The league mile record is 4:20.8 and the two-mile mark is 9:51.1.

Another Northeast performer, Gene Hagan, has bettered the GSC's existing pole vault record with a 13 foot, three inch vault but a broken foot bone suffered in the Southwestern Recreation Meet in March has hurt his chances for a new record.

Hagan hit the 13-3 mark twice before being injured but hasn't come close to the conference record of 13-0 since.

Tech's Russell Lewis has bested the existing 880 run mark of 1:55.8 with a 1:54.1 clocking while Northwestern's Dale Hoffpauir is expected to break the record of 206-11 in the javelin. Hoffpauir has thrown the spear 212-2½ this season.

In the broad jump, McNeese's Don Troutman has bettered his own GSC record of 23-½ with a 23-9 leap this season.

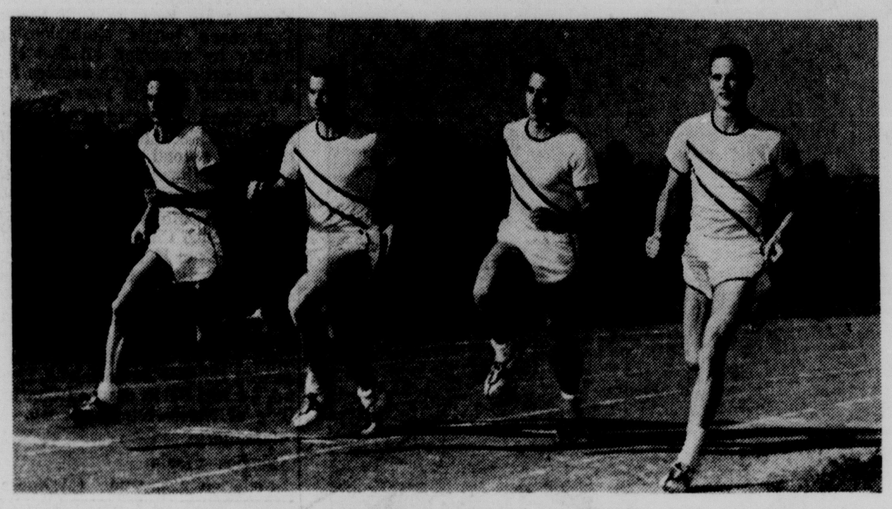
Only in the 440 dash, where Northwestern's Charles Hennigan holds the record of 47.9, the shot put, where Demon Bert Heckel's 51-5½ is the record, the discus, where August Gueldner holds the mark with 151-4½, the high jump the record 6-6 and fifteen-sixteens by NSC's Ted Duggan, the 440 relay, where Northeast holds its only record, a 41.0 clocking and the pole vault do new records appear unlikely.

Oddly enough, Northeast has all four runners back from the record-setting 440 relay team of last year but has never come closer than five seconds of equaling the mark this season in a winning performance although they ran a wind-aided 40.8 in losing to East Texas State. Roger Beumer has replaced Jerry Ivy on the 440 team this season. The Styrons and Don Reynolds are the other members.

Heckel is back for Northwestern but the burly footballer hasn't come close to his record-setting performances of last year during the 1959 season.

Today's meet gets underway at 10 this morning with preliminaries in the 100, 220 and 440 and finals in the javelin and discus. Prelims in the high and low hurdles follow at 10:30.

Finals in 15 events will be held at night in Northwestern stadium with the first to start at 7 o'clock.



Indian Sprint Specialists

Cards Drop Phils Behind Mizell, 8-2

ST. LOUIS (AP) —Miserly 4-hit pitching by Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell, coupled with a lusty 12-hit St. Louis barrage—including three home runs and his own two-run triple—buried Philadelphia 8-2 Friday night.

Solo homers by George Crowe, Ken Boyer and Bill White added icing to the cake as the Cardinals opened a four-game series in which they hope to drop Philadelphia into the National League basement spot the Cards now hold.

Mizell's own muff enabled the Phils to end a 23-inning scoring drought. With one out in the fifth, he dropped George Anderson's pop fly. The next man up struck out but Jim Hearn followed with a walk and Richie Ashburn singled to load the bases. Granny Hamner smashed a double to bat in two unearned runs.

Mizell struck out 10 and walked only one. He retired the last 13 Phils in order.

Vinegar Bend sent in the two scores in the Card's four-run second after consecutive singles by Bill White, Joe Cunningham and Hal Smith produced the first run of the inning. Gino Cimoli's single sent Mizell across with the final run of the frame. And George Crowe's following single sent Phils' starter Robin Roberts to the showers.

Hearn replaced Roberts and let the Cardinals have two runs before leaving in favor of a pinch batter in the sixth. Jack Meyer finished up for the Phils.

Morrow In Century Win Over Norton

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Olympic champion Bobby Marrow of Texas won the 100-yard dash, defeating arch rival Ray Norton of San Jose State in a feature race of the Coliseum Relays Friday night.

Morrow, in front from the start, beat Norton to the tape by inches as both were clocked over the grass course in 9.6.

Running side by side, Morrow took a quick lead. He held it down the lane. Norton appeared to gain a few inches in the final 10 yards but could not overhaul the 1956 triple gold medal winner in the Olympic Games at Melbourne.

Bob Poynter of Sas Jose State was third, timed at 9.7.

Bill Dellinger of the Air Force, formerly of Oregon, won the mile run, coming from behind to beat Jerome Walter, Southern California Striders, in the final yards. Ed Moran of Penn State, who took a lead 220 yards from home, appeared to tire and finished third.

The winning time was 4:09.5.

Favored Dallas Long, bedridden by the flu Thursday, tossed the ball 60-11¾ to qualify for the finals but bowed out after his three preliminary puts.

Eddie Southern of the University of Texas, Davis' chief rival, did not run in the event.

BOSTON (AP) — Catcher Sammy White of the Boston Red Sox suffered a back injury in Friday night's game with the Cleveland Indians. He was taken to a hospital for Xrays.

There was no indication of how the injury occurred.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Dutch Harrison, the Arkansas golf traveler, rolled into the halfway lead of the Sam Snead Festival Friday by shooting his second straight 2-under par 68.

The 136 total put the 49-year-old Harrison, now playing out of St. Louis, Mo., one stroke up on Snead, the 47-year-old host of the $10,000 tournament. Snead turned in a 69 behind his opening 68 for 137.

The two members of the old guard took over from 25-year-old Doug Sanders of Cedartown, Ga., and 23-year-old Bruce Crampton of Sydney, Australia, who had held the first round lead with 67s.

Sanders went one over par for a 71 or his second tour of the 6,497-yard course and dropped into third place at 138. Crampton soared to 73 and was in a tie for sixth place at 140.

Temperature during the second round dropped to 52 degrees and was accompanied by gusts of wind so troublesome that only five of the 54 pros were under par.

"It was cold out there and the wind eddied around to be tricky," Harrison said in behalf of his shivering colleagues.

However, Harrison's putter was on the hot side and enabled him to enhance his chances for his third victory in the 12 tournaments on Snead's green pasture. Harrison won in 1955 and 1957 while Snead has triumphed four times, including last year.

Harrison rolled in putts of 20 and 30 feet on the first and third holes to save him pars. A10-footer gave him a birdei on the seventh but he gave back the stroke on the next hole with a bogey when he shot over the green.

A six-iron left him only as inch birdie putt on the 13th and he steered in another from 35 feet on the 15th.

Dancer, First Landing Set For Duel In 83rd Preakness

BY JOHN CHANDLER

BALTIMORE (AP) — No surprise horses found their way into the entry box for the 83rd Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Saturday afternoon. As expected, 11 owners put $500 apiece to enter the richest 3-year-old race in history. If 11 start, the gross purse will hit $190,000.

However, as the minutes ticked away toward the 4:45 p.m., EST, posttime, the feeling grew that this famed Maryland classic was going to be a duel between Willie Shoemaker on Sword Dancer and Eddie Arcaro piloting First Landing.

If "The Shoe" fits Sword Dancer, it would be the initial Preakness victory for the 27-year-old Texan. He can make racing history by being the first jockey to win the Kentucky Derby and Preakness in the same year on different horses.

Shoemaker, in anever-to-be-forgotten finish, rode Tomy Lee and nosed out Sword Dancer with Bill Boland up in the May 2 Kentucky Derby. Tomy Lee returned to California for a siesta, and trainer Elliott Burch of the Brookmeade Stable engaged Shoemaker for the Preakness. Boland claimed foul against Shoemaker's horse in the Kentucky Derby, but it wasn't allowed.

Arcaro, the master, has been making Preakness history for more than 20 years. He has won hix—a record—and has had an uncanny way of finding his way to the Preakness winner's circle after losing out in the Kentucky Derby.

Eight of the horses in the mile and three-sixteenths Preakness, which is a sixteenth shorter than the Kentucky Derby, competed at Louisville. In addition to Sword Dancer and First Landing, they are Mrs. Halina Braunstein's Royal Orbit (Kentucky Derby 4th), The Clairborne Farm's Dunce (7th). the Elkcam Stable's Open View (8th), Anthony Imbesi's Rico Tesio (10th), C. B. Fischbach's Festival King (11th), and Patrice Jacobs' Our Dad (15th). Emil Dolce's Manassa Mauler, Robert Lytle's Sundown 2nd, and L. G. Robinson's Marauder did not run at Louisville.

Each owner must get up an additional $1,000 to start in the race, to be televised and broadcast by CBS from 4:30 tp 5 p.m., EST.

Any winner, except Manassa Mauler, would net a record $136,200 purse. The Mauler was a supplementary nominee at $10,000, and his net would be $126,300.

A scrap between Sword Dancer and First Landing could be labeled th Battle of Virginia. Sword Dancer is owned by Mrs. Isable Dodge Sloane, who has her farm at Upperville, Va. First Landing is owned by Christopher T. Chenery, with an estate at Doswell, Va.

Latest odds listed Sword Dancer as a slight 7 to 5 choice over First Landing, quoted at 9 to 5.

Royal Orbit. winner of the Preakness Prep on Monday over Manassa Mauler, is third choice at 4 to 1. Manassa Mauler, who upset First Landing in the Wood Memorial, was 8 to 1.

Four final jockey assignments were announced when entries were filed, with Sammy Boulmetis getting Dunce, and Nick Shuk chosen to ride Our Dad. W. M. Cook rides Festival King, with Dick Lawless aboard Marauder.

The weather forecast was for fair and cool weather, with a crowd of about 35,000.

Dunce In Preakness Tuneup

Clairoorne Farm's Dunce starts out on a half-mile "blowout" yesterday in a warmup for today's $190,300 Preakness at Pimlico in Baltimore. With exercise boy George Nobrega riding, Dunce went the half in 48 seconds. Sword Dancer is favored in the race, second in racing's famed "Triple Crown." (AP Wirephoto)

PIERCE BLASTS YANKS

Chisox Take 7th Straight Win, 6-0

NEW YORK (AP)—Little Billy Pierce blanked New York on six singles Friday night as Chicago's second-place White Sox whipped the Yankees 6-0 and stretched their winning streak to seven games, longest of the season in the American League.

It was the third shutout of the season suffered by the Yankees, and the first time they've been blanked by a left-hander in a regular season game since Cleveland's Herb Score did it Aug. 21. 1956.

The White Sox stayed within a half-game of first-place Cleveland, a 4-3 winner at Boston.

Pierce, who has allowed only one run in his last 16 innings, walked but two and struck out seven for his fifth victory against two defeats and second shutout. It was his second success over the seventh - place world champions, who haven't scored against the stubby southpaw in 13 innings.

Yankee starter Whitey Ford was given a quick nudge toward his second defeat in five decisions. The Sox scored once in the first inning and then got rid of the little left-hander, who has been battling a virus, after scoring three runs in the sixth on one of three Yankee errors, a walk, Earl Torgeson's single and a two-run double by Bubba Phillips.

The White Sox, who had nine hits, scored their other two in the eighth against right-hander Jim Coates while matching their longest streak since June. 1956, when they won nine. They also won seven in a row last season.

Pierce, 21-30 lifetime against the Yankees, has won five of his last six decisions against them. He had only two troublesome innings, the seventh and eighth.

Cannon Pulls Out Of SEC Track Meet

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Billy Cannon, strong man of the powerful Louisiana State track team, dropped out of the Southeastern Conference track meet Friday because of an injured leg.

Cannon, who pulled a leg muscle three weeks ago, qualified in the shot put after failing in the 100-yard dash, but said he would not compete because he didn't want to aggravate the injury.

The 205-pound All-America halfback on LSU's national football champions said the leg should be all right in about a month. It will not hold him back, he said, in the football season next fall.

Cannon, who has been timed in :09.4 in the 100 this year, made an attempt to qualify Friday but fell back about 10 strides from the finish and coasted home. His time in the SLI relays last month was the best turned in by a conference runner this spring and is one-tenth of a second better than the SEC mark established by Billy Brown in 1941.

Cannon tossed the shot 51 feet, five and three-quarters inches in Friday's qualifying round. But he said it wasn't good enough and preferred not to risk further damage to his leg by competing in Saturday's finals.

ANNOUNCING . . .

MONROE'S FIRST ANNUAL

JUNIOR BOWLING PROGRAM

For BOYS And GIRLS

Starting JUNE 1st—Ending AUG. 21st

- Junior Leagues, ages 6 thru 17, are now being formed in both of Monroe's Bowling Establishments to begin June 1st. Instructors will be on duty at all times to teach the junior bowlers who do not know how to bowl and also to help those that do.
- Each month bowlers in these leagues will be eligible to enter a twosome tournament with an adult partner. This partner can be a member of the family or any adult that the junior bowler may select. The junior bowlers will be divided into three divisions:

. the BANTAM DIVISION, ages 6 thru 9
. the JUNIOR DIVISION, ages 10 thru 13
. the SENIOR DIVISION, ages 14 thru 17

- It is not necessary that the adult be an experienced bowler because within each division there will be two classes, the novice and bowler class. The adult determines which class the junior will bowl in, depending on whether or not the adult has a 1958-59 average or is a novice. First and second place trophies will be awarded to the winners in each division and each class.
- The winners of the three monthly twosome tournaments will bowl in a house tournament on August 22nd. The winners of the house tournament will receive trophies and be eligible to enter the City Tournament, September 12th to establish the city champions. First and second place trophies will also be awarded in each class within each division to the winners of the city tournament.
- Winners of all tournaments will be decided on pins bowled above their average, thus making it possible for low average bowlers to compete against bowlers with higher averages.

All Boys and Girls who are interested in bowling in this program fill out the form below and take it to the Bowling Establishment in which you desire to bowl. Out of town entries are invited!

B. Fischbach's Festival King (11th), and Patrice Jacobs' Our Dad (15th). Emil Dolce's Manassa Mauler, Robert Lytle's Sundown 2nd, and L. G. Robinson's Marauder did not run at Louisville.

Each owner must get up an additional $1,000 to start in the race, to be televised and broadcast by CBS from 4:30 tp 5 p.m., EST.

Any winner, except Manassa Mauler, would net a record $136,200 purse. The Mauler was a supplementary nominee at $10,000, and his net would be $126,300.

A scrap between Sword Dancer and First Landing could be labeled th Battle of Virginia. Sword Dancer is owned by Mrs. Isable Dodge Sloane, who has her farm at Upperville, Va. First Landing is owned by Christopher T. Chenery, with an estate at Doswell, Va.

Latest odds listed Sword Dancer as a slight 7 to 5 choice over First Landing, quoted at 9 to 5.

Royal Orbit, winner of the Preakness Prep on Monday over Manassa Mauler, is third choice at 4 to 1. Manassa Mauler, who upset First Landing in the Wood Memorial, was 8 to 1.

Four final jockey assignments were announced when entries were filed, with Sammy Boulmetis getting Dunce, and Nick Shuk chosen to ride Our Dad. W. M. Cook rides Festival King, with Dick Lawless aboard Marauder.

The weather forecast was for fair and cool weather, with a crowd of about 35,000.

PIERCE BLASTS YANKS

Chisox Take 7th Straight Win, 6-0

NEW YORK (AP)—Little Billy Pierce blanked New York on six singles Friday night as Chicago's second-place White Sox whipped the Yankees 6-0 and stretched their winning streak to seven games, longest of the season in the American League.

It was the third shutout of the season suffered by the Yankees, and the first time they've been blanked by a left-hander in a regular season game since Cleveland's Herb Score did it Aug. 21, 1956.

The White Sox stayed within a half-game of first-place Cleveland, a 4-3 winner at Boston.

Pierce, who has allowed only one run in his last 16 innings, walked but two and struck out seven for his fifth victory against two defeats and second shutout. It was his second success over the seventh - place world champions, who haven't scored against the stubby southpaw in 13 innings.

Yankee starter Whitey Ford was given a quick nudge toward his second defeat in five decisions. The Sox scored once in the first inning and then got rid of the little left-hander, who has been battling a virus, after scoring three runs in the sixth on one of three Yankee errors, a walk, Earl Torgeson's single and a two-run double by Bubba Phillips.

The White Sox, who had nine hits, scored their other two in the eighth against right-hander Jim Coates while matching their longest streak since June. 1956, when they won nine. They also won seven in a row last season.

Pierce, 21-30 lifetime against the Yankees, has won five of his last six decisions against them. He had only two troublesome innings, the seventh and eighth.

Cannon Pulls Out Of SEC Track Meet

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Billy Cannon, strong man of the powerful Louisiana State track team, dropped out of the Southeastern Conference track meet Friday because of an injured leg.

Cannon, who pulled a leg muscle three weeks ago, qualified in the shot put after failing in the 100-yard dash, but said he would not compete because he didn't want to aggravate the injury.

The 205-pound All-America halfback on LSU's national football champions said the leg should be all right in about a month. It will not hold him back, he said, in the football season next fall.

Cannon, who has been timed in :09.4 in the 100 this year, made an attempt to qualify Friday but fell back about 10 strides from the finish and coasted home. His time in the SLI relays last month was the best turned in by a conference runner this spring and is one-tenth of a second better than the SEC mark established by Billy Brown in 1941.

Cannon tossed the shot 51 feet, five and three-quarters inches in Friday's qualifying round. But he said it wasn't good enough and preferred not to risk further damage to his leg by competing in Saturday's finals.

ANNOUNCING . . .

JUNIOR BOWLING PROGRAM

For BOYS And GIRLS

Starting JUNE 1st—Ending AUG. 21st

- Junior Leagues, ages 6 thru 17, are now being formed in both of Monroe's Bowling Establishments to begin June 1st. Instructors will be on duty at all times to teach the junior bowlers who do not know how to bowl and also to help those that do.
- Each month bowlers in these leagues will be eligible to enter a twosome tournament with an adult partner. This partner can be a member of the family or any adult that the junior bowler may select. The junior bowlers will be divided into three divisions:
  - the BANTAM DIVISION, ages 6 thru 9
  - the JUNIOR DIVISION, ages 10 thru 13
  - the SENIOR DIVISION, ages 14 thru 17
- It is not necessary that the adult be an experienced bowler because within each division there will be two classes, the novice and bowler class. The adult determines which class the junior will bowl in, depending on whether or not the adult has a 1958-59 average or is a novice. First and second place trophies will be awarded to the winners in each division and each class.
- The winners of the three monthly twosome tournaments will bowl in a house tournament on August 22nd. The winners of the house tournament will receive trophies and be eligible to enter the City Tournament, September 12th to establish the city champions. First and second place trophies will also be awarded in each class within each division to the winners of the city tournament.
- Winners of all tournaments will be decided on pins bowled above their average, thus making it possible for low average bowlers to compete against bowlers with higher averages.

All Boys and Girls who are interested in bowling in this program fill out the form below and take it to the Bowling Establishment in which you desire to bowl. Out of town entries are invited!

Bayer Shoots 63 At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Big George Bayer of Gleneagles, Ill., known as one of the longest drivers in golf, reverted to putting wizardry Friday to take a 5-stroke lead in the $22,000 Hot Springs Open at the Arlington Country Club.

Bayer fired a 9-under-par 63 to tie the competitive course record and wrest the tournament lead from Art Wall Jr.

Wall shot a 63 in the tournament's first round Thursday but his putting failed him Friday and he turned in a one-over-par 73 for a 36-hole total of 136.

Tied with Wall for second place were Wes Ellis Jr., Aldecress, N.J.; Gene Littler, Singing Hills, Calif.; Jim Ferree, Winston-Salem, N.C., and Bob Goalby, Crystal River, Fla.

Bayer scored birdies on the 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th holes, then sank a 20-foot putt on the 18th for a 3 on the par 5 hole.

His birdie putts include two 2-footers, a 25-footer and an 18-footer.

"I asid yesterday that man (Wall) must be in another world to shoot a 63," Bayer said. "Now I know he was."

Bayer said he played relaxed and "did everything right."

The record of 63 was set in 1955 by Doug Higgins of Fort Worth, Tex.

Stan Hopes To Shake Slump With Change

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial, caught in the quick sand of a .253 batting average, hopes another change in his working hours will lift him—and the St. Louis Cardinals—onto solid ground again.

"From now on I'm going to skip a night game and play the day game if it's scheduled the next day," Musial announced Friday in the wake of the Red Birds' 8-7 loss to the Milwaukee Braves Thursday night.

The 38-year-old baseball great was down in the dumps again over his inability to recapture the timing that has made him one of the most feared left-handed batters in the history of the game.

The Cards muffed a sweet opportunity to turn the tables on the Braves in the bottom of the ninth. With one out, three runs in and the bases loaded, Lew Burdette served up a double-play pitch to Musial—and that was that.

"I still feel more like playing ball in the daytime," he said. "This way I'll still be playing the same number of games and I'll be getting the same amount of rest."

Musial's revised work plan went into effect Friday night when the Cardinals opened a four-game series with the Phillies.

The man planned to sit out the night opener, play the day game Saturday and the first game of the twinbill Sunday.

It's interesting to note that a year ago Musial batted a beefy .377 at night and juht .297 in the daytime, in the same number of at bats.

Athletics Sign College Players For Farm Clubs

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics announced Friday the signing of two college infielders for its farm clubs.

They are William Dukes of Orangeburg, S. C., a student at Newberry College in South Carolina, who will go to Sioux City, Iowa, of the Three-I League, and Jimmy Coggins of Albemarle, S. C., a student at Pfeifer College in South Carolina, who will report to Plainview, Tex., in the Sonhomore League.

Gene Howard Casts Lot With Texas College

Gene Howard, Neville's breakaway halfback, yesterday said he had signed an athletic scholarship at Abilene Christian College and would attend the Texas school next fall instead of Northeast.

A four-year letterman at Neville, Howard said he visited the Abilene campus about a month ago at the invitation of head coach N. L. "Nick" Nicholson and decided to attend the college. He plans to enter college this fall and study industrial arts.

Sought by two other colleges in addition to Northeast and Abilene, Howard captained the Neville team last year and was named the most valuable back.

The son of Mayor and Mrs. W. L. Howard, Gene also participated in track and baseball at Neville, turning in a 10.2 clocking in the 100-yard dash in track and playing the outfield on the baseball team.

Bethea Named As Replacement For Zora Folley

TITLE ALMOST CLINCHED

Americans Stagger British With 4-0 Walker Cup Lead

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — American amateur golfers staggered Britian's Walker Cup hopes by sweeping to a rare 4-0 lead Friday in the Scotch foursome matches of the international rivalry.

In Scotch foursomes, two men on a team play the same ball, hitting alternate shots. Now the British are faced with the task of winning seven of Saturday's eight singles matches to capture the trophy, and it looks like an impossible assignment.

Only three times before in the 37-year-old series have U.S. teams swept all the foursome points and never before has a team made such a blazing run through so fine a collection of British golfers.

Harvie Ward of San Francisco used a hickory-shafted putter older than himself to knock in a 15-foot putt for one of the comeback American victories. The putt, one of three beauties by Ward, gave Harvie and Dr. Frank Taylor of Pomona, Calif., a 1-up triumph over Reid Jack and Douglas Sewell.

Ten minutes later Bill Hyndman, Abington, Pa., insurance executive, and Tommy Aaron, Gainesville, Ga., collegian, closed out the top British Isles pair of Joe Carr and Guy Wolstenholme, 1-up, on the same home green.

Then, four minutes later the American kid team of Jack Nicklaus, 19, of Columbus, Ohio, and Ward Wettlaufer, 23, of Buffalo, N.Y., whipped the British youngsters, Alex Shepperson, and Michael Lunt, 2 and 1.

The American youngsters had been down by four holes. They pulled it back and closed with brilliant golf.

The only match that was not a thriller was the lopsided 9 and 8 victory for American Captain Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., over the inept British pair of Arthur Perowne and Michael Bonallack.

At one brief time early in the outgoing nine of the afternoon round three British teams were in the lead.

By the time those three foursomes passed the 13th tee, the Americans had evened each of the three matches. Great finishing runs won each of them, and only Coe, the U.S. champion, and Patton were not called on to go to the whip in the stretch.

The 4-0 sweep is matched in Walker Cup matches only by those of 1928 at Wheaton, Ill., 1932 at Brookline, Mass., and 1955 at St. Andrews.

In 17 Walker Cup matches the Americans have lost only once—in 1938.

The Britons faded in the finish just as they did two years ago at Minikhada, Minn., on the final day.

The Californians, Ward and Taylor, went to lunch one down after a rough morning in which the lead had swayed back and forth.

Jack and Sewell made it two up on the 19th and then Taylor made his greatest contribution. Just when it looked as if the match was going the British way, Taylor took his time on the 20th green, studied a sidehill 10-foot putt, and knocked it in.

Patton and Coe crushed Bonallack and Perowne with immaculate golf. Perowne, badly off form, could do little right. The Americans won the first four holes and the British pair never recovered.

PERRY PRESERVES WIN

Tribe Nips Bosox To Maintain Lead

BOSTON (AP)—Jim Perry relieved Jim (Mudcat) Grant in the ninth inning and preserved a 4-3 victory over Boston and Cleveland's half-game lead in the American League.

Grant, the 23-year-old right-hander off to a fast start in his sophomore year, was sailing along on a 3-hitter going into the ninth before Frank Malzone looped a single to left and Jackie Jensen lashed his ninth home run.

It was the fourth straight setback for the home forces.

Rocky Colvaito and Minnie Minoso—neither of whom was retired in the contest played before 23,412 Fenway Park fans—hit home runs in the winning cause.

Colavito hammered loser Tom Brewer's 1-1 changeup delivery in the second inning for his ninth homer. The drive carried on a line into the left field screen.

A walk to Colavito preceded Minoso's fourth homer to the same quarters in the third, sending the score to 4-0.

The other Cleveland tally came in the second on a Minoso single, some strange Red Sox defensive play and a Billy Martin run-producing safety.

Grant, who posted his second triumph in as many decisions, was reached by the Red Sox after two were out in the fifth. Brewer walked and rode home on Marty Keough's 415-foot triple to deepest center. Then Grant fanned dangerous Pete Runnels on a 3-2 pitch.

Bob Nieman's Clout Beats Detroit, 2 To 1

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bob Nieman's dramatic ninth inning home run with Bob Boyd on base lifted Baltimore to a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers Friday night.

The Detroit lefty had subdued the Orioles on only three scattered singles before Boyd opened the ninth with a single. Then Nieman, hitless up to that point, came through with his timley blow—his fifth homer of the year—to hand Mossi his second defeat. He has one victory this season.

Billy Loes, who took over from starter Jerry Walker in the eighth, got credit for the win, his third compared to one defeat.

The Orioles gained their second victory in the last six home games, and Jimmie Dykes suffered only his third loss since taking over as manager from Bill Norman. Dykes has guided the Tigers to eight wins.

Lopez' Homer Gives A's 4-2 Win Over Nats

WASHINGTON (AP)—A three-run homer by Hector Lopez in the seventh inning Friday night gave the Kansas City Athletics a 4-2 victory over Washington and moved the A's to within .003 of the fourth-place Senators.

Washington starting pitcher Russ Kemmerer took a 2-0 lead into the decisive seventh and had permitted no Kansas City runner beyond second base. However, he walked leadoff man Hal Smith and with two out issued a pass to Whitey Herzog. Lopez followed with his fourth homer into the left field bleachers.

In the second inning, Jim Lemon doubled for Washington, took third on Julio Becquer's single and scored as Herbert's pick-off throw to first was wide.

In the sixth, Becquer walked, stole second, and scored on J.W. Porter's single. That was all of Washington's scoring.

Bayer Shoots 63 At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Big George Bayer of Gleneagles, Ill., known as one of the longest drivers in golf, reverted to putting wizardry Friday to take a 5-stroke lead in the $22,000 Hot Springs Open at the Arlington Country Club.

Bayer fired a 9-under-par 63 to tie the competitive course record and wrest the tournament lead from Art Wall Jr.

Wall shot a 63 in the tournament's first round Thursday but his putting failed him Friday and he turned in a one-over-par 73 for a 36-hole total of 136.

Tied with Wall for second place were Wes Ellis Jr., Aldecress, N.J.; Gene Littler, Singing Hills, Calif.; Jim Ferree, Winston-Salem, N.C., and Bob Goalby, Crystal River, Fla.

Bayer scored birdies on the 14th, 15th, 16th and 17th holes, then sank a 20-foot putt on the 18th for a 3 on the par 5 hole.

His birdie putts include two 2-footers, a 25-footer and an 18-footer.

"I asid yesterday that man (Wall) must be in another world to shoot a 63," Bayer said. "Now I know he was."

Bayer said he played relaxed and "did everything right."

The record of 63 was set in 1955 by Doug Higgins of Fort Worth, Tex.

Stan Hopes To Shake Slump With Change

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stan Musial, caught in the quick sand of a .253 batting average, hopes another change in his working hours will lift him—and the St. Louis Cardinals—onto solid ground again.

"From now on I'm going to skip a night game and play the day game if it's scheduled the next day," Musial announced Friday in the wake of the Red Birds' 8-7 loss to the Milwaukee Braves Thursday night.

The 38-year-old baseball great was down in the dumps again over his inability to recapture the timing that has made him one of the most feared left-handed batters in the history of the game.

The Cards muffed a sweet opportunity to turn the tables on the Braves in the bottom of the ninth. With one out, three runs in and the bases loaded, Lew Burdette served up a double-play pitch to Musial—and that was that.

"I still feel more like playing ball in the daytime," he said. "This way I'll still be playing the same number of games and I'll be getting the same amount of rest."

Musial's revised work plan went into effect Friday night when the Cardinals opened a four-game series with the Phillies.

The man planned to sit out the night opener, play the day game Saturday and the first game of the twinbill Sunday.

It's interesting to note that a year ago Musial batted a beefy .377 at night and juht .297 in the daytime, in the same number of at bats.

This season Musial's argument that night ball games shorten careers is buttressed by his own bat work.

Gene Howard Casts Lot With Texas College

Gene Howard, Neville's breakaway halfback, yesterday said he had signed an athletic scholarship at Abilene Christian College and would attend the Texas school next fall instead of Northeast.

A four-year letterman at Neville, Howard said he visited the Abilene campus about a month ago at the invitation of head coach N. L. "Nick" Nicholson and decided to attend the college. He plans to enter college this fall and study industrial arts.

Sought by two other colleges in addition to Northeast and Abilene, Howard captained the Neville team last year and was named the most valuable back.

The son of Mayor and Mrs. W. L. Howard, Gene also participated in track and baseball at Neville, turning in a 10.2 clocking in the 100-yard dash in track and playing the outfield on the baseball team.

Americans Stagger British With 4-0 Walker Cup Lead

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — American amateur golfers staggered Britian's Walker Cup hopes by sweeping to a rare 4-0 lead Friday in the Scotch foursome matches of the international rivalry.

In Scotch foursomes, two men on a team play the same ball, hitting alternate shots. Now the British are faced with the task of winning seven of Saturday's eight singles matches to capture the trophy, and it looks like an impossible assignment.

Only three times before in the 37-year-old series have U.S. teams swept all the foursome points and never before has a team made such a blazing run through so fine collection of British golfers.

Harvie Ward of San Francisco used a hickory-shafted putter older than himself to knock in a 15-foot putt for one of the comeback American victories. The putt, one of three beauties by Ward, gave Harvie and Dr. Frank Taylor of Pomona, Calif., a 1-up triumph over Reid Jack and Douglas Sewell.

Ten minutes later Bill Hyndman, Abington, Pa., insurance executive, and Tommy Aaron, Gainesville, Ga., collegian, closed out the top British Isles pair of Joe Carr and Guy Wolstenholme, 1-up, on the same home green.

Then, four minutes later the American kid team of Jack Nicklaus, 19, of Columbus, Ohio, and Ward Wettlaufer, 23, of Buffalo, N.Y., whipped the British youngsters, Alex Shepperson, and Michael Lunt, 2 and 1.

The American youngsters had been down by four holes. They pulled it back and closed with brilliant golf.

The only match that was not a thriller was the lopsided 9 and 8 victory for American Captain Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., over the inept British pair of Arthur Perowne and Michael Bonallack.

At one brief time early in the outgoing nine of the afternoon round three British teams were in the lead.

By the time those three foursomes passed the 13th tee, the Americans had evened each of the three matches. Great finishing runs won each of them, and only Coe, the U.S. champion, and Patton were not called on to go to the whip in the stretch.

The 4-0 sweep is matched in Walker Cup matches only by those of 1928 at Wheaton, Ill., 1932 at Brookline, Mass., and 1955 at St. Andrews.

In 17 Walker Cup matches the Americans have lost only once—in 1938.

The Britons faded in the finish just as they did two years ago at Minikhada, Minn., on the final day.

The Californians, Ward and Taylor, went to lunch one down after a rough morning in which the lead had swayed back and forth.

Jack and Sewell made it two up on the 19th and then Taylor made his greatest contribution. Just when it looked as if the match was going the British way, Taylor took his time on the 20th green, studied a sidehill 10-foot putt, and knocked it in.

That shot saved the Americans from losing another hole and turned the tide of the match.

Patton and Coe crushed Bonallack and Perowne with immaculate golf. Perowne, badly off form, could do little right. The Americans won the first four holes and the British pair never recovered.

Athletics Sign College Players For Farm Clubs

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics announced Friday the signing of two college infielders for its farm clubs.

They are William Dukes of Orangeburg, S. C., a student at Newberry College in South Carolina, who will go to Sioux City, Iowa, of the Three-I League, and Jimmy Coggins of Albemarle, S. C., a student at Pfeifer College in South Carolina, who will report to Plainview, Tex., in the Sophomore League.

PERRY PRESERVES WIN

Tribe Nips Bosox To Maintain Lead

BOSTON (AP)—Jim Perry relieved Jim (Mudcat) Grant in the ninth inning and preserved a 4-3 victory over Boston and Cleveland's half-game lead in the American League.

Grant, the 23-year-old right-hander off to a fast start in his sophomore year, was sailing along on a 3-hitter going into the ninth before Frank Malzone looped a single to left and Jackie Jensen lashed his ninth home run.

It was the fourth straight setback for the home forces.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

Nap Times Vary For The Small Fry

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Nap times are as variable as the babies who take them. Whether a child naps once or twice a day or not at all is something over which the parent has little control except to present the opportunity.

Beginning at about one year or earlier the baby may show a sudden distaste for two naps a day. Instead of going to sleep he sets up a yell and even if he falls asleep, he may stay asleep only 15 minutes or so and then he is awake and raring to go.

Since this nap has been habitual since the baby's birth, it is hard for the mother to admit that he probably has outgrown the need for it.

What she does discover is that this wide-awake child cannot always stay awake until 12 o'clock when lunch is due, and so she has to put the lunch back to 11 o'clock and slip him into bed immediately afterwards. His capacity for staying awake all morning will grow along with him.

Then at two to three years of age there is another change in his nap habits. Now he doesn't want one at all. He hangs over the side of the crib, or climbs out of it nimbly and appears in the living room saying, "No more sleep," until his mother is frantic.

Children have been kept in all afternoon because the mother refuses to recognize that maybe they can't sleep. Then exhausted, they have f a l l e n off at four o'clock and s l e p t past dinner time, throwing their dinner and evening bedtime completely out of kilter.

Admit defeat when it stares you in the face. Put up the blinds, give the child some toys and explain that he is to stay in bed and rest until the clock says it is time to get up. Show him when an hour will have passed and be as good as your word and take him out, sleep or no sleep.

If Mother can lie down at the same time, the quiet, confortable sense of companionship and the lack of pressure to go to sleep may work their own magic and off he'll go without a word.

But if he doesn't, the quiet hour of rest will keep him peaceful until late in the day, and then putting his dinner hour back an hour so that he'll be in bed an hour earlier will help to dispel that late afternoon crankiness.

Ah To Be A Secretary Forty Years From Now

Are you a working girl? If so, do your feet hurt? How would you like to have a job where you worked with your brain one to four hours a day, three days a week, with a two - month vacation? Today's Secretary has cast a well - researched eye into the future and painted a picture of a good secretarial job in the year 2,000 A. D., just 41 years hence. If you can stand the thoughts of such an easy life, take off your shoes and relax while we tell you about it:

After giving your stramlined two - passenger scooter car to the automatic parking elevator, you walk to your private office (all secretaries have private offices to shut out machine noise and vibration) and you take for granted the deep carpeting, the gay colors, the purified, humidified air. On your table (desks went out years ago) you find computer reports from their night's work.

Maybe it's nine o'clock, maybe ten, eleven or noon. Who cares? Your time of arrival is determined by what's to be done, not by the number of hours you put in. You stay for an hour. Perhaps two, three or four. Seldom more. In a real emergency you might put in six hours, but this would be rare. When you finish, you simply take off. And since all office hours are staggered, you will not run into any traffic rush.

As a secretary in the office of 2,000 A. D. your duties are largely administrative. When the boss calls you he does so by signal lights which also tell what he wants, and it's seldom you take along a notebook. He does most of his dictating to a machine. In fact he can dictate from any telephone, just by dialing a special number.

When you telephone, you dial by voice, and if you want to you can flip a switch so the person called can see you, and vice versa. The old filing cabinets are gone. In one small compartment you store thousands of microfilmed copies and when you want to look at one you dial a number and the document is projected onto a hideaway screen.

You have a typewriter of course, but it's far different from those ancient 1959 models. Quiet as a whisper, its electronic keyboard is connected with similar machines in branch offices —sending memos this way is so much faster than by mail.

"You are a very important person because of your many skills," says Today's Secretary. "You are, of course, an expert in the field of human and public relations. In a sense, you help counteract a machine - like atmosphere in the office. You are trained in technology. You know what makes a computer compute and what can be expected or not expected from electronic equipment of all kinds. Not that you have a screwdriver and hammer handy for repair work. But you do know the basic principles of programming, of electronic memory storage. You know when a job needs a human hand and when it needs a machine's speed and accuracy. When you scribble a note with a special pencil on a special pad it will be for a mammoth computer in the basement that has been trained to accept human writing, code it and follow instructions.

Most important, you are relaxed and so is the boss. Vacations provide a change of scene, but they are no longer a lifesaver thrown to a girl drowning in work. And there is one boss who never — but never — makes a mistake . . is always prompt . . . means what he says . . . would never think of suggesting an after - hours cocktail . . . can be trusted implicitly and never loses his temper. Who he? An electronic computer, of course.

SEWING TIP

Make your youngsters some pint - sized wash cloths by cutting toweling into squares sized to the child's age. You will find that with these the child is more willing to wash his face and hands. Children do like things that are their very own. Use different colors for each child so that he or she can recognize their own cloth. While you are at it make some small towels.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Nap times are as variable as the babies who take them. Whether a child naps once or twice a day or not at all is something over which the parent has little control except to present the opportunity.

Beginning at about one year or earlier the baby may show a sudden distaste for two naps a day. Instead of going to sleep he sets up a yell and even if he falls asleep, he may stay asleep only 15 minutes or so and then he is awake and raring to go.

Since this nap has been habitual since the baby's birth, it is hard for the mother to admit that he probably has outgrown the need for it.

What she does discover is that this wide-awake child cannot always stay awake until 12 o'clock when lunch is due, and so she has to put the lunch back to 11 o'clock and slip him into bed immediately afterwards. His capacity for staying awake all morning will grow along with him.

Then at two to three years of age there is another change in his nap habits. Now he doesn't want one at all. He hangs over the side of the crib, or climbs out of it nimbly and appears in the living room saying, "No more sleep," until his mother is frantic.

Children have been kept in all afternoon because the mother refuses to recognize that maybe they can't sleep. Then exhausted, they have fallen off at four o'clock and slept past dinner time, throwing their dinner and evening bedtime completely out of kilter.

Admit defeat when it stares you in the face. Put up the blinds, give the child some toys and explain that he is to stay in bed and rest until the clock says it is time to get up. Show him when an hour will have passed and be as good as your word and take him out, sleep or no sleep.

If Mother can lie down at the same time, the quiet, confortable sense of companionship and the lack of pressure to go to sleep may work their own magic and off he'll go without a word.

But if he doesn't, the quiet hour of rest will keep him peaceful until late in the day, and then putting his dinner hour back an hour so that he'll be in bed an hour earlier will help to dispel that late afternoon crankiness.

Ah To Be A Secretary Forty Years From Now

Are you a working girl? If so, do your feet hurt? How would you like to have a job where you worked with your brain one to four hours a day, three days a week, with a two - month vacation? Today's Secretary has cast a well - researched eye into the future and painted a picture of a good secretarial job in the year 2,000 A. D., just 41 years hence. If you can stand the thoughts of such an easy life, take off your shoes and relax while we tell you about it:

After giving your stramlined two - passenger scooter car to the automatic parking elevator, you walk to your private office (all secretaries have private offices to shut out machine noise and vibration) and you take for granted the deep carpeting, the gay colors, the purified, humidified air. On your table (desks went out years ago) you find computer reports from their night's work.

Maybe it's nine o'clock, maybe ten, eleven or noon. Who cares? Your time of arrival is determined by what's to be done, not by the number of hours you put in. You stay for an hour. Perhaps two, three or four. Seldom more. In a real emergency you might put in six hours, but this would be rare. When you finish, you simply take off. And since all office hours are staggered, you will not run into any traffic rush.

As a secretary in the office of 2,000 A. D. your duties are largely administrative. When the boss calls you he does so by signal lights which also tell what he wants, and it's seldom you take along a notebook. He does most of his dictating to a machine. In fact he can dictate from any telephone, just by dialing a special number.

When you telephone, you dial by voice, and if you want to you can flip a switch so the person called can see you, and vice versa. The old filing cabinets are gone. In one small compartment you store thousands of microfilmed copies and when you want to look at one you dial a number and the document is projected onto a hideaway screen.

You have a typewriter of course, but it's far different from those ancient 1959 models. Quiet as a whisper, its electronic keyboard is connected with similar machines in branch offices —sending memos this way is so much faster than by mail.

"You are a very important person because of your many skills," says Today's Secretary. "You are, of course, an expert in the field of human and public relations. In a sense, you help counteract a machine - like atmosphere in the office. You are trained in technology. You know what makes a computer compute and what can be expected or not expected from electronic equipment of all kinds. Not that you have a screwdriver and hammer handy for repair work. But you do know the basic principles of programming, of electronic memory storage. You know when a job needs a human hand and when it needs a machine's speed and accuracy. When you scribble a note with a special pencil on a special pad it will be for a mammoth computer in the basement that has been trained to accept human writing, code it and follow instructions.

Most important, you are relaxed and so is the boss. Vacations provide a change of scene, but they are no longer a lifesaver thrown to a girl drowning in work. And there is one boss who never — but never — makes a mistake . . is always prompt . . . means what he says . . . would never think of suggesting an after - hours cocktail . . . can be trusted implicitly and never loses his temper. Who he? An electronic computer, of course.

SEWING TIP

Make your youngsters some pint - sized wash cloths by cutting toweling into squares sized to the child's age. You will find that with these the child is more willing to wash his face and hands. Children do like things that are their very own. Use different colors for each child so that he or she can recognize their own cloth. While you are at it make some small towels.

Walker was awarded a grant by the Southern Fellowships Fund to complete his dissertation, the first such grant to be received by a Northeast State instructor.

The dissertation, "Tennessee, 1796-1821," is concerned with a quarter century of public affairs in Tennessee, and emphasizes the nature of politics in a one-party frontier state.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Faithful Reader Should Take Advice

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a mixed-up, unhappy 16-year-old girl. I went steady almost two years with a wonderful guy named Hap. I gave him too many privileges (which I'm sorry for now.) He went into the armed forces several months ago, and it was understood that my heart belong to him, but I could date others.

Now I've fallen for another fellow who is perfectly divine. I KNOW I'm in love with him, and the other romance was just puppy-love. I wrote Hap that it was all over between us and I hoped he'd wish me luck.

Instead of wishing me luck he said he'd break my neck if I didn't keep my word and wait for him. He also said he'd tell the other guy everything and I'd come out looking pretty cheap. (My new fellow thinks I'm lily white.)

I've been a faithful reader of your column since I was 13. Please help me, Ann. Hap comes home next month.—KITTEN

DEAR KITTEN: If you've been a faithful reader of my column since you were 13 how come you haven't been taking the advice?

My math expert tells me you started to go steady at age 14. This was Mistake Number One. That bit about "too many privileges" was Mistake Number Two, which often follows Mistake Number One.

Now, of course you must tell your current fellow about Hap. (No—not every little detail natch) but enough to give him the idea that you spent a lot of time with Hap and that you weren't an angel of virtue.) In this way you reduce the effectiveness of the heel's artillery in case he follows through on his threat. Above all, don't let Hap blackmail you.

DEAR ANN: I'll leave it to you. Who is wrong, my husband or me?

Every morning I drive him to work because I like to have the car during the day and if he drove it would just sit outside his office. It's also convenient because I drop our youngster off at school.

Now and then when we see his fellow office workers at the bus stop we pick them up. I've always sat in the front seat with my husband and he never suggested it should be any different.

This morning we picked up the office manager who my husband looks up to as quite a big shot. When he opened the back door to sit with the boy my husband said "Margaret, get in the back so Tom can sit up front with me." I was shocked and humiliated but I got in the back seat and said nothing.

That evening I told him how I felt and his reply was "When a woman is too ignorant to know her place, then a man has to tell her." How about this?—BURNT

DEAR BURNT: You husband had no business putting you in the back seat.

As far as a woman "knowing her place" is concerned, tell him you always thought a woman's place was beside her husband — through thick and thin, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health 'til death does them part.

DEAR ANN: Our oldest daughter received an engagement ring for Christmas. We all like her fiance a great deal, but he practically lives at our house and I'm tired of it.

He manages to stay for every meal and feels free to snack on whatever is in the house. When I mentioned this to my daughter she practically became livid with rage. Her father took her side, and now I'm in the dog house. Was I wrong?—THELMA

DEAR THELMA: Some people have trouble being gencrous with food because of poverty suffered in their youth. If this is your problem, make special effort, in the interest of family harmony, to overcome the pattern established early in your life.

Dear Ann: The woman I married was a widow with four children, 22, 20, 18 and 6. The children don't know we're married. We are living apart.

When I courted her the children seemed to like me. As soon as they saw we were serious they told their mother I was "a nut."

My wife loves the children and has always worked hard to support them. The 18-year-old girl is the only one who has a job. The boys (22 and 20) loaf all day and ask their mother for spending money. They treat her like a servant ("Wake me up at 10:00 and have ham and eggs ready.") She admits she's spoiled them and they have no respect for her.

When I call on the phone they hang up on me. I'm getting sick of living apart. I want to be with her as a husband should. She says "When the kids get a little older." What do you suggest? — Parted Mates

Sometimes children sneak off and get married because they are under age and can't get parental consent. This is the first time I ever heard of adults sneaking off because they couldn't get the children's consent.

Go — together — to a clergyman. Perhaps he can persuade her that she's being unfair to you, herself and the children. She's rearing a pack of emotional cripples who will never be able to stand up to life.

Dear Ann: Six years ago our daughter graduated from high school. She was a good student and won a college scholarship. After the first quarter she came home and announced she was tired of school and wanted to get married. We were heartbroken and begged her to get her education first. She was deaf to our pleading, and married a few months later.

Now their little boy is 4-years-old. She wants to return to college. Last week she asked if I'd take care of her child. This means I'd have to give up church work and club activities, and all the other pleasures that come at my time of life.

My husband says I should refuse. He feels I've earned the privilege of doing the things I enjoy. He insists the child is THEIR responsibility, not ours, and I'd be a fool to take over.

If my daughter were ill or if something happened to her husband and she had to go to work I wouldn't hesitate, but under these conditions what do you think? — Mrs. J. E.

Dear J. E.: I agree with your husband. You reared YOUR family — now let your daughter do the same.

Dear Ann Landers: I started to go with this boy last year. He was rather wild and had been in trouble for ditching school and hub-cap "disappearances". When they found a pint of whiskey in his locker he was suspended from school.

The whole world was against him so I offered my friendship when he needed it most. He promised never to get in trouble again, and he's kept his word.

The problem is that I don't want to go steady any more as I'm missing out on too much fun. When I tried to break off he said he'd go bad again if I dropped him and then it'd be my fault. What can I do? — Jill

Dear Jill: He's found your Achilles heel (the heel). Tell him goodbye and good luck. You're a young girl — not a reform school. Don't let him play on your sympathy and use you as a crutch forever. Do what's best for YOU.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

JAMES O. LANCASTER

Lancaster Appointed To College

President George T. Walker of Northeast State college has announced that James O. Lancaster, principal at LaSalle High School at Olla for the past four years, has been appointed to the college faculty as the new supervisor of scholarships and placements.

The appointment, approved by the State Board of Education, will become effective June 8.

The position Lancaster will hold at Northeast is a new one, as student scholarships have been handled on a part time basis by Associate Professor A. L. Tatum, and the placement of graduates and former students has been handled by various members of the staff.

Lancaster, a 1942 grauate of Ferriday High School, served in the U. S. Navy from December 1943 to May 1946, principally in the Pacific Theater.

His education includes a B. S. degree in accounting at Northeastern in 1949, and an M. A. degree in educational administration from George Peabody College in 1954.

Prior to becoming principal of LaSalle High, he was assistnat coach and mathematics teacher at Ferriday High School for five years.

Tips On How To Buy Glassware

One of the bride's most exciting, but sometimes perplexing adventures, is the selection of her table appointments. Even though her plan of living may lean toward the casual manner, it does not mean careless living at all.

Today, glass, china and silver are as varied as any other element in the home and it is not necessary to be bound by a set of rules. New brides, or even seasoned homemakers, will find that the predominate factors to consider before purchasing table accessories are: shape, design and color. It is not necessary to match the three elements in total. However, care should be taken to select patterns that blend well with other furnishings in the room. This does not mean that periods cannot be mixed. It merely means that there should be harmony among all three.

Walker To Get Doctor's Degree

William A. Walker Jr., assistant professor of history at Northeast Louisiana State College, has completed requirements for the doctor of philosophy degree at the University of Texas. The degree will be conferred at the June commencement.

Walker was awarded a grant by the Southern Fellowships Fund to complete his dissertation, the first such grant to be received by a Northeast State instructor.

The dissertation, "Tennessee, 1796-1821," is concerned with a quarter century of public affairs in Tennessee, and emphasizes the nature of politics in a one-party frontier state.

He taught at East Central Mississippi Junior College, George Peabody College, and the University of Texas before joining the faculty of Northeast State four years ago.

YOUR PROBLEMS

By ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a mixed-up, unhappy 16-year-old girl. I went steady almost two years with a wonderful guy named Hap. I gave him too many privileges (which I'm sorry for now.) He went into the armed forces several months ago, and it was understood that my heart belong to him, but I could date others.

Now I've fallen for another fellow who is perfectly divine. I KNOW I'm in love with him, and the other romance was just puppy-love. I wrote Hap that it was all over between us and I hoped he'd wish me luck.

Instead of wishing me luck he said he'd break my neck if I didn't keep my word and wait for him. He also said he'd tell the other guy everything and I'd come out looking pretty cheap. (My new fellow thinks I'm lily white.)

I've been a faithful reader of your column since I was 13. Please help me, Ann. Hap comes home next month.—KITTEN

DEAR KITTEN: If you've been a faithful reader of my column since you were 13 how come you haven't been taking the advice?

My math expert tells me you started to go steady at age 14. This was Mistake Number One. That bit about "too many privileges" was Mistake Number Two, which often follows Mistake Number One.

Now, of course you must tell your current fellow about Hap. (No—not every little detail natch) but enough to give him the idea that you spent a lot of time with Hap and that you weren't an angel of virtue.) In this way you reduce the effectiveness of the heel's artillery in case he follows through on his threat. Above all, don't let Hap blackmail you.

DEAR ANN: I'll leave it to you. Who is wrong, my husband or me?

Every morning I drive him to work because I like to have the car during the day and if he drove it would just sit outside his office. It's also convenient because I drop our youngster off at school.

Now and then when we see his fellow office workers at the bus stop we pick them up. I've always sat in the front seat with my husband and he never suggested it should be any different.

This morning we picked up the office manager who my husband looks up to as quite a big shot. When he opened the back door to sit with the boy my husband said "Margaret, get in the back so Tom can sit up front with me." I was shocked and humiliated but I got in the back seat and said nothing.

That evening I told him how I felt and his reply was "When a woman is too ignorant to know her place, then a man has to tell her." How about this?—BURNT

DEAR BURNT: You husband had no business putting you in the back seat.

As far as a woman "knowing her place" is concerned, tell him you always thought a woman's place was beside her husband — through thick and thin, for richer or poorer, in sickness and in health 'til death does them part.

DEAR ANN: Our oldest daughter received an engagement ring for Christmas. We all like her fiance a great deal, but he practically lives at our house and I'm tired of it.

He manages to stay for every meal and feels free to snack on whatever is in the house. When I mentioned this to my daughter she practically became livid with rage. Her father took her side, and now I'm in the dog house. Was I wrong?—THELMA

DEAR THELMA: Some people have trouble being generous with food because of poverty suffered in their youth. If this is your problem, make special effort, in the interest of family harmony, to overcome the pattern established early in your life.

Dear Ann: The woman I married was a widow with four children, 22, 20, 18 and 6. The children don't know we're married. We are living apart.

When I courted her the children seemed to like me. As soon as they saw we were serious they told their mother I was "a nut."

My wife loves the children and has always worked hard to support them. The 18-year-old girl is the only one who has a job. The boys (22 and 20) loaf all day and ask their mother for spending money. They treat her like a servant ("Wake me up at 10:00 and have ham and eggs ready.") She admits she's spoiled them and they have no respect for her.

When I call on the phone they hang up on me. I'm getting sick of living apart. I want to be with her as a husband should. She says "When the kids get a little older." What do you suggest? — Parted Mates

Sometimes children sneak off and get married because they are under age and can't get parental consent. This is the first time I ever heard of adults sneaking off because they couldn't get the children's consent.

Go — together — to a clergyman. Perhaps he can persuade her that she's being unfair to you, herself and the children. She's rearing a pack of emotional cripples who will never be able to stand up to life.

Dear Ann: Six years ago our daughter graduated from high school. She was a good student and won a college scholarship. After the first quarter she came home and announced she was tired of school and wanted to get married. We were heartbroken and begged her to get her education first. She was deaf to our pleading, and married a few months later.

Now their little boy is 4-years-old. She wants to return to college. Last week she asked if I'd take care of her child. This means I'd have to give up church work and club activities, and all the other pleasures that come at my time of life.

My husband says I should refuse. He feels I've earned the privilege of doing the things I enjoy. He insists the child is THEIR responsibility, not ours, and I'd be a fool to take over.

If my daughter were ill or if something happened to her husband and she had to go to work I wouldn't hesitate, but under these conditions what do you think? — Mrs. J. E.

Dear J. E.: I agree with your husband. You reared YOUR family — now let your daughter do the same.

Dear Ann Landers: I started to go with this boy last year. He was rather wild and had been in trouble for ditching school and hub-cap "disappearances". When they found a pint of whiskey in his locker he was suspended from school.

The whole world was against him so I offered my friendship when he needed it most. He promised never to get in trouble again, and he's kept his word.

The problem is that I don't want to go steady any more as I'm missing out on too much fun. When I tried to break off he said he'd go bad again if I dropped him and then it'd be my fault. What can I do? — Jill

Dear Jill: He's found your Achilles heel (the heel). Tell him goodbye and good luck. You're a young girl — not a reform school. Don't let him play on your sympathy and use you as a crutch forever. Do what's best for YOU.

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for ANN LANDERS' new booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addresed envelope.)

JAMES O. LANCASTER

Lancaster Appointed To College

President George T. Walker of Northeast State college has announced that James O. Lancaster, principal at LaSalle High School at Olla for the past four years, has been appointed to the college faculty as the new supervisor of scholarships and placements.

The appointment, approved by the State Board of Education, will become effective June 8.

The position Lancaster will hold at Northeast is a new one, as student scholarships have been handled on a part time basis by Associate Professor A. L. Tatum, and the placement of graduates and former students has been handled by various members of the staff.

Lancaster, a 1942 grauate of Ferriday High School, served in the U. S. Navy from December 1943 to May 1946, principally in the Pacific Theater.

His education includes a B. S. degree in accounting at Northeastern in 1949, and an M. A. degree in educational administration from George Peabody College in 1954.

Prior to becoming principal of LaSalle High, he was assistnat coach and mathematics teacher at Ferriday High School for five years.

Tips On How To Buy Glassware

One of the bride's most exciting, but sometimes perplexing adventures, is the selection of her table appointments. Even though her plan of living may lean toward the casual manner, it does not mean careless living at all.

Today, glass, china and silver are as varied as any other element in the home and it is not necessary to be bound by a set of rules. New brides, or even seasoned homemakers, will find that the predominate factors to consider before purchasing table accessories are: shape, design and color. It is not necessary to match the three elements in total. However, care should be taken to select patterns that blend well with other furnishings in the room. This does not mean that periods cannot be mixed. It merely means that there should be harmony among all three.

White Speaks On Plight Of Retarded Tots

White, a New Orleans banker, said he is not connected with the state school program but is promoting work for something to be done for retarded children in Louisiana and on a nation-wide bases. His objectives, he listed, are to acquaint, arouse, and inform the general public about retarded children and to cause people to lobby or request their legislators to obtain equal facilities for the hundreds of retarded children.

"There is only the one colony for retarded children," White continued, "which now has 1,600 children in it and a waiting list of 700. There are many more children in need of special training as almost any teacher can tell you.

"It is a crime that there are so many children uncared for, so few teachers trained to help them and so little of the state's school money allotted to the needs of such a large group of our population," the president stated.

The Association estimates for every one child being helped, there are about 20 more who need special training.

The meeting was well attended. Among those present were Mayor Woodie Davis, Superintendent of Schools Hugh Batement, Public Health Nurse Bailey and Concordia Parish teacher for retarded children, Mrs. J. E. Chandler.

IN FLORIDA TRAGEDY

Pedestrian Dies, 2 Others Hurt

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —A pedestrian died and two others suffered serious injuries when struck by a car Friday after its driver shot himself.

Percy Lonsdale, 70, was pinned underneath the vehicle and dragged half a block. He died in a hospital.

The incident occurred in the heart of the business district and was witnessed by hundreds of shoppers.

Patrolman Erich Wachsmuth identified the driver as Vernon Donald Kelly, 22, of St. Petersburg. He was reported in critical condition at a hospital.

Three suicide notes were found on the seat of the car driven by Kelly.

"Not one of them had a chance to get out of the way," one witness said.

Jack Parzen of Miami stopped the Kelly car half a block past the intersection.

"I ran after the car, opened the door and got my foot on the brake," he said. "I knew the driver was not in control of the car."

Solons Okay Wheat Plan Choice Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Agriculture Committee Friday approved a bill to give farmers a choice between rival plans of the administration and Democratic farm leaders for cutting the whopping wheat surplus.

The committee's action came as President Eisenhower renewed his plea for quick congressional passage of "realistic and constructive" legislation to deal with the wheat problem. It was his second urgent demand in three days for a sound wheat program to replace the present "failure."

Under the Senate bill, wheat farmers would be given their choice of these two programs for their 1960 and 1961 crops:

—Farmers who choose to continue plantings at present levels would receive price supports of 65 per cent of parity instead of the present 75 per cent. This would be in line with administration demands for a cut in supports to discourage over-production.

—Farmers who cut plantings 20 per cent below present levels would receive supports at 80 per cent of parity. This would be more in line with plan of Democrats who insist that a farmer must be compensated for accepting tighter acreage controls.

The vote was 8-1, with only Sen. Milton R. Young (R-N.D.) dissenting. Young said no wheat farmer could exist under the bill.

In the House, meanwhile, the appropriations committee approved a $3,939,165,498 farm money bill. The measure could boost farm outlays in the next two years by at least 100 million dollars more than the President proposed.

Chiropractors Case Action In Abeyance

After a motion was filed Friday by attorneys of three Monroe chiropractors, Judge David I. Garrett ruled to hold state action against the three defendants in abeyance until the federal courts can act on a motion to change the trials from state to federal courts.

H. C. Sloat, L. T. Murphy, and R. E. Harvey were indicted by the Ouachita Parish grand jury last month here for unlawful practice of medicine.

All were arraigned in Fourth District Court and entered pleas of not guilty. At the same time motions to quash and/or stay were entered by their attorneys, who later appealed to have the trial transferred to the federal courts and contended that the action was unconstitutional, violating the fourteenth amendment of the Bill Of Rights.

In his ruling Friday, Judge Garrett halted action by the state court until the federal courts could make a decision on whether the trial can be legally transferred.

"The court takes the position that under the U. S. code. . .the filing with the clerk of the state court of the copy of the petition (by the chiropractors asking a change of trial affects the removal and the state court can proceed no further," the judge ruled.

District Attorney Albin P. Lassister, immediately following the ruling, asked that a bill of exceptions be attached to the ruling of the following reasons:

1. The actions taken by the defense is unconstitutional in that it is in violation to the rights of the states.

2. The U. S. Supreme Court has held that the statute under which the three are indicted is constitutional.

3. The U. S. District court for the Western District of the state of Louisiana has passed on the removal of criminal cases to the U. S. District Court, and the state court has adequate protection for the citizens involving these matters.

Catahoula Voters Approve Mill Tax

JONESVILLE (Special)—Catahoula parish resident property owners Tuesday approved the renewal of the three mill school tax.

The Catahoula school board met Wednesday to promulgate the returns. A total of 211 voters, representing $390,062 assessment, voted in favor of the tax. There were two, representing $8,990 assessment voting against the renewal of the school tax. The only opposition was from Ward 7.

The tax, which has been renewed for a period of five years, will be used for financing school maintenance, health, and sanitation, capital outlay, equipment, school buildings and improvements for Catahoula parish schools.

Justice Voices Arrest Threat In Strike Case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twelve members of a union, which has been on strike for a week against six hospitals, were threatened with arrest Friday if they fail to appear in Brooklyn Supreme Court next Tuesday.

The warning was voiced by Justice Miles F. McDonald when leaders and pickets of Local 1199 of the Retail Drug Employes Union failed to appear before him.

They had been ordered to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt for continuing a strike against Brooklyn Jewish Hospital despite a temporary injunction.

Sheriff Aspirant Reports Quizzing In Lynching Case

POPLARVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — J. P. Walker, a candidate for sheriff of Pearl River County, said Friday that FBI agents during interrogation accused him of being a member of the mob that lynched Negro M. C. Parker.

Walker, of Picayune, Miss., made the statement to newsmen willingly. He said he felt it would help his election chances if voters knew about his encounter with FBI agents.

The FBI refused comment. No formal charges have been filed in the case, now nearly three weeks old. Parker, 23-year-old Lumberton, Miss., Negro awaiting trial on charges of raping a white woman, was taken from a jail cell April 25 and shot.

Man Is Burned In Auto Fire; Not Hospitalized

Local firemen said Floyd Lejune, owner of the DeLuxe Trailer Park in the 5200 block of DeSiard, suffered first degree burns. The car was parked on his lot. Truck 105 responded to the call.

However, Lejune was not hospitalized, it was added. The station wagon was termed virtually a total loss.

Teamster Says Union To Stay In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A chief of teamster boss James Hoffa's organizing drive here says the Teamsters union will remain in Baton Rouge.

R. B. Bunch told some 35 members of the 4,000-man Independent Industrial Workers Assn. at the Esso Standard Oil Co. refinery Thursday night the teamsters are not willing to consent to an election at the plant.

Signing a new contract between IIWA, independent refinery worker's group, has been delayed because the Baton Rouge Metal Trades Council (AFL-CIO) has gained national Labor Relations Board approval of a vote on a bargaining agent.

Bunch charged that the BRMTC, fighting Hoffa expansion, and Esso "met prior to your accepting the contract and worked out the petition."

LSU Selected To Top-Level Council Of SU

BATON ROUGE (Special) — President Troy H. Middleton yesterday received formal notification of the election of Louisiana State University to the select Council of Southern Universities.

As the ninth member of the Council LSU received the distinction of being the first addition to the organization created in 1952 "to strengthen and improve higher education in the South."

The eight charter institutions are Duke University, Emory University, Rice Institute, Unversity of North Carolina, University of Texas, Tulane University, Vanderbilt University, and the University of Virginia. LSU thus becomes the fourth public university and the first land grant institution to hold membership.

Commenting on LSU's selection, President Middleton said the University is "honored to join the distinguished company of the South's outstanding public and private educational institutions."

"The people of Louisiana," he said, "are doubly fortunate to have two of these nine institutions within the borders of the state."

Through the Southern Fellowships Fund, the Council of Southern Universities carries on an extensive program of faculty improvement in southern colleges and universities through a system of scholarships and fellowships in 14 states. The program is financed by a $2.5 million grant from the General Education Board.

President Middleton has been a member of the Southern Fellowships Fund administrative committee since 1954. He will serve as a director of the Council of Southern Universities.

Senators Scoff At Hoffa Claims On Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the Senate Rackets Committee said Friday Teamsters union president James R. Hoffa is out of line in his complaints that a Senate-passed labor bill is legally and morally wrong and too restrictive.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-NC), a co-author of the bill, said Hoffa's opposition "is conclusive proof that the bill is well designed to prevent or punish the gross malpractices which the McClellan (rackets) committee hearings have shown to be most prevalent in the Teamsters union."

"Malpractices which Hoffa has made no visible effort to stop or lessen," Ervin added in an interview.

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz), who serves with Ervin on the Rackets Committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), had this to say in a separate interview."

"Hoffa's a great one to be complaining—he's complaining about a slap on the wrist from this bill, when he really deserves a good hard kick in the pants."

Hoffa contended many labor leaders either haven't read the bill, don't have the guts to fight it, or have sold out labor in either approving it or not fighting it harder.

FIREWORKS MAY DEVELOP

Long Legislators Differ On Worries

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The minds of Gov. Earl Long and the Legislature apparently took different tangents Friday.

Long was thinking of federal income tax troubles and the Preakness.

The fiscal Legislature was worried about the fireworks Long might set off next week.

Before Long left for the running of the big race in Baltimore, he indicated he had only two things on his mind—an internal revenue service probe of his income and the Preakness.

"I may come back from the track with so much money they' to help me carry it home," he said.

His wagering, he indicated, will be on Royal Orbit and Sword Dancer, in that order.

The Legislature, in recess until Monday, had on its mind home politically charged measures Long has indicated his leaders may hand in and disturb the pleasant task of voting for money bills.

Long has promised at least one skirmish—his proposal to oust Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. from the state voting machine board.

The governor said he expects the proposal afterward to have clear sailing.

He will make his only appearance, he said, in behalf of his legislation before the House Affairs Committee when it meets next week to consider the ouster move.

The bill, he said, will be presented in the House shortly after it reconvenes at 2 p.m. Monday. The Senate returns at 7 p.m. Monday.

Meanwhile, Rep. Edward LeBreton, New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison's House leader, said he has withdrawn any opposition to labeling as "fiscal" a proposed tax cut for the Jefferson Downs racetrack.

But LeBreton remained silent whether he would oppose the bill on its merits on the House floor.

The bill is resting in the Affairs of the House Committee, the screening group which determines whether bills are fiscal. Non-fiscal measures require a three-fourths majority consent for introduction.

The bill sponsored by the Louisiana Racing Commission, headed by Long's friend, chairman J. M. (Pete) Menefee, would shift more revenue into the track's take because Menefee says it has been losing money.

LeBreton at first had asked a delay in the screen committee decision, until he could determine for himself whether a tax cut could be properly considered a fiscal matter. The law forbids the fiscal session to consider tax raises or new taxes.

He has expressed concern the bill may affect the Fair Grounds in New Orleans.

Long said he will veto any bill designed to implement 75 per cent of the teachers' pay raise instead of the 62.5 per cent he wants.

Long indicated bills earmarked for introduction would change the date of the gubernatorial primary from Dec. 5 to Dec. 19; eliminate the requirement that a citizen must be able to understand the federal and state constitutions to register to vote, and to scale down the ceiling on monthly interest rates on small loans.

Long has proposed a 129-million dollar increase in spending—from 633 million this fiscal year to 762 for financial year beginning July 1.

Long's budget — including 201-million in federal funds — comes to 719 million. The administration's general appropriations bill —to cover normal state operations—amounts to 458 million. It represents an increase of 76 million.

The general appropriations bill awaits action by the House Appropriations Committee. Rep. Samuel Cashio of Iberville Parish, chairman of the committee and a Long leader, said it will be taken up Monday.

The administration's 10 capital outlay and special spending measures must pass the House Screening Committee, headed by Rep. Peter Murtes of Orleans Parish.

Mental Patient Captured After Slaying Parents

WARWICK, R.I. (UPI)—A mental patient who escaped from the Rhode Island State Hospital Thursday night and beat his parents to death with a crowbar was captured Friday in a stolen car after a highhpeed chase through city streets.

Police said the young man, Russell J. Chace Jr., 25, surrendered without a struggle after bringing his car to a stop on an abandoned railroad bed.

The hospital said young Chace, a handsome six-footer, walked away from the grounds at Howard, R.I., about 11 p.m. Shortly afterward a neighbor saw Chace pursuing his screaming mother in circles on the driveway of the family home and called police. About the same time, a telephone operator reported receiving a call for help from the Chace rehidence, apparently from the father just before he lost consciousness.

The mother, Mrs. Annice H. Chace, 50, was dead on arrival at Kent County Hospital. The father died shortly after his son's capture.

White Speaks On Plight Of Retarded Tots

White, a New Orleans banker, said he is not connected with the state school program but is promoting work for something to be done for retarded children in Louisiana and on a nation-wide bases. His objectives, he listed, are to acquaint, arouse, and inform the general public about retarded children and to cause people to lobby or request their legislators to obtain equal facilities for the hundreds of retarded children.

"There is only the one colony for retarded children," White continued, "which now has 1,600 children in it and a waiting list of 700. There are many more children in need of special training as almost any teacher can tell you.

"It is a crime that there are so many children uncared for, so few teachers trained to help them and so little of the state's school money allotted to the needs of such a large group of our population," the president stated.

The Association estimates for every one child being helped, there are about 20 more who need special training.

The meeting was well attended. Among those present were Mayor Woodie Davis, Superintendent of Schools Hugh Batement, Public Health Nurse Bailey and Concordia Parish teacher for retarded children, Mrs. J. E. Chandler.

IN FLORIDA TRAGEDY

Pedestrian Dies, 2 Others Hurt

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —A pedestrian died and two others suffered serious injuries when struck by a car Friday after its driver shot himself.

Percy Lonsdale, 70, was pinned underneath the vehicle and dragged half a block. He died in a hospital.

The incident occurred in the heart of the business district and was witnessed by hundreds of shoppers.

Patrolman Erich Wachsmuth identified the driver as Vernon Donald Kelly, 22, of St. Petersburg. He was reported in critical condition at a hospital.

Three suicide notes were found on the seat of the car driven by Kelly.

"Not one of them had a chance to get out of the way," one witness said.

Jack Parzen of Miami stopped the Kelly car half a block past the intersection.

"I ran after the car, opened the door and got my foot on the brake," he said. "I knew the driver was not in control of the car."

Solons Okay Wheat Plan Choice Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Agriculture Committee Friday approved a bill to give farmers a choice between rival plans of the administration and Democratic farm leaders for cutting the whopping wheat surplus.

The committee's action came as President Eisenhower renewed his plea for quick congressional passage of "realistic and constructive" legislation to deal with the wheat problem. It was his second urgent demand in three days for a sound wheat program to replace the present "failure."

Under the Senate bill, wheat farmers would be given their choice of these two programs for their 1960 and 1961 crops:

—Farmers who choose to continue plantings at present levels would receive price supports of 65 per cent of parity instead of the present 75 per cent. This would be in line with administration demands for a cut in supports to discourage over-production.

—Farmers who cut plantings 20 per cent below present levels would receive supports at 80 per cent of parity. This would be more in line with plan of Democrats who insist that a farmer must be compensated for accepting tighter acreage controls.

The vote was 8-1, with only Sen. Milton R. Young (R-N.D.) dissenting. Young said no wheat farmer could exist under the bill.

In the House, meanwhile, the appropriations committee approved a $3,939,165,498 farm money bill. The measure could boost farm outlays in the next two years by at least 100 million dollars more than the President proposed.

Chiropractors Case Action In Abeyance

After a motion was filed Friday by attorneys of three Monroe chiropractors, Judge David I. Garrett ruled to hold state action against the three defendants in abeyance until the federal courts can act on a motion to change the trials from state to federal courts.

H. C. Sloat, L. T. Murphy, and R. E. Harvey were indicted by the Ouachita Parish grand jury last month here for unlawful practice of medicine.

All were arraigned in Fourth District Court and entered pleas of not guilty. At the same time motions to quash and or stay were entered by their attorneys, who later appealed to have the trial transferred to the federal courts and contended that the action was unconstitutional, violating the fourteenth amendment of the Bill Of Rights.

In his ruling Friday, Judge Garrett halted action by the state court until the federal courts could make a decision on whether the trial can be legally transferred.

"The court takes the position that under the U. S. code. . .the filing with the clerk of the state court of the copy of the petition (by the chiropractors asking a change of trial affects the removal and the state court can proceed no further," the judge ruled.

District Attorney Albin P. Lassister, immediately following the ruling, asked that a bill of exceptions be attached to the ruling of the following reasons:

1. The actions taken by the defense is unconstitutional in that it is in violation to the rights of the states.

2. The U. S. Supreme Court has held that the statute under which the three are indicted is constitutional, and

3. The U. S. District court for the Western District of the state of Louisiana passed on the removal of criminal cases to the U. S. District Court, and the state court has adequate protection for the citizens involving these matters.

Catahoula Voters Approve Mill Tax

JONESVILLE (Special)—Catahoula parish resident property owners Tuesday approved the renewal of the three mill school tax.

The Catahoula school board met Wednesday to promulgate the returns. A total of 211 voters, representing $390,062 assessment, voted in favor of the tax. There were two, representing $8,990 assessment voting against the renewal of the school tax. The only opposition was from Ward 7.

The tax, which has been renewed for a period of five years, will be used for financing school maintenance, health, and sanitation, capital outlay, equipment, school buildings and improvements for Catahoula parish schools.

Bobby Pappas Is Head Of Tour Group

ALEXANDRIA (Special)—Bobby Pappas, Monroe, has been named head of the citizens tourist committee of the Louisiana Municipal Association.

Pappas stated that he would continue programs of education, and would enlist the help of citizens throughout the state to foster growth of the tourist trade.

He succeeded Jack Hayes, Lafayette. Mayor P. Armand Viator, New Iberia, was named head of the LMA's tourist inducement committee, succeeding Mayor Jerome Domengeaux of Lafayette.

Appointments were made by Mayor Sidney Gray of Lake Charles, LMA president.

Other officials named to the LMA tourist committee were the following district chairmen: Mayor Chep Morrison, New Orleans, first district; Councilman Eddie Gerolamo, Kenner, second; Mayor Roy Theriot, Abbeville, third; Mayor W. T. Collier, Morringsport, fourth; Councilman Howard White, Lake Providence, fifth; Mayor Jack Christian, Baton Rouge, sixth; Mayor John Olivier, Sunset, seventh, and Mayor George Bodon, Alexandria, eight.

Justice Voices Arrest Threat In Strike Case

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twelve members of a union, which has been on strike for a week against six hospitals, were threatened with arrest Friday if they fail to appear in Brooklyn Supreme Court next Tuesday.

The warning was voiced by Justice Miles F. McDonald when leaders and pickets of Local 1199 of the Retail Drug Employes Union failed to appear before him.

They had been ordered to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt for continuing a strike against Brooklyn Jewish Hospital despite a temporary injunction.

Sheriff Aspirant Reports Quizzing In Lynching Case

POPLARVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — J. P. Walker, a candidate for sheriff of Pearl River County, said Friday that FBI agents during interrogation accused him of being a member of the mob that lynched Negro M. C. Parker.

Walker, of Picayune, Miss., made the statement to newsmen willingly. He said he felt it would help his election chances if voters knew about his encounter with FBI agents.

The FBI refused comment. No formal charges have been filed in the case, now nearly three weeks old. Parker, 23-year-old Lumberton, Miss., Negro awaiting trial on charges of raping a white woman, was taken from a jail cell April 25 and shot.

Man Is Burned In Auto Fire; Not Hospitalized

Local firemen said Floyd Lejune, owner of the DeLuxe Trailer Park in the 5200 block of DeSiard, suffered first degree burns. The car was parked on his lot. Truck 105 responded to the call.

However, Lejune was not hospitalized, it was added. The station wagon was termed virtually a total loss.

Teamster Says Union To Stay In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — A chief of teamster boss James Hoffa's organizing drive here says the Teamsters union will remain in Baton Rouge.

R. B. Bunch told some 35 members of the 4,000-man Independent Industrial Workers Assn. at the Esso Standard Oil Co. refinery Thursday night the teamsters are not willing to consent to an election at the plant.

Signing a new contract between IIWA, independent refinery worker's group, has been delayed because the Baton Rouge Metal Trades Council (AFL-CIO) has gained national Labor Relations Board approval of a vote on a bargaining agent.

Bunch charged that the BRMTC, fighting Hoffa expansion, and Esso "met prior to your accepting the contract and worked out the petition."

LSU Selected To Top-Level Council Of SU

BATON ROUGE (Special) — President Troy H. Middleton yesterday received formal notification of the election of Louisiana State University to the select Council of Southern Universities.

As the ninth member of the Council LSU received the distinction of being the first addition to the organization created in 1952 "to strengthen and improve higher education in the South."

The eight charter institutions are Duke University, Emory University, Rice Institute, Unversity of North Carolina, University of Texas, Tulane University, Vanderbilt University, and the University of Virginia. LSU thus becomes the fourth public university and the first land grant institution to hold membership.

Commenting on LSU's selection, President Middleton said the University is "honored to join the distinguished company of the South's outstanding public and private educational institutions."

"The people of Louisiana," he said, "are doubly fortunate to have two of these nine institutions within the borders of the state."

Through the Southern Fellowships Fund, the Council of Southern Universities carries on an extensive program of faculty improvement in southern colleges and universities through a system of scholarships and fellowships in 14 states. The program is financed by a $2.5 million grant from the General Education Board.

President Middleton has been a member of the Southern Fellowships Fund administrative committee since 1954. He will serve as a director of the Council of Southern Universities.

Senators Scoff At Hoffa Claims On Labor Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of the Senate Rackets Committee said Friday Teamsters union president James R. Hoffa is out of line in his complaints that a Senate-passed labor bill is legally and morally wrong and too restrictive.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-NC), a co-author of the bill, said Hoffa's opposition "is conclusive proof that the bill is well designed to prevent or punish the gross malpractices which the McClellan (rackets) committee hearings have shown to be most prevalent in the Teamsters union."

"Malpractices which Hoffa has made no visible effort to stop or lessen," Ervin added in an interview.

Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz), who serves with Ervin on the Rackets Committee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark), had this to say in a separate interview."

"Hoffa's a great one to be complaining—he's complaining about a slap on the wrist from this bill, when he really deserves a good hard kick in the pants."

Hoffa contended many labor leaders either haven't read the bill, don't have the guts to fight it, or have sold out labor in either approving it or not fighting it harder.

FIREWORKS MAY DEVELOP

Long Legislators Differ On Worries

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The minds of Gov. Earl Long and the Legislature apparently took different tangents Friday.

Long was thinking of federal income tax troubles and the Preakness.

The fiscal Legislature was worried about the fireworks Long might set off next week.

Before Long left for the running of the big race in Baltimore, he indicated he had only two things on his mind—an internal revenue service probe of his income and the Preakness.

"I may come back from the track with so much money they' to help me carry it home," he said.

His wagering, he indicated, will be on Royal Orbit and Sword Dancer, in that order.

The Legislature, in recess until Monday, had on its mind home politically charged measures Long has indicated his leaders may hand in and disturb the pleasant task of voting for money bills.

Long has promised at least one skirmish—his proposal to oust Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. from the state voting machine board.

The governor said he expects the proposal afterward to have clear sailing.

He will make his only appearance, he said, in behalf of his legislation before the House Affairs Committee when it meets next week to consider the ouster move.

The bill, he said, will be presented in the House shortly after it reconvenes at 2 p.m. Monday. The Senate returns at 7 p.m. Monday.

Meanwhile, Rep. Edward LeBreton, New Orleans Mayor deLesseps Morrison's House leader, said he has withdrawn any opposition to labeling as "fiscal" a proposed tax cut for the Jefferson Downs racetrack.

But LeBreton remained silent whether he would oppose the bill on its merits on the House floor.

The bill is resting in the Affairs of the House Committee, the screening group which determines whether bills are fiscal. Non-fiscal measures require a three-fourths majority consent for introduction.

The bill sponsored by the Louisiana Racing Commission, headed by Long's friend, chairman J. M. (Pete) Menefee, would shift more revenue into the track's take because Menefee says it has been losing money.

LeBreton at first had asked a delay in the screen committee decision, until he could determine for himself whether a tax cut could be properly considered a fiscal matter. The law forbids the fiscal session to consider tax raises or new taxes.

He has expressed concern the bill may affect the Fair Grounds in New Orleans.

Long said he will veto any bill designed to implement 75 per cent of the teachers' pay raise instead of the 62.5 per cent he wants.

Long indicated bills earmarked for introduction would change the date of the gubernatorial primary from Dec. 5 to Dec. 19; eliminate the requirement that a citizen must be able to understand the federal and state constitutions to register to vote, and to scale down the ceiling on monthly interest rates on small loans.

Long has proposed a 129-million dollar increase in spending—from 633 million this fiscal year to 762 for financial year beginning July 1.

Long's budget — including 201-million in federal funds — comes to 719 million. The administration's general appropriations bill —to cover normal state operations—amounts to 458 million. It represents an increase of 76 million.

The general appropriations bill awaits action by the House Appropriations Committee. Rep. Samuel Cashio of Iberville Parish, chairman of the committee and a Long leader, said it will be taken up Monday.

The administration's 10 capital outlay and special spending measures must pass the House Screening Committee, headed by Rep. Peter Murtes of Orleans Parish.

Ex-Monroyan Gets Promotion

A former Monroe man, Harold Wilenzick, yesterday received notification of promotion to a full colonel and transfer papers to Fort Lawton, Seattle.

Wilenzick is presently stationed at Fort Polk.

The colonel has been in charge of the dental clinic at Fort Polk for the past five years. He will take over the same capacity at Fort Lawton. A graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, Wilenzick enlisted in the United States Army in 1940 from Monroe. His wife is the former Janet Rosenberg, also of Monroe.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. each day the code letters are different.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your first name. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Ostwind Enters Innocent Plea To Fraud Counts

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mitchell D. Ostwind, 27, who was involved with fugitive financier Earl Belle in a huge stock manipulation, pleaded innocent but said nothing more Friday when arraigned in federal court on 18 counts of fraud and conspiracy.

Ostwind, who fled with Belle to Rio de Janiero last July when their paper financial empire collapsed, returned to the United States last April 27. Belle still is in Brazil.

Ostwind appeared before U.S. District Judge John McIlvain with his attorney Allan H. Cohen for arraignment on charges of transporting fraudulent checks from New Jersey to Pittsburgh; using the mails to defraud, and conspiracy to defraud.

He entered his plea and then left with the laywer. His $2,500 bond was continued.

Ostwind was a high school chum of Belle. Bell was accused of masterminding the manipulations which wrecked Cornucopia Gold Mines.

Ex-Monroyan Gets Promotion

A former Monroe man, Harold Wilenzick, yesterday received notification of promotion to a full colonel and transfer papers to Fort Lawton, Seattle.

Wilenzick is presently stationed at Fort Polk.

The colonel has been in charge of the dental clinic at Fort Polk for the past five years. He will take over the same capacity at Fort Lawton. A graduate of Ouachita Parish High School, Wilenzick enlisted in the United States Army in 1940 from Monroe. His wife is the former Janet Rosenberg, also of Monroe.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Ostwind Enters Innocent Plea To Fraud Counts

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Mitchell D. Ostwind, 27, who was involved with fugitive financier Earl Belle in a huge stock manipulation, pleaded innocent but said nothing more Friday when arraigned in federal court on 18 counts of fraud and conspiracy.

Ostwind, who fled with Belle to Rio de Janiero last July when their paper financial empire collapsed, returned to the United States last April 27. Belle still is in Brazil.

Ostwind appeared before U.S. District Judge John McIlvain with his attorney Allan H. Cohen for arraignment on charges of transporting fraudulent checks from New Jersey to Pittsburgh; using the mails to defraud, and conspiracy to defraud.

He entered his plea and then left with the laywer. His $2,500 bond was continued.

Ostwind was a high school chum of Belle. Bell was accused of masterminding the manipulations which wrecked Cornucopia Gold Mines.

CASTLE FOR CHARLES???

LONDON (UPI)—A newspapepr Friday urged the royal family to take advantage of a windfall and give 10-year-old Prince Charles a 3,500-acre estate and castle as his own. The Earl Stanhope, 78, presented his baronial estate, Chevening, to the government on Thursday. The News Chronicle proposed that Charles be given the huge baronial castle.

IN MISSISSIPPI RACES

Candidates Lax On Filing Rules

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The three lawyers running for governor—two of whom hold public office now—apparently are guilty of a technical misdemeanor because they did not qualify with the secretary of state before entering the race.

Only Robert Mason of Magee, a welder, not a lawyer, has followed the law by paying his fee and filing his affidavits with the secretary of state under the corrupt practices and subversive activities act before entering the race for party nomination in the Aug. 4 Democratic primary.

Deadline for entering the race is midnight, June 4. State law says merely that entry must be made at least 60 days before the election and leaves it to the attorney general to decide the precise deadline.

The three lawyers, all members of the state bar, who have entered the race without first filing their affidavits are Lt. Gov. Carroll Gartin of Laurel, Dist. Atty. Charles Sullivan of Clarksdale and attorney Ross Barnett of Jackson.

They aren't the only candidates for public office who violated the corrupt practices act of 1935 by entering the race without first filing affidavits with the secretary of state. The others include:

Rep. Brown Williams of Neshoba County, Hunter Kimball of Gulfport, and Paul B. Johnson of Hattiesburg, candidate for lieutenant governor.

Dr. J. V. Duckworth of Meridian, sheriff of Lauderdale County, candidate for Commissioner of Agriculture.

Rep. John Kennedy of Marshall County, candidate for public service commissioner from the northern district.

In addition, there could be candidates for county and county district offices who have neglected to file affidavits with and pay fees to the circuit clerk.

Under the law, candidates for state and state district offices pay fees to the circuit clerk.

Under the law, candidates for state and state district offices file their qualifications with the secretary of state in Jackson; candidates for county and county district offices file with the circuit clerk in the county; and candidates for the Legislature file with the circuit clerk in every county they will represent.

Withdrawal from candidacy must be done in writing to the office where the affidavits and fees were paid. The fees are not refunded upon withdrawal.

Sen. William Burgin of Columbus announced he has withdrawn from the lieutenant governor's race but did not notify the secretary of state of his decision.

Murder Victim's Body Is Found In River By Boys

HAVERHILL, Mass. (UPI) — The body of a man dressed in women's clothes and chained and wrapped like a mummy was recovered from the Merrimack River Friday.

Police first reported that the body was that of a woman, but later changed it to an unidentified man after closer examination.

Authorities said the body appeared to be that of a man "in his 50s." Police said it was a case of murder.

Two high school boys made the grisly discovery as they pedalled their bicycles along the river in Haverhill's Riverside section. They ran to a nearby house to notify police.

The body wss covered with mud, but one arm was showing. "It looked like a mummy," one officer said.

What apparently were tire chains were wrapped around the victim's neck, police said. The body was wound in adhesive tape from feet to neck.

Further Decline In Condition Of Dulles Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department Friday announced "some further decline" in the condition of former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Press officer Lincoln White said the pneumonia attack suffered by Dulles last week "has not completely resolved."

The 71-year-old former cabinet member suffered the attack in Walter Reed Army Medical Center where he is being treated for cancer. Dulles has been confined to his bed since a week ago.

Members of his family were called to Washington last Saturday when the case of pneumonia was diagnosed.

IN APPEAL TO IKE

Atomic-Powered Bomber Is Urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department has appealed to President Eisenhower to change his mind and give the Air Force a go-ahead to build an atomic-powered bomber, it was disclosed Friday.

Air Force Lt. Gen. Roscoe C. Wilson said the last order issued by the late Deputy Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles, who died last week, was to approve the Air Force appeal to Eisenhower. Wilson said the proposal either had gone to the White House or was on its way.

The general, Air Force deputy chief of staff for development, told the Aviation Writers Assn. that the "final obstacle" to development of the plane — shielding the crew against radiation — had been solved.

Wilson said the "design and early development" of an atomic-powered bomber could be carried out with "modest" additional fun which already are available within the Defense Department. Others said an extra 50 to 100 million dollars would be needed.

If the Air Force should be given the go-ahead, it would amount to a reversal of present administration policy. The President said in his budget message to Congress last January that an atomic plane would not be built until it was proven to be militarily useful.

Wilson conceded there had been no technological breakthroughs since January. But he said there had been "refinement of data" and an increase of confidence in the project.

Wilson described the President as "very interested" in the project, but said Eisenhower has insisted that it not be a stunt which would only waste "national substance" in a race to beat Russia.

Wilson was unable to say whether Russia might put an atomic plane in the skies first. However, he said it should not take the United States "many years" to accomplish the feat if the President's approval was forthcoming now.

The general, describing a plane of limitless range, said it would serve as a "continuously" operating airborne missile launcher and low-level penetration aircraft called "Camal".

SERVICES HELD

BATON ROUGE (UPI)—Funeral services were held Thursday for Dr. Charles E. Smith, dean of Louisiana State University. Dean Smith, 54, died late Wednesday. His body will be shipped to Bethlehem, Pa., where last rites and burial are scheduled for Tuesday. Dean Smith joined the LSU faculty in 1934 as an assistant history professor. Survivors include his widow and a son.

Castro Ends War Crimes Cuba Trials

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro Friday ordered revolutionary war crimes trials ended and cases still pending turned over to civil courts.

According to unofficial compilations, a total of 621 persons have been executed by firing squads since the military war crimes trials started last January.

Castro's order was announced by Maj. Jorge Serguera, president of the war tribunal at Havana's La Cabana fortress prison, where hundreds of prisoners still are awaiting trial.

As the trial of Dr. Joaquin Martinez Saenz, former president of the National Bank of Cuba during the Batista dictatorship, was about to start in La Cabana, Serguera announced:

"By order of Prime Minister Dr. Fidel Castro, trials before revolutionary tribunals are suspended as of now. . .cases still pending will be transferred to the civil tribunals of the republic."

Castro first announced his intention of ending the war crimes trials on his return to Havana on May 11 from an unofficial tour of the United States, Canada and Latin America. During the tour he heard considerable criticisms of the wolesale executions of convicted "war criminals".

At that time, Castro said henceforth only "counter-revolutionaries" whose plots result in deaths or whose aggression was proved to be in complicity with foreigners" would face execution by firing squads.

Senator Pastore Boosts Stock Of Strauss For Job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. John O. Pastore (D-R.I.) boosted the Senate stock of Lewis L. Strauss Friday by announcing he would vote to confirm President Eisenhower's hotly-disputed nomination of Strauss to be secretary of Commerce.

Pahtore was the second Democrat on the Senate Commerce Committee to say that he would support the appointment. Sen. J. Strom Thurmond (D-S.C.) announced his support of Strauss Thursday when the committee ended 16 days of stormy hearings on the nomination.

All six Republicans on the 17-member committee were expected to vote for Strauss. With the support of Pastore and Thurmond, the nomination would then need only one more Democratic vote to be assured of committee approval.

Two other committee Democrats, Sens. George A. Smathers (Fla.) and Clair Engle (Calif.), told newsmen they gave Strauss a better than even chance of winning confirmation. However, they said they have not decided yet how they will vote personally.

GETS WEAKER DAILY

Concern Mounts As Condition Of Dulles Declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Foster Dulles, stricken with cancer and pneumonia, may die in a matter of days, friends said Saturday.

They reported the strength of the 71-year-old diplomat was ebbing and that he was growing weaker every day.

The former secretary of state is in Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Members of his family have gathered here. Dulles has been bedridden since last Saturday when it was discovered he had pneumonia.

The State Department reported Friday the pneumonia has persisted and "there has been some further decline in his general condition."

Dulles has been valiantly battling cancer since Feb. 13 when evidence of a new outbreak of the malignancy in his abdominal tract was discovered in the course of a hernia operation.

In November, 1956, cancer had been discovered in the same area but an operation apparently was successful.

This time the condition was inoperable. Dulles underwent massive X-ray treatments and an injection of radioactive gold in an effort to continue as President Eisenhower's foreign policy architect.

However, on April 12, he cut short a recuperative stay in Florida and returned to the hospital where a new malignant condition was found in the neck area. It was then he resigned as secretary of state although agreeing to serve as a special foreign policy consultant to the President.

Doctors reported at first that Dulles was responding satisfactorily. But more recent medical bulletins reported a decline in his general condition.

Three members of the family who live elsewhere were reported in the city Saturday. They are a son, John Dulles, an engineer in Mexico City; a daughter, Mrs. Robert Hinshaw, New York City; and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Edwards, Rye, N. Y.

Khrushchev Rejects West's Peace Plan For Germany

State Solons Prepare For Second Round

By Sam Hanna
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE — Louisiana legislators will return to the capitol tomorrow with three days to file their final bills and three weeks to listen to Gov. Earl K. Long.

The Governor, who is full of political vigor, says the only personal appearance he plans to make this week will be in behalf of a bill to oust Sec. of State Wade O. Martin Jr. from the state Voting Machine Board.

But with a fourth gubernatorial term in mind, Long will guide pet bills he wants passed. To do that he may float from chamber to chamber and committee to committee.

CONVENES

The house convenes at 1 p. m. Monday with the senate coming back in at 7 o'clock. Both knocked off for a long weekend.

Long was the whole show last week climaxed by a hip-swinging address Wednesday night. Otherwise, there wasn't one squabble in either chamber.

Long's record $458-million general appropriations bill sped on schedule to the House appropriations committee before adjournment Thursday.

The bill, showing a $76-million increase over last year, will be heard in committee this week.

Meanwhile, the legislature is considering a record-breaking $719 million budget. It includes $201 million in federal funds and the rest in state money.

On federal funds, Rep. Lester P. Vetter of Coushatta has a bill up for consideration to curb federal spending by creating a commission to harness the problem.

Vetter expects trouble from some top state officials warm toward the practice of using federal monies to subsidize state spending.

The Long administration hasn't

Russia Okays Nuclear Ban Inspections

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev has written President Eisenhower that Russia would be willing to allow a definitely limited number of veto-free nuclear inspection teams on its soil to enforce an international nuclear test ban, it was disclosed Saturday night.

The official Soviet news agency Tass disclosed that Khrushchev had explained the Russian position in letters sent Friday to President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan discussing the problems of the stalled nuclear test ban talks in Geneva.

Khrushchev said the Soviet Union was ready to "undertake to guarantee the timely and unimpeded access of inspection groups to any region within the Soviet Union" to check on suspected nuclear weapons tests.

FIRM ON LIMIT

But the Soviet leader was firm in insisting that Russia wants a limit placed on the number of inspections that would be carried out under any East - West agreement to prohibit nuclear tests.

"The very idea behind our proposal is to do away with the so-called "veto' question in sending groups for on - the - spot inspections," Tass quoted Khrushchev as saying.

Khrushchev's letters were in reply to letters from Eisenhower and Macmillan which urged Khrushchev to help break the deadlock in the Geneva nuclear talks.

"We believe that agreement on a number of inspection tours to

Says Parts 'Worthy Of Discussion'

GENEVA (UPI) — Russia Saturday rejected as a cold war trap the Western package plan for Germany, but said some parts of it were "worthy of discussion" at the Geneva foreign ministers conference.

Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev, in a burst of personal diplomacy during the weekend recess of the Geneva foreign ministers conference, spoke out in Moscow on the cold war issues of Germany and a nuclear test ban. In neither case did he close the door to negotiation.

DEVELOPMENTS

These were the day's developments:

Khrushchev insisted the Western one-piece package plan must be broken into separate parts. His tone was remarkably mild.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter informed Andrei Gromyko the West would refuse a summit conference unless the ministers made enough progress to warrant it.

Sources said Russia tentatively agreed to a meeting of experts to consider Western scientific information designed to make a nuclear weapons test ban foolproof.

Khrushchev sent letters to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan that "touched on the question" of nuclear inspection teams operating on the territories of the three nuclear powers. He pledged Russia would "strickly adhere" to a ban pack.

Herter made a swift trip to Rome for conferences and promised that the West would fight to seat Italy first if the big four ministers conference is expanded.

Much negotiation lay ahead. Khrushchev — speaking on his award of a Lenin prize for peace — served notice that Russian strategy now was to split apart the Western package on Berlin, German reunification and European security. At the same time, the Soviets would try to divide the Western big three on the issues involved.

The U.S. delegation disclosed that Herter informed Gromyko

Poplarville Still Tense; FBI Silent

POPLARVILLE, Miss. (UPI)—Expectations that a break was near in the three-week-old Mack Charles Parker lynch investigation reached a new high Saturday.

An authoritative source close to the FBI investigation of the Negro's jailhouse abduction and slaying said at least seven Mississippians would be arrested "pretty soon." The general feeling here was that the break would come in the next day or two. The FBI declined comment.

At least four white men from this area have told United Press International that the FBI has questioned them at length about their whereabouts April 25 when Parker was dragged from his cell.

FOUR QUESTIONED

One report this week quoted the FBI as saying there were no prime suspects in the case, but special agent R. W. Bachman, in charge of the investigation, assured United Press International that no FBI personnel had made such a statement.

The four men who said they have been questioned extensively are the Rev. James Lee, a missionary Baptist minister who lives

Former Cuba Army Pilots Go To Prison

HAVANA (UPI)—A revolutionary tribunal at Camp Freedom Saturday convicted 18 former Cuban Air Force and Army pilots on charges of "genocide" and "assassination" and sentenced them to prison terms ranging from three to 20 years. Three other defendants were acquitted.

Three former airmen also were convicted in absentia on the same charges by the tribunal in the Superior War Court of the Cuban Army Headquarters outside of Havana.

All were charged with having participated in or cooperated with air bombardments of five cities during the two year rebellion which overthrew Dictator Fulgencio Batista.

At La Cabana Fortress, another revolutionary tribunal handed down a death sentence in absentia to former Police Col. Esteban Ventura, convicted of assassinating three students in a Havana apartment.

Ventura fled with Batista last Dec. 31 and was reported to be in the Dominican Republic. There were reports that he forced his way aboard Batista's escape plane at Gunpoint.

Premier Fidel Castro Friday ordered the end of "war crimes" trials of civilians by revolutionary tribunals and said civilian cases still pending would be turned over to civil court.

But he said that the trial of former military personnel by military courts would continue. Friday, "war crimes" tribunals across the country convicted 15 defendants, sentencing them to prison terms of six months to 20 years.

Profits Rise May Balance Ike's Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising prosperity may balance President Eisenhower's 77 - billion-dollar budget even if Congress doesn't vote the extra revenue he wants.

A record 50-billion-dollar total of corporation profits is in sight this year, government economists said Saturday. That is three billion dollars more than the budget-makers estimated in January.

The Treasury will take about half the gain, at the 52 per cent tax rate on corporate earnings. This would add 1½ billion dollars to revenues in the fiscal year starting July 1, substantially more than Eisenhower asked in higher taxes, postal rates, and fees.

Gravel Pit Tift Brings Charges

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Two men filed assault charges Saturday against two officials of Baton Rouge Teamsters local No. 5.

The charges grew out of a gravel pit picket line tift at Greensburg, 50 miles northeast of here.

A spokesman for Sheriff Duncan Bridges of St. Helena Parish said these charges were filed:

Aggravated assault against Crowe Peele, assistant business agent for the teamsters local, by Leroy Morgan, employe of Robin Hood Sand and Gravel Co.

Aggravated assault charges against Ed G. Partin, business agent for the Baton Rouge teamsters local, by Oren W. Russell, sand and gravel hauling contractor, of Baton Rouge.

Bond was set at $500 for each charge, the spokesman said.

Ossie Brown of Baton Rouge, attorney for Partin and Peele, said his clients have been advised by 21st judicial district court officials they have been released without having to post bond.

Brown was in Greensburg to probe the charges. He said he will ask an early arraignment.

Both Peele and Partin denied the charges.

Peele, a former professional heavyweight boxer, was National Collegiate Athletic Assn. champion while attending Louisiana State University.

Charges against the two men originally read "threatening a life."

The sheriff's office at Greensburg later sought to change the charge to attempted murder, but after deputies contacted Dist. Atty. Duncan Kemp the charges were

U.S. To Ship Missiles To Italy Soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shipment to Italy of Army-produced Jupiter IRBM missiles, together with all equipment needed for launching sites, is expected to begin within six weeks.

The Army, asked about this report Saturday, said only that its 1,500-mile-range ballistic weapons are ready for use and that the ground support equipment for the first Jupiter missile squadron has been waiting for deployment for more than a year.

Following the policy established when Air Force Thor IRBMs were delivered to England, the Jupiter missiles and launching equipment will be placed in the hands of the Italian military. But custody of the nuclear warheads will remain with American personnel. This is required under the Atomic Energy Act.

The Army designed and produces the Jupiter, for which Chrysler Corp. is the prime contractor, but under Defense Department orders use of the missile is the responsibility of the Air Force.

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy has fixed production to permit equipment of four Thor outfits and three Jupiter squadrons, with Air Force crews.

Nine Persons Die As Fires Raze 2 Missouri Homes

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—Nine members of two Missouri families —seven of them children—perished in fires that destroyed their newly-acquired homes within the space of 4½ hours ending early Saturday.

The family of Robert Bennett Sr., 29, was wiped out as flames engulfed the frame house they recently purchased in Riverview Gardens, a north St. Louis County suburb.

Bennett suffocated along with his wife, Lawanda, 28, and their children, Dianne, 9; Robert Jr., 2; and Sherry, 1. Investigators said the parents apparently had got the baby from a crib but were overcome before they could open a window.

Earlier, four children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Wray died in a blaze that swept their farm home near Neelyville, Mo., 160 miles south of St. Louis.

The victims were Michael, 9; Margie, 11; Charles, 7; and Joyce, 4. The parents escaped with another daughter, Toni, 2, but Mrs. Wray suffered burns on the hands and face in rescuing the child.

Each of the families moved into its home three weeks ago.

Ike, Family Visit Mamie's Ill Mother

DENVER (UPI)—The family of President Eisenhower, spanning four generations, gathered Saturday night at the bedside of Mrs. Eisenhower's 81-year-old mother, Mrs. John S. Doud.

The chief executive, after his first visit to the new Air Force Academy at nearby Colorado Springs, flew to Denver for a quiet family evening. Sunday he will fly back to Washington, leaving here at 11 a. m. mst.

Eisenhower was met here at Lowry Air Force Base by his wife, who came from Washington earlier in the week to be with her aged mother when she celebrated her 81st birthday last Wednesday.

The president brought with him his son, Maj. John S. Eisenhower, and his wife Barbara, and their four children, David, 11; Barbara Anne, 9; Susan, 7, and Mary Jean, 3.

The family drove first to the Brown Palace Hotel where they will spend the night. They went to an eight-floor suite where the President has stayed a number of times, and in the late afternoon drove to the modest home of Mrs. Doud not far from downtown Denver.

The President did not go to the Doud home immediately upon arrival in Denver because the ailing woman was asleep at the time. Mrs. Doud is now confined to the second floor of her house, suffering from a number of ailments of the elderly.

It was in this same house that the chief executive suffered a heart attack in September, 1955. Eisenhower has visited Denver twice since, but only for brief periods.

Non-Stop Flight Record Sought

Mother Saves Daughter As Shark Attacks

CLEARWATER, Fla. (AP) A hungry 4-foot shark attacked a 37-year-old woman in shallow water at Indian Rocks Beach Saturday. Fast action by the victim's mother saved her from possible serious injury.

June Goldback, a visitor from Milwaukee, Wis., suffered only minor scratches on the foot, upper thigh and hand. A physician who treated her said no stitches were required.

Mrs. Goldback said she and her mother, Clara Winkler, also from Milwaukee, were bathing in shallow water when she felt the shark grab at her foot.

She twisted loose and before she could get to her feet the fish struck her on the thigh. It grabbed her hand as she struggled to free herself.

Mrs. Winkler grabbed her daughter and pulled her toward the shore. The shark released Mrs. Goldback and swam away.

Man Is Toppled Into Car's Path

A Monroe Negro was in city jail last night in lieu of $1,200 bond after he pushed a white man into the path of a car on DeSiard Street yesterday while fleeing from an employee of a downtown store, Monroe Police said.

The Negro was identified as E. L. Robinson, 22, Rt. 2, Box 198, Monroe.

Authorities said Jerry Gray, employee of a clothing store in the 300 block of DeSiard, was chasing the Negro after the store manager had recognized him as using a different name from one he had given before when buying clothes.

Farmer Gives Eggs Away As Protest

STOUGHTON, Mass. UPI — A New England farmer gave away 5,520 eggs Saturday as a protest against "the great American coffee break" which he says is a factor in the depressed state of the egg industry.

"It's never been so bad in the New England egg industry," said Sebe S. Garjian as he awved away the last of the steady stream of "customers" who drove in one driveway and out the other all morning long to take advantage of his protest offer.

"I'd do it again," Garjian said. The Stoughton poultryman said he "kind of admires" Australia bound farm rebel Stanley Yankus of Dowagiac, Mich. But, he added, he has no intention of imitating Yankus, who gave up his farm and planned to move to Australia to protest restrictive farm price supports and acreage allotments.

"There's supposed to be a meeting in Washington about it the egg industry's problems next week," Garjian said, U. S. Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft Benson has called a meeting with egg industry leaders in the capital for Monday morning.

Garjian, a long time poultryman, pinpointed his troubles as: 1-taxes; 2-low egg prices; 3-Southern competition resulting from tight farm acreage controls which made Southerners enter the egg business, and 4-the great American coffee break.

ON FT. POLK CLOSURE

Dodd Chides Long In Leesville Talk

In Leesville, Dodd said, "our present governor couldn't find time during the past three years to go to Washington on behalf of Ft. Polk, and now this military installation is closing.

"As a result of the closure, this entire parish will lose millions of dollars. Yet, poor Ole Earl, who was too old and sick to help Ft. Polk, has suddenly became revived, and during the past two weeks, has made two trips to Washington, both of which coincide with horse racing at Louisville and Baltimore."

With Dodd were William J. White, candidate for Lt. Governor; K. N. (Tony) Orillion, candidate for state comptroller. and Paul Tate, candidate for insurance commissioner.

Dodd said, "I think it's time the people of Louisiana, especially you people in this poor hilly section where I was raised, quit electing governors whose only qualifications are their ability to growl and entertain you.

"You had, during the past three administrations, singing, borrowing and taxing, plus a lot of clowning. I think it's about time you elected a sober minded, qualified man who will work full-time at the job of being governor.

"I am not ashamed of the part I played in writing the old age pension law, the hot lunch program, the free dental trailers, the minimum wage for teachers and bus drivers, but I am ashamed of the way our old friend Earl is

ON BORROWED YACHT

Happy 'Liz, Eddie On Honeymoon

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Elizabeth Taylor and Eddie Fisher sailed away Saturday on a yacht for a honeymoon cruise she said would be too short.

"I have only a week, although I wanted a much longer honeymoon with Eddie," the beautiful four-times married actress told newsmen. She blamed movie committments.

The newlyweds boarded the borrowed yacht Olnico in Barcelona harbor less than two hours after their arrival by plane from New York. Fisher took advantage of a brief stopover in Lisbon to buy his bride an $80 bracelet.

Fisher himself said "we don't know where we are going." But there was speculation that the yacht might be heading for the Mallorca Islands in the Mediterranean.

During the stopover in Lisbon, Fisher asked "what is Mallorca Island like?" and added "I see from the map it is quite close to Barcelona."

Despite the overnight flight from New York, Fisher and his actress wife, married in Las Vegas Tuesday, appeared rested. Both smiled and posed readily for photographers at the airport.

"I'm happy to be in Spain again, even though it is only for such a short visit," Miss Taylor said. She came here with her late husband, Mike Todd, just before he died in a plane crash last year.

"I'm enchanted as you say here to be at the side of my husband," she continued, while Fisher beamed happily.

Hundreds of admirers jammed the waterfront as the two sped to the yacht aboard a hired launch. The captain and his six-man crew, wearing white uniforms with blue trim, lined the rail. Miss Taylor rose from her seat in the launch to wave to the fans on shore.

The yacht, rented by Spiegal from a wealthy Swiss, had been stocked with fine wines, champagne, caviar and other delicacies for the honeymooners. Aboard were a French maid for Miss Taylor and a French chef equally adept at preparing American dishes and continental cuisine.

The yacht boasts a master bedroom with an over-sized bed said to be a copy of the one Christopher Columbus slept in on his way to discover the new world.

HAMBURG, Ark. (Special) — A jury of 11 men and one woman deliberated for slightly over two hours last night before ruling in favor of the three defendants in suit which grew out of the death of four girls in a wreck here a year and a half ago.

Plantiffs in the case were listed as C. W. Henderson, Mrs. Bernice Henderson, Dan Bunn, Mrs. Jessie Bunn, Mrs. Bernice Chapman and Mrs. O. C. Grim, parents of Myrtle Bunn, Jimmie Nell Russ, Kay Carver and Faith Henderson.

The suit asked $100,000 for each death for a $400,000 total. No damages at all were awarded.

Defendants were Jesse Harold Harrelson, driver of the truck involved in the collision with the girls' car; Otis Taylor, Negro whose car was pulled off the side of the highway but allegedly remained to some extent in the roadway, and the V. J. Tovatt Co., listed as the employer of Harrelson.

ON ARMED FORCES DAY

Air Research Chief Defends 'Eggheads'

WASHINGTON (UPI) The nation flexed its military muscles Saturday in observance of Armed Forces Day. The theme was "power for peace."

Top officials of the Army, Navy and Air Force addressed special celebrations in New York, Kansas City and Savannah, Ga. All three branches staged demonstrations and displays of their pet weapons.

In a speech prepared for delivery in Savannah Saturday night, Lt. Gen. B. A. Schriever, head of the Air Force's Air Research and Development Command, came to the defense of "eggheads," whom he described as the nation's salvation.

"It is a national disgrace that the term 'egghead,' as a synonym for intellectual excellence, has become a derogatory expression," Schriever said. "Let me tell you that it is the "eggheads' who are saving us — just as it was the 'eggheads' who wrote the Constitution of the United States."

Schriever also reported on the Air Force's "urgent, all-out effort to develop and to operationally deploy our own long range ballistic missiles." One of these, the Atlas, will become operational this year, he said.

What the nation needs today and in the future, Schriever said, is "optimum deterrent power — the power to knock out not only the enemy's economic and governmental organizations and facilities, but also his military installations."

Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, said in a speech prepared for delivery at Kansas City that submarines carrying Polaris missiles will be capable of "retaliation so certain, so inevitable, that any attack upon us becomes national suicide for the aggressor."

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, in a speech prepared for delivery to the New York chapter of the Military Order of World Wars, outlined a five-point program for deterrence of war.

All the armed services must participate in such a program, he said, and "we must overcome any impression that we are a country which can respond with a big bomb and little else."

To deter all-out war, the nation must have nuclear retaliatory force, a tight air defense system, strategic deployment of armed units overseas, and effective anti-submarine forces, Taylor said.

The fifth factor, he said, is a well-coordinated means of coping with limited war, with all services participating.

Civil Defense Funds

Unconvinced that Civil Defense efforts thus far have been of much material value, the house appropriations committee turned down a $2 million request for the balance of the current fiscal year and $12 million sought for the next fiscal year for the purpose of additional CD activities.

The committee appears to share the view of Senator Stephen Young (D-Ohio), who said earlier this year that most of the nearly one-half billion dollars appropriated for civil defense during the last nine years "has been wasted."

The Federal Civil Defense Administration already has 2,501 employes. Another 1,400 would be added on local levels at federal expense if congress should override the house committee's action. This is considered unlikely.

Chiefly because it is unconvinced of the soundness of theories and operations of civil defense, congress has never supported the Civil Defense Administration with any great degree of enthusiasm. The appropriation committee's recent action is further evidence that congressmen believe no concrete evidence of the value of the civil defense work has been supplied.

Civil Defense's mission is to train civilians in the matter of self-preservation if another all-out war should occur and if this country should be threatened by attack from air, sea or land. It wants to substitute sensible action for fear and panic if such an attack should occur. Some of the proposed objectives of Civil Defense have included bomb shelters, special police and firemen training for civilians, escape route instruction, and use of protective devices, such as gas masks.

So far there has not been much evidence of any accomplishment along these lines by Civil Defense.

Civil Defense officials have contended that they have not been able to get enough money from congress to make the program effective. On the other hand, many members of congress and many civilians believe there is not enough public interest to justify the present expenditure of money, much less any increase in funds. They see no way of jarring the people out of their apathy unless war should break out or become far more imminent than at present.

The present Civil Defense operation got its start when it appeared that the Korean conflict might trigger another world war. During the intervening period there has been a revolutionary change in weapons, modes of attack and prospects for mass survival in the event of enemy assault.

CD has vacillated considerably between the shelter and evacuation concepts and has conducted "exercises" which probably confused CD participants as much as the public. Some Civil Defense "mass meetings" have attracted "crowds" which consisted almost entirely of the CD officials and paid workers.

Each year when appropriations are being considered, congress reminds Civil Defense of its lack of realistic planning and administration and makes the reminder pointed by reducing the CD budget. This year is like the others.

Commenting on the reluctance of Congress to make appropriations, the Memphis Commercial Appeal has this final word to say:

"No agency of government on which nearly a half-billion dollars has been spent in less than a decade can claim that it has been neglected. There seems to be little to show for the expenditure and it is this lack which caused Senator Young to charge that the money had been wasted. There must be a workable civil defense plan but there is little evidence that it has yet been produced. A thorough overhauling of what the country has civil defense-wise is a pressing need."

Air-Car Is Reality

Announcement has been made by Curtiss-Wright Corp., airplane manufacturing concern, that it has "come down to earth" in one phase of its manufacturing. It has put cars on air, six to 12 inches from the ground, and they are available for use for experimental purposes.

For many years the automobile and the airplane have been far apart, one traveling on terra firma and the other flying. Now, unlike Rudyard Kipling's east and west, they are about to meet—in a vehicle that will soon be in common use.

When motorists first began riding on air the air was confined in rubber tires, and that is still the conventional way. When airplanes first began to fly they flew high into the air, and that is the way they still do, except that they go to far greater heights and at far faster speeds.

Ever since the first plane was flown by the Wright brothers at Kitty Hawk, N. C., in 1903 people have been wondering when the horseless carriage and the flying machine would merge and people would be able to fly in vehicles that resembled automobiles and traveled close to the ground when they wished to do so. That day has arrived and the vehicles have been produced. Some of these vehicles are able to travel on the ground or rise into the air while others ride the air but stay close to the ground. The latter are able to travel with equal ease over land, water or mud, so long as the surface is reasonably smooth.

It may seem strange that Curtiss-Wright Corp., a pioneer in aircraft manufacturing, should enter the flying auto field, but both airplane and automobile manufacturers have been moving in this direction.

At present the air-car is being offered in limited quantities for experimental off-highway use and testing. The firm will decide from experimental use on the size, power and design of the mass production model, which is expected within the fairly near future.

The air-car does not have conventional wheels, axles, brakes, clutches, transmissions and frame. It uses a conventional, piston-type gasoline engine ranging in size from 50 to 200 horsepower, well within the range of engines used by automobiles. It will carry one to four passengers and travel forward, backward, sideways or turn in a circle. It was described as oval-shaped and about the same length but slightly taller than an automobile. Weight will range from 1,000 to 2,000 pounds. A propeller in the back sucks air in from a top opening. The air emerging from vents at the bottom provides the cushion of air. Operating costs are said to be low.

Now that the air-car has been brought into reality both by airplane and automobile manufacturers, a vast new field of manufacturing has been opened. It will not supplant the other two giant fields but will augment them.

Protestants Get Into Big Dispute Over China

The protestants have got themselves into a row over China. A resolution was adopted by a World Order Study Conference, sponsored by the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., which proposed recognition of Red China by the United States and that Red China should be recognized by the United Nations. This resolution is reported to have been written by Dr. Ernest Gross who used to be in the State Department in the good old days when Dean Acheson was secretary of state.

So, Representative Walter H. Judd, who used to be a missionary in China, and Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, Rev. Daniel Poling, Bishop Herbert Welch and over 7,000 Protestant clergymen denounced the Gross Resolution. In fact, Dan Poling, who edits the Christian Herald and who is a great preacher and writer, led in the protest against the Gross Resolution. Dr. B. A. Garside wrote an article for the National Review, setting forth why Christian clergy should oppose the recognition of Red China. Among other things, he said:

* * *

"The Chinese Communist regime is inherently atheistic, and the enemy of every form of religion. It has compiled a massive record of imprisonment, torture, and sadism in its persecution of the adherents of every faith — Christianity, Buddhism, Mohammedanism. Authentic records of the suffering and martyrdom of many thousands of missionaries and Chinese Christians comprise a chapter of both tragedy and heroism rarely equalled in history —and that chapter is still being extended."

Rev. Irving E. Howard in Christian Economics said:

"Reacting quickly to the unfavorable opinion, the National Council of Churches prodded Dr. Ernest Gross, chairman of the Department of International Affairs, to make a public statement to the effect that what had occurred at the Cleveland Meeting 'was the action of the World Order Study Conference and not of the National Council of Churches.' While this may be technically true, the meeting at Cleveland was called by the president of the National Council of Churches and was authorized by the General Board of the National Council of Churches in May, 1957. Furthermore, the same names appeared at Cleveland which appear at every National Council Meeting...

"Dr. Herbert S. Mekeel, president of the National Association of Evangelicals, has denounced the immorality of such recognition. 'Red China's leaders have scorned every known moral principle in the treatment of her own people and of other nations.' Dr. Mekeel continued: 'Chinese Reds have out-distanced their Russian masters... nothing has been too base, vile, or cruel if it gains their ends.'"

* * *

A statement issued by the Clergymen's Committee, organized to protest the Gross Resolution, said:

"We firmly believe that the action taken in Cleveland does not represent the thinking of the overwhelming majority of American Protestants, clergy and lay. We believe that it must be taken as merely the point of view of those delegates who voted for it. Further, we believe that this action is inconsistent not only with the standards of the United Nations but also with the clear principles of morality and Christian faith."

Enough for quotations! What is shown here is that those who drafted and arranged for the passage of this resolution did not count on the emotional response in this country to the attempt to influence public opinion favorably to Red China. Gross did not realize that to many Protestants as to men and women of other faiths, Red China is more hated than Soviet Russia, for Red China intervened in the Korean War, killed and brainwashed American troops and attempted to shoot its way into the United Nations.

* * *

Did Ernest Gross believe that Dan Poling whose son went down in one of the most dramatic events in naval history, when four chaplains of various faiths linked their arms and accepted death to save lives—will such a man forget the barbarity of the Chinese murders of Americans in Korea? It is too hard to forget and forgive such barbarism. It will take the Chinese Reds a long time to win the respect not only of Westerners who do not understand their inhumanity but of the peoples of Southeast Asia who are ashamed of them. What Ernest Gross, who has been in the State Department, believed he would accomplish by a captive resolution, is difficult to grasp. But nothing would please the Chinese Reds more than American recognition and they undoubtedly bring pressure to bear.

Over-Nutrition Ups Delinquency

NEW YORK (AP)—Human nutrition has reached the point where experts feel, that by controlled feeding, a population can be matured earlier, enjoy a longer prime of life, or extend its actual longevity.

But which of these three goals does a society want?

"They are quite different things," pointed out Dr. Robert S. Goodhart, scientific director of the National Vitamin Foundation, a nonprofit organization.

* * *

"What is optimal nutrition? It depends on what you want.

"If we and the Russians are engaged in trying to build up big armies, we can do this by maturing our youths faster, but they'll be dying of coronary attacks and other degenerative diseases in their 40s and 50s.

"The earlier an animal matures the earlier it dies."

Dr. Goodhart said it would be possible to add potential years to a child's life by keeping him thin and small and postponing the development of his maturity as long as possible. But the price would be a lowered vitality.

"Later I myself would probably want to take him out and shoot him, because he would be useless to society," he said.

"The idea of merely living as long as possible is, it seems to me, a lousy ambition."

Dr. Goodhart feels the average child fares best if fed a diet that allows him to mature at his own pace rather than one that spurs him into a forced growth.

"A lot of us are concerned," he said, "about mothers who worry about the fact their child is smaller—even though he may be actually healthier—than the boy next door.

* * *

"In trying to make him grow taller by overstuffing him with calories and proteins, these mothers merely may be bringing him to his final stature.

"The question is whether forced growing does anything more than bring on this early maturity."

The rise in juvenile delinquency, Dr. Goodhart says, may be, in part at least, explained by a conflict in what American society expects of its young people.

"We are feeding them diets that mature them earlier physically and mentally," he said, "but at the same time we are trying to keep them children longer emotionally.

"This is particularly true in the upper classes, which want to send their sons and daughters through college and don't like them to get married until they are well into their 20s."

This, he thinks, creates an area of explosive tension.

Six Mississippi Residents Hurt In Car Accident

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Six Mississippians received minor injuries Friday night when a car hit their taxicab as they returned to their hotel from dinner.

The six were Mrs. Elizabeth Cossar, Stuart McCloskey and teenagers Pat Stamm, Kay Fruetel, Linda Bovay and Peggy Gastrell, all of Vicksburg, Miss.

The six were here for the presentation of the melodrama "Gold In The Hills" aboard the sternwheeler Sprague.

And Unto Dust—

If ever you have any doubt... That God is real and true... Consider all the blessings good... He has bestowed on you... Consider every breath your lungs... Have taken since your birth... Each moment of this life that you... Have been allowed on earth... Why were you ever born and why... Are you alive today?... And what enables you to strive... To live your chosen way?... Somebody had to give you life... Who else could that one be... Except Almighty God, The King... Of all eternity?... And someday you will have to die... As everybody must... And God will be your judge, as He... Evaluates your dust.

Frontiering Is Tough As Ever

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Nobody ever said it was easy to be a pioneer, but frontier - breaking today is as tough in many ways as it used to be. My case in point is a "college" president, Austin H. Welch, an established engineer - educator in his mid-50's, with a vision in his head and one foot across the border of accomplishment.

All that Mr. Welch wants to do is make his College of Advanced Science, Canaan, New Hampshire, a reality. You'd think that would be easy enough in this age when the worship of scientific education is virtually a religion. We have a former university president in the White House and an unusual number of professors in the Senate. A new National Defense Education Act went on the books from last year, and Soviet Russia is breathing down our necks in a race for world technological supremacy and survival.

Mr. Welch, a graduate of Worcester Polytechnic Institute, Worcester (Mass.) and from 1954-50 a faculty member of the University of New Hampshire, is a believer in the law of supply-and-demand. The demand exists, as hardly anybody would dispute, for intensive two - year graduate courses in physics. The purpose would be to bridge the gap between our theoretical scientists and working engineers. Mr. Welch was lucky at first. Some three years ago Mount Cardigan prep school, at Canaan, received an endowment and moved to a new location. This left an educational plant open, and Mr. Welch plunged at the opportunity. He acquired the school campus and equipment.

In the old days a pioneer had to cross rivers, mountains and deserts. He had to face savage men and beasts. Today the frontiersman - of - ideas finds it equally hazardous to advance. He must fight his way through the modern wilderness of governmental - corporational - stand - pattism. Mr. Welch, as I have learned, ran into many obstacles.

* * *

The prep school insisted upon restrictive educational covenants to prevent any competition with its curriculum. The Attorney General's office (N. H.) had legalistic quibbles about the granting of a charter. Two potential faculty members, both well equipped to teach advanced physics, ran into trouble about the security clearances. One was German - born, the other proved to be a "questionable" case.

Industry showed itself avid for graduates, but generally not much interested in graduates - to - be. Foundations were skeptical, and at least one wealthy "angel" proved cynical. He offered to raise a six - figure sum, but only if he could put a no - good relative on the payroll. Most discouraging of all was the interpretation given to last year's huge, "emergency" Federal aid bill, voted in the name of "defense." The money was available to "new" programs, but only in established institutions.

* * *

Some of the journey, of course, was downhill and under pleasant circumstances. Senator Styles Bridges and Congressman Perkins Bass showed interest and encouragement. Several individual firms reached down and made financial contributions. Two were publishers — Henry Holt and Company and the Conover-Mast magazine group. Two were fabricators — Norfolk Shipbuilding - Drydock Company and Globe Manufacturing Company. Oddly as it seems a large investment company came through with a donation. So did a well - known whiskey distillery.

In addition to money, the venture has attracted a top - level board of trustees. It includes a former Dartmouth College president, an Associate Justice of the State Supreme Court, a Remington Rand vice president, a U. S. Army brigadier general of engineers who was once a Rhodes Scholar in physics, as well as two prominent businessmen from Connecticut and Massachusetts.

* * *

Still, after three years of active struggle, the College of Advanced Science is not a going concern. It has its campus, its primary equipment, its president, its trustees, some of its staff, part of its funds — but not a student body, not an upcoming class of graduates.

Despite the wailing of politicians and the bleating of educationist press agents, the American desire for expanded educational facilities seems frustrated in I - dare - not inhibitions and tangled in the red tape of over-organization.

Well, the American frontier literature sings lustily of tall mountains and foaming streams. The covered wagons on the deserts were not air - conditioned, and the Indians were not filled with loving kindness. My guess is that where there's a will, there's a way. Mr. Welch and others like him will get there yet.

BASCOM TIMMONS

Might Investigate La. Voting Rights

WASHINGTON — The Civil Rights Commission has reported a spurt of voting rights complaints from Louisiana and is still considering holding a full-scale investigation of them.

The Commission said it received 95 complaints from Louisianans who claimed interference with their voting privilege since the agency began operation in 1957. Sixty - four of these were sent since last Feb. 16.

The often confusing testimony by Commission Chairman John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University, and Commission Staff Director Gordon M. Tiffany revealed these points:

* * *

1. Of the 79 sworn voting complaints received between Feb. 16 and April 30, when the closed hearings were held, 64 came from nine Louisiana parishes. Fourteen were from Webster parish, 11 from De Soto, and others were from Bienville, Bossier, Caddo, Claiborne, Jackson, Ouachita and Red River parishes.

No explanation for the increase in Louisiana complaints was given and no names of complainers were released.

2. Hannah testified that the commission is still considering "one more" open hearing on voting conditions, apparently like those held in Alabama last fall.

Asked for details by Rep. Prince H. Preston (D) Ga., Hannah added: "We may have to have another one because so far, we have not been able to get the degree of cooperation from local officials that makes it possible for us to find the facts (in one of the states)."

From other sources, it was learned that the Commission discussed holding a public hearing in Northern Louisiana when it met in Atlanta last month, but instead decided to postpone action until its May meeting.

In the meantime, Tiffany conferred with Louisiana officials in Baton Rouge concerning Louisiana law that closed certain election records except to local residents who petition to see them. Tiffany is known to have reported back to the Commission, meeting in Chicago May 6, that he had no success but the Commission resolved to try another but so far unspecified approach to collect the information.

* * *

Any decision to hold an investigation has thus been postponed until the Commission's next meeting, in Los Angeles in mid-June.

The Appropriations hearings also revealed that the Commission has received a total of 253 sworn complaints of alleged voting violations since 1957. Of these 104 are from Alabama, 88 from Louisiana (plus seven unsworn complaints), and 40 from Mississippi.

The rest are mostly from Southern states, but New York, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana are also represented.

The Commission said it had also received 498 so-called "'regular" complaints unrelated to voting but protesting police brutality, housing discrimination, and other grievances. The largest number of these came from New York.

Hayes Proclaims His Candidacy For Re-Election

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner Rufus B. Hayes Saturday formally announced he will seek re-election in the December democratic primary.

Hayes pledged to continue fair and impartial administration of state insurance laws. He said need for such administration was growing in the insurance field.

Hayes, chairman of the democratic state central committee, is a graduate of Louisiana College in Pineville and of the Louisiana State University law school.

He is a former district attorney for East Baton Rouge Parish and former chairman of the Louisiana Board of Tax Appeals.

Others who have announced for the post include Paul Tate, 32-year-old Mamou assistant district attorney and Harley McCall, independent Lake Charles insurance agent.

The first settlement of Boston was by Puritans headed by John Winthrop in 1630.

Reporter Views Drama Of Depressing Angola

(Editor's Note: News-Star and World reporter Sam Hanna made a tour the past week of the state penitentiary at Angola. In the following dispatch he tells of what he saw and felt.)

By SAM HANNA

BATON ROUGE — Angola State Penitentiary sprawls over 18,000 acres in a corner of West Feliciana Parish across the river from Missisippi.

The Missisippi River surrounds it on three sides and you wonder how anybody could escape, but they have.

A guard stops all visitors at the main gate and takes a quick look into their car trunks. It wouldn't have taken much to get something in or bring something out.

We drove down a blacktop road to the administration building and talked to two associate wardens, J. Wayne Allgood and Ernest Welch. Ernest Welch was a school teacher in East Carroll Parish before coming to Angola three years ago.

A few minutes later Allgood escorted us on a tour past the automatic gates, bars and metal-finders and towering fences with nests of barb-wire on top.

The first people we saw were two deputies from Morehouse Parish. "What are you doing down here" They asked.

On the way out we bumped into Hess Curry, working as Angola athletic director. The last time we saw Hes Curry he was a jarring guard called "ironman" at Tallulah High School around '47 or '48.

The "opulation" at Angola livesin dormitories. The floors are clean and the bunks are good. They have television. Each dormitory has a guard.

A whistle gives the chow signal and the "citizens" file in long strings down open corridors to the mess hall. They look young. They are young. Average age at Angola is 25.

In the rear of the mess hall we talked to Ben Johnson. Gravemberg labeled Ben Johnson the "vice king." Ben Johnson is a Ben is in on a Narcotics char. He says Grevemberg planted a "squealer" in his midst and framed him.

"Mr. Clinton," Ben said to Ed Clinton of the Baton Rouge papers, "Is there any hope?"

Long's "forgotten man" committee has given hope to those who can't afford lawyers for parole fees. Ben had a big wad when he started. He gave it all to his lawyers.

The first row of inmates we walked past were those who could not adjust to life in prison. They were on us. But some dropped their heads. One was a spastic. were "squealers" and "troublemakers" who "live in the grease."

We got the feeling that all eyes His eyes rolled as though he was beckoning to Allgood.

He was caught with "ole wooden ear," the infamous Angolite editor who couldn't stay out.

We made arrangements to exchange papers and he returned to his busy duties. He said he works from 6 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. some nights. He says he needs an assistant. But he's expecting one. He told us so.

We walked down off the corridors and across the yard. A long file of inmates got the "shake-down" treatment as they stepped one by one through a gate from the workshops.

In a workshop we saw next year's license plates. Although the legislature hasn't approved the change, the license plates are being made. They read, "LSU Centennial."

TRUCK PLATES

Truck plates will be red in base color trimmed in yellow. Auto tags will be purple and gold the L.S.U. School colors.

Making licenses for the state is the biggest business at Angola.

We stepped off toward the death house and passed a little rose garden. It is nursed by a young man who murdered a homosexual.

Inmates convicted of murder and manslaughter make the best trustees and guards.

Located next to the death house is a small building that looks like a skinny toolshop. They opened the door and past a row of seats we could see the silvery outline of the electric chair.

"That's it," explained the trusty, "That's it with the strap hanging down." Prisoners sentenced to die come to the death house 24 hours before the execution. They're given a chance to say a final word before switches are thrown.

Allgood has never witnessed an execution. Clinton has covered 33 in Louisiana and 19 out of state. He was the only reporter who would go.

He saw a man talk for an hour and a half once before the first charge was given...

Asked if he had anything else to say, the doomed man's last works were, "yea, sit in my lap, you. . . ."

We came to the main gate. On a hill nearby sat the hospital and a building for prisoners in solitary. Brodie Davis was in there.

The gate opened and we drove into the free hills outside the prison. Angola is depressing.

Triplets Born To Couple Here

Good news came in triplicate at St. Francis Hospital last night. Two boys and a girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. William Rex Mathieu, of 501 North McGuire.

Attendants reported they were in good condition, but no statistics were available on their weights.

The first vessel to fly the Continental flag in the American Revolution was the schooner Hannah, built at Beverly, Mass.

Gravel Pit Tift Brings Charges

changed to "threatening to kill, aggravated assault."

Another charge against Peele originally was given as breaking and entering, but was changed to trespassing and simple destruction of property.

Neither Peele nor Partin was under arrest. They were formally advised of the charges by a St. Helena deputy.

Partin said the charges stem from an incident some four months ago, involving sand and gravel hauling from the Hood location to Altex Ready-Mix Concrete Co. of Baton Rouge.

Hood said Peele threatened Morgan when Morgan stopped for gasoline at a service station. Peele advised Morgan, he said, not to drive his truck into the Hood gravel pit.

Partin said a guard gave all the teamsters and teamsters' pickets permission to use the "shack" and left open a window so they could use the telephone.

Russia Okays Nuclear Ban Inspections

be fixed in advance will obviate the necessity of having the matter voted or agreed on in the control commission or in any other agency," Khrushchev said.

Macmillan had proposed that an East - West control group authorize an inspection only after reviewing scientific data which indicated that an illegal nuclear test had occurred.

Khrushchev said: "Inspection teams could be sent for instance, within the limit of an agreed number at the request of any of the original parties to the agreement on the stopping of the nuclear tests, that is the United States, the U. S. S. R. and Great Britain, whenever the instrument readings of the control posts give reason to suspect any phenomenon as being a nuclear explosion."

The issue of controls and inspection have been major roadblocks in the three - power nuclear talks which began in Geneva last Oct. 31. The talks currently are in recess.

"We are prepared to undertake to guarantee the timely and unimpeded access of inspection groups to any region within the Soviet Union where phenomena suspected as being nuclear explosions might be observed," Khrushchev said in the letter to Eisenhower.

State Solons Prepare For Second Round

taken the cover off its bills, but the governor is outspoken in his intent to see that a bill removes Martin from the state voting machine board.

OTHER MATTERS

On other matters, Long said he will set the filing date for the December election back from September 5 to September 19.

"I'm going to do that," he told the House and Senate Wednesday night," because nobody knows about the election."

Lt. Gov. Lethar Frazar, seated next to the Governor when Long made the remark, broke into a big chuckle.

Highlighting the session to date has been Long's frank discussions about federal agents investigating his income. In Washington over the weekend, the Governor said he asked the Federal Government to postpone the investigation until after the legislature or the gubernatorial race.

Northeast Louisiana Legislators have introduced about 20 bills, calling for appropriations for local projects, including fairs and festivals and trade schools.

Sen. James Sparks' bill to create zoning power for the Ouachita Parish Police Jury will be up for a vote this week and Rep. Lawrence Gibbs and Rep. Gilbert Faulk will introduce a bill asking for $1-million for capital outlay at Northeast State College.

Meanwhile, the Ouachita delegation appears to be the only question mark in regards to upcoming elections. Sparks, Faulk and Gibbs all are non-committal.

All other Monroe area legislators are open in their hopes of being re-elected.

JAILED

Hamp Jones, 1103 Texas Ave., was in city jail last night after being charged with drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon, Monroe Police said.

Bond was set at $350.

Spain has purchased more than one billion pounds of surplus food fats and oils from the U. S. since 1954. Yugoslavia is the second largest buyer with 366 million pounds.

Profits Rise May Balance Ike's Budget

ocratic leaders seem increasingly anxious to repudiate the "spender" label, and Eisenhower's aides have become correspondingly more hopeful.

One administration economist believes 1960 profits may reach 50 to 51 billion dollars, about 5 billion above any previous year.

The striking improvement in jobs in March and April suggests that wage earners, as well as business managers, may pay more taxes than the Treasury expected of them.

The budget anticipated about 34¾ billion dollars in personal income tax collections in the fiscal year starting July 1. This was based on the estimated 374 billion dollars of personal income in this calendar year.

Many critics in January called that an unrealistic guess because the income rate then was only about 360 billion and joblessness had stayed disturbingly high despite the otherwise notable recovery of business activity.

Then April brought a drop in unemployment and a rise in employment about twice the normal size for the season. In March and April alone employment gained 2¼ million, and unemployment dropped by 1,100,000.

Since every billion dollars of income adds about 150 million dollars to income tax collections, the Treasury could benefit appreciably by these lengthening payrolls and fattening paychecks, although less handsomely than from the spectacular climb of corporate profits.

Officially the administration has not changed its January budget estimates—77 billion dollars of spending, with receipts matching that total and leaving a scant 70 million dollar surplus.

The Treasury and Budget Bureau are not expected to revise the estimates until they issue the midyear budget review in September. By then Congress presumably will have stopped appropriating, gone home, and won't be around to spend any extra revenues that turn up.

But Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson has hinted that he expects improvement. In his April 30 speech to the annual meeting of The Associated Press, he said: "Today I believe there is even more evidence to support this (77 billion dollar revenue) estimate than there was last January."

This clashed with an earlier estimate of the House Ways and Means Committee staff that revenues would fall more than a billion dollars short of Eisenhower's goal.

Says Parts 'Worthy Of Discussion'

flatly that there would be no summit conference just because Khrushchev wanted one. He stressed the U.S. insistence that the foreign ministers must make progress before President Eisenhower would sit down to a meeting with Khrushchev.

There was belief that Russia might give just enough to win the summit meeting. It was learned that the U.S., Britain and France were preparing for such a meeting in mid-July, possibly in San Francisco.

Khrushchev revealed the Russian position on the Western plan for Berlin, German reunification and European security in an apparent attempt to test Western unity.

The Western package was presented as an indissoluble whole—all or nothing. The Soviets countered with a demand that there be a separate peace treaty made with each of the two Germanies and then a discussion of the Soviet demand that the Western powers clear out of West Berlin and turn it into a "free city."

Khrushchev stressed that this remained the Russian goal. It would be up to Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to try to exploit the Soviet stand and probe for weaknesses in the Western united front.

"Questions must be taken separately and not together, as is being done by the Western powers into one big knot which cannot be untied," Khrushchev said.

He said the Western plan was actually nothing but "the plan of the cold war, the plan for the conduct of policy from positions of strength."

The Soviet Premier specifically rejected the Western proposal for a European security system unless the Allies first "liquidated" military bases in Europe and withdrew armed forces from foreign soil.

Such a demand would mean the end of NATO and the return home of all U.S. forces abroad.

Western diplomats believed that this time Gromyko would try to break the Berlin issue off from the rest of the Western plan and seek agreement on the German city separately.

U.S. sources said the West was willing to discuss Berlin separately, but only on condition that any settlement of the divided city be tied into the rest of the Western package plan

Jeff Lee and Walker said the FBI asked them to take lie detector tests but they refused. Lee said he and his father were advised by the agents to hire a lawyer. All have denied taking part in the lynching.

Activity was stepped up during the last three days by the more than 40 FBI agents here on the case.

acting today. I'm afraid the poor old fellow has come to the end of his row. He is sick, tired and ready for a rocking chair."

At Many, Dodd said, "I will make the political climate so attractive to the public and industry, that we will get the payroll producing operations our economy so badly needs."

At Roberline, Dodd said, "Oil and gas royalties from production on state-owned lands are increasing at a rate sufficient to take care of the increasing needs of education and our other expanding programs.

"These oil revenues can be budgeted because they are reoccuring revenues. And this money. . .makes additional taxes unnecessary."

At Natchitoches, Dodd said, "I am 100 per cent for the increased pay for school personnel. I will continue the old age pensions, our charity hospitals and such other programs as are needed for the sick and underprivileged. But I am opposed to the waste and extravagance that now has become a part of many of these programs."

"It's got so bad it was costing me 38 cents a dozen to produce and the dealers would only pay me 22 cents. How can you make money?"

The last three years, he said, many poultrymen have been getting out of the egg business.

"Poultry farmers are going into industry; they don't want to stay and get hurt," he said.

To prove his point, Garjian gave away 460 dozen eggs between the hours of 9 a. m. and 12 noon Saturday.

"I think it the giveaway made people around here aware that eggs are reasonable in price; that the industry is in tough shape. Maybe it has helped," he said.

Officers apprehended Robinson at Sixth and Adams streets. The incident occurred about 2:50 p.m. yesterday.

She was rated and reviewed by Dr. Donald C. Streeter of the University of Houston, and was acclaimed for her artistic voice control and general sensitivity to thoughts that bring out the fullness of the poem.

Other schools which sent representatives to the festival are Louisiana State University, Southwestern Louisiana Institute, Tulane and Southeastern.

State Closes Highway 83 Near Louisa

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana Highway Department Saturday ordered State Highway 83 closed to traffic between Louisa and the Cypreemort Point resort area because of a damaged bridge.

Highway Director R. B. Richardson said a tug and barge tow rammed the bridge Friday night and caused $5,000 to $10,000 damage to the swing span bridge over the Intracoastal Waterway.

Richardson placed a note of urgency in the notice because weekend crowds normally go to the beach resort area over the bridge.

Cypremort Point is about 30 miles southeast of New Iberia on the Gulf of Mexico.

Highway Department crews under district supervisor J. E. Jarman of Lafayette began repair work on the bridge immediately. Jarman indicated the repairs will require about 10 days.

The Highway Department did not immediately have the identity of the tug and barges.

Art Seniors Exhibit Today

Art Exhibit Is Featured At Northeast

Featured today on the Northeast State campus will be an exhibit of the work of the first graduating seniors in the art section of the Fine Arts Division.

Betty Woodhead of Sterlington and Marcel Bloch of Pineville will have a display of representative pieces of their work which they have done since they entered the college here.

The public is invited to view the exhibit in the Student Lounge between 3 and 5 p. m. A coffee hour also is planned for the afternoon affair.

Both students have studied with Mrs. Gregor Goethals and Ed Schutz of the art faculty.

Included in the display will be oil paintings, sculpture, graphic arts, mosaics and a variety of woven materials.

Today's show will initiate the plan to have exhibits of art majors who are degree candidates become established requirements.

Bloch is a graduate of Donaldsonville High School and he has done some study at Southeastern Louisiana College. He holds membership in the Northeast chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, national music fraternity. Both he and Mrs. Woodhead are minoring in social studies.

Forgery Suspect Posts Bond Here

A West Monroe teen-ager, Linda Taylor, 17, 204 Pine St., West Monroe, was out on $2,000 bond yesterday after being picked up by West Monroe Police Friday and charged with three counts of forgery, officials said.

Detectives with West Monroe Police said the girl cashed a check for $45 on May 1, and two checks, one for $50 and one for $200, on May 4. All checks were cashed at a West Monroe bank, authorities added, with a forged signature.

Thelbert Lewis, 17, Powell Avenue, Monroe, was being held in the Monroe City Jail yesterday for questioning in connection with the forgeries, officials said.

It was not believed charges had been filed against Lewis last night.

Legal Obstacle On Pearl River Project Cleared

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — The last legal obstacle to construction of a 25-million dollar reservoir on the Pearl River was cleared Saturday with announcement that contesting landowners would not make another court appeal.

The State Supreme Court had approved the project earlier. Dr. Ben N. Walker Sr., and Lewis L. Culley said they had decided against appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The project, authorized by the 1958 Legislature, calls for construction of an earth dam across the Pearl River north of here to provide a 20-mile-long lake for recreation and industrial uses.

TOKYO (UPI)—Mao Tse-tung received visitors from 16 countries and regions of Asia, Africa and South America in Peiping on Friday, the Communist New China news agency reported. The agency said Red China's No. 1 official and his visitors "had a cordial talk".

Senator Claims South's Schools Are In Jeopardy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.) charged Saturday that the proposed civil rights bills might lead to the destruction of the South's educational system.

Hill, who testified against the bills before the Senate judiciary subcommittee this week, said they were "unwarranted, unnecessary and indefensible."

He said one of the measures would provide "the engine of possible destruction of our educational system in a large part of the country during this crucial hour when we are engaged in an economic, educational and scientific struggle" with Russian communism.

"I can find nothing in any of the so-called civil rights bills to merit the approbation of a free people," the Alabama Democrat said.

Hill said some of the measures would permit the U.S. attorney general to "meddle in law suits" and would replace "established criminal procedures with government by injunction."

ABDALLA ELIAS

Abdalla Elias Awarded JC Honor Title

The Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce announced recently that Abdalla Louis Elias, 17, a St. Matthews High School senior, has been named this year's winner of the organization's Self-Reliance Award, which is presented annually to the local high school senior who "makes the best use of his or her time," according to Jaycee President Joe Rabun.

Formal presentation of the award is to be made May 25 at the St. Matthews Junior-Senior prom. Elias and his father, Louis, will be presented to Jaycee membership May 18.

Bob Cooper, chairman of the Self-Reliance Committee, said St. Matthews was the only school to participate this year. "We were late in getting the project started, but will start our surveys in September or October to determine the 1959-60 winner," he commented.

AWARDED

Elias was awarded the honor for his outstanding school, church, and vocational activities. He has been a class officer the last three years and currently serves as vice president of the student council. He was president of the junior class last year.

He is also present president of the Latin club in high school, and he was a delegate to Pelican Boys State.

In church, he is an alter boy, belongs to the Catholic Youth Organization, and is a member of the Sodility Club. He is an active leader in the Boy Scouts Organization, and he plans to study to become an Orthodentist after graduation.

Railroad Train Topples Depot In Derailment

SAULSBURY, Tenn. (UPI) —A fast Southern Railroad freight was derailed here Saturday. The train knocked flat the one-story frame depot, but nobody was injured.

About 10 or 12 cars were derailed, and some of the cars started burning. Firemen from Grand Junction, LaGrange and Bolivar were called to extinguish the fire.

C. E. Cox, cashier of Hademan County Savings Bank, said it was "lucky" that the depot was not staffed at the time.

Mrs. M.H. Lageman, who works in the depot Mondays through Fridays, was at home when the train crashed into the depot shortly after noon CST.

The derailment occurred about the middle of the train. The first cars and the cars in the rear were standing. But the middle section hit the depot and rolled over a twisted mass of wreckage.

The downgrade is considered steep where the mishap occurred.

CONSOLATION

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) — Thurston Adams, chairman of the University of Vermont agricultural economics department, said food prices may be higher than in pre-war days, but a day's wages brings in a lot more groceries.

He said "People are buying more and better food for the same share of their income as 20 years ago."

DIFFERENT TWIST

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Juan is a favorite theater theme, but playwright George Axelrod has found an entirely new switch on the story for his new play, "Goodbye, Charlie."

This is the author's description of the script which is due on Broadway next season:

"The story is about a modern Don Juan. Before the play opens he has been shot by an irate husband. As punishment he is compelled to return to earth as the most beautiful girl in the world."

Car-Train Crash Fatal For Seven

MATTOON, Ill. (UPI) — Seven teenagers returning home from a formal high school prom were killed Saturday when a passenger train slammed into their car at an unguarded country crossing near here.

Some of the victims were hurled 100 yards by the impact of the collision.

Although there were no witnesses on the immediate scene, persons who saw the mishap from a distance the train "opened the car up like a tin can."

Six of the car's eight occupants, all dressed in party formals and dinner jackets, were dead on arrival at Memorial Hospital here. They included three girls and three boys. A fourth girl, Dorothy Thomas, 18, died several hours after the crash.

Ivan Moon, 22, believed to have been the driver of the car, was the only occupant of the auto still alive. But hospital authorities said he was still unconscious and in "very bad shape."

Those killed instantly in the accident were identified as Jerry Hill, 18, Ilene Moon, 16, Lyle Pfeiffer, 18, his sister, Loraine, 17 Judy Keen, 18, and Jerry Ray Hays, 19.

Hill, Pfeiffer, Miss Thomas and Miss Keen were to have graduated this spring from Shelbyville High School, 23 miles west of here, where the annual junior-senior prom was held Friday night. The prom also was a birthday celebration for Miss Keen, who was 18 Friday.

Miss Moon was the highest ranking girl scholastically in the junior class, and was to have been inducted into the National Honor Society Monday.

C. R. Segley, principal of Shelbyville High, said the bodies were so badly mangled he could not even recognize the dresses of the girls, which he had seen at the prom only a few hours earlier.

Shelbyville was the scene of frenzied confusion shortly after the accident, Cole County Deputy Coroner J. E. Caudill said, when police and hospital personnel called parents in attempts to identify the dead. Many of the children had not arrived home yet from the prom.

"I have two girls myself," Caudill said. "When they called me, I only knew that they weren't home.

Country Club Luncheon Honors Bride-Elect Miss Louise Lester

A beautiful luncheon was given on Saturday by Mrs. W. C. Feazel and Miss Lallage Feazel honoring bride-elect, Miss Louise Lester. This was held at the Bayou DeSiard Club. A pink and white theme was used throughout the luncheon. A white cloth covered the table with two very large pink Venetian glass compotes, one on either end of the table, and holding old fashioned nosegays of pink carnations, white mums and ivy trailing on the sides, they resembled a bridal bouquet. In the center was placed a pink candelabrum with burning tapers, matching the Venetian compotes. Attractive place cards were used picturing a bride and groom and the bride was holding a pink bridal bouquet.

The bride-elect and the two mothers were presented pink and white carnation corsages by the hostesses.

A four course luncheon was served to the honoree, her mother, Mrs. A. J. Lester, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. William Norris Jr., Miss Amy Hood, Miss Mary Beth Rogers, Miss Coralie White, Miss Mary Elizabeth Heard, Miss Judy Carter and the two hostesses.

The hostesses presented Miss Lester with a piece of her chosen silver as a wedding gift. Also a bottle of perfume as a graduation gift.

Lt. Joseph Bowmar C.A.R. Climax Year's Activities With Trip To Vicksburg

A wonderful trip to the Vicksburg battlegrounds climaxed a fine year for the members of the Lt. Joseph Bowmar Chapter, C. A. R. En route the group enjoyed a delightful refreshment hour at the Omega Plantation near Tallulah. Delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. J. G. Wyly and her daughter, Mavis.

Upon arrival at Vicksburg the Monroe members joined the members of the Sarah Randolph Boone Chapter for a picnic lunch in the park. Following the lunch the entire group visited the museum which provided the historical backgound of the War between the States in this area. Ranger Jim Coleman gave a highly interesting and educational talk on the seige and defense of Vicksburg.

The group then toured the National Military Park by bus. The itinerary included Confederate Avenue, Union Avenue, and the many state monuments and memorials.

Impressive memorial services were held at the Louisiana and Mississippi Memorials. At the Louisiana Memorial, Don Jones, president of the Vicksburg society, presented to Dottie Amman, incoming president of Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, and Patty Prophit, out-going president, a wreath to be placed on the Memorial. The services was led by Sage Redding, chaplain of Lt. Joseph Bowmar. In charge of the service at the Mississippi Memorial was Barbara Balthis chaplain of the Sarah Randolph Boone Society. Assisting her was Don Jones, chapter president.

Those present from Vicksburg were Mrs. R. F. Balthis, Jr., senior president, Mrs. Lawson N. Dick, honorary senior president, Mrs. Q. E. Werlein, Mrs. Ackland Jone, John Showman, Diane Russell, Carol Russell, Carolyn Crosby, Dickie Balthis, Carolyn Dick, Barbara Balthis, Sheila Stone, Margaret Stone, Carol Conway, Rollin Rhodes, Arthur Gardner, Rusty Balthis, and Croftin Rhodes.

Those making the trip from Monroe were Mrs. S. W. McLean, senior president, Mr. S. W. McLean, Mr. Alston Prophit, Mrs. C. W. Butler, Mrs. Richard Pierce Margaret Moore, Bunny Buckner, Lynn Smith, Dottie Amman, Minta Goyne, Jody Biedenharn, Alice Butler, Dale Guilkey, Sage Redding, Patty Prophit, Sally Pierce, and Barbara Buckner.

Martha Riser Selected For Jr. Yr. Abroad

Miss Martha Riser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Riser has been selected for study in the Tulane - Newcomb Junior Year Abroad Program for the 1959-60 school year, Dr. John H. Stibbs, dean of students at Tulane University, announced recently.

Under the program, superior students in the college of arts and sciences and Newcomb spend their third year of college studying at selected universities in Europe.

Dr. Haley Thomas, program director, said the students will sail for Europe in August, and will return July, 1960.

Miss Riser, one of 45 Tulane students selected for the program next year, will study at the University college of the University of London.

Miss Riser, who lives at 1408 Forsythe, is a member of Chi Omega social sorority at Newcomb.

This is the sixth year that this program has been in effect. Monroe has been very fortunate to have been represented by three girls, other than Miss Riser. They were Miss Geney Wilson, Miss Linda Hornbeak, and Miss Margaret Louise Taylor.

Suit Pantry To A T-Bone

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—Housewives in the future may be able to open their pantry shelf and select a T-bone steak for dinner.

That's possible, says Arthur Mauch, a Michigan State University agricultural economics professor.

"We soon may be able to sterilize food with gamma rays so that a T-bone steak can be stored on a shelf in the pantry, to be dusted off and barbecued years later," he said.

Everyone is talking about satellites and rockets these days, but how well od we understand the terms? Here are a few definitions in a space dictionary which crossed our desk this week:

ESCAPE VELOCITY—speed of the help at quitting time.

MARTIAN—music for soldiers to march to.

METEOR — something you forget to put a nickel in.

NEW FUEL—nothing like an old one.

ROCKET—noise made by the kids while you are phoning.

One of the loveliest parties of this—or any other—season was that which honored the JOE POWELLS and the SLADE BROWNS at the Paragon club last Saturday night. Hosts were the LEE VANDERPOOLS, the HENRY BIEDENHARNS, JR., the EVANS ETHRIDGES, the JOHNNY SHERROUSES, JR., and the KIRT TOUCHSTONES.

Copper and brass appointments were used with yellow flowers throughout the club. In the entrance and the main dining room were Bird of Paradise flowers and specimen yellow crysanthemums. Yellow gladiolas in an outstanding vertical arrangement were placed on the circular buffet table on the porch.

Unusually interesting food was served from the long buffet table which extended down one wall of the dining room. Marinated carb meat was served in patty shells. There was turkey, ham, tiny hot meat balls, teri-yaki, assorted cheeses, broiled bacon-wrapped olives, liver pate. On a table across the room was a large swan carved from ice, centering a platter of shrimp. A cup in the swan's back held the sauce for dipping the shrimp.

Among the several hundred guests who called between seven and nine were a number from out of town. MILDRED and WILLARD HALL (she is Joe Powell's sister) were here from Beaumont, Texas. Charlotte Ethridge's sister, RENA NELSON, and her mother, MRS. J. E. M'MAHON, came from Houston. The DICKIE LEES were here from Atlanta; the HOLLIS VENABLES and LINDA and CAREY ELLIS from Rayville; the ALLEN BARHAMS from Bastrop; the HUGH CARTER LAINES from New Orleans.

Thursday night the HAM CHAPMANS honored the Powells and the Browns with a boating party. Some fifteen couples enjoyed a twilight ride up the river, with a barbecue supper served later in the evening.

A dinner dance Friday soir was the compliment of the BEN COBBS and GLORIA ROBERTSON, honoring the Powells. The party was held at the Cobb home. Gloria was wearing a white cotton trimmed with white lace, while guest of honor Mavis chose white pique touched with blue velvet. . . . Red roses were used in the living room and on the porch, where tables for four were set up around the dance floor. In the dining room, magnolias and white candles centered the table. Crawfish etouffe was the main course of the buffet supper.

Our house-of-the-week is the new home of the HARRY BELLS on Deborah drive. The Oriental flavor of the house begins with the wrought iron gate which opens in the brick wall. The enclosed courtyard is a tiny garden, paved with white shell and planted with bamboo. Flanking the vivid turquoise front door is a plastic panel embedded with bright leaves and butterflies.

The hall is paved with terrazzo and opens into the living room on the left, the bedroom wing on the right, and the family room at the far end. Restful beiges and browns are used throughout the house, with accents of turquoise and orange.

The champagne beige of the living room walls is exactly matched by the draw draperies of Fortisan silk. Furniture is a slightly darker shade. Two particularly interesting pieces are the end table of honey-beige marble, and the circular coffee table of white and gold tile with brass legs. . .The dining table is placed at one end of the room before a Japanese panel painted in gold and black.

The guest room and the daughters' bedroom open from the front hall. BRENDA and SUSAN have a daintily feminine room, with an all-white bath. Their draperies and dust ruffles are of white chintz printed with fancily-dressed French poodles. Coverlets are of quilted white chintz.

The master bedroom and bath are farther back, opening from the family room, thus giving the effect of a separate wing. Champagne beige is used for the painted wall, for the silk draperies, and for the quilted silk bedspread. A scenic paper printed with stalks of gold bamboo is on the wall at the head of the bed. Brown tile in the master bath is accented with gold tile on the countertops.

Heart of the house is the kitchen and family room, a most livable room, paved with terrazzo and paneled with walnut. Turquoise appliances are built into the walnut walls in the kitchen section, and a walnut island separates the working area from the rest of the room.

Two walls of the room are of glass. The corner is formed by a raised fireplace of beige Roman brick. Flat cushions of turquoise and orange invite the visitor to be seated. . .An outdoor fireplace backs up to this one. A paved patio protected by the roof overhang curves around the two glass walls of the family room.

MATT HIRSCH, who is leaving for Europe soon, was named guest of honor at a supper party on Noe's Ark Friday night. Hostesses for the evening were MILDRED SWIFT, ADRIENNE GASTON, MARY LEE MILAM, and ANNA GRAY NOE. Matt was surprised with a handkerchief shower. Some thirty ladies attended the party.

Incidentally, FRANCES M'HENRY reported having a nice visit with Matt's daughter, SUZANNE SOLOMON, while in Louisville. Frances spent two weeks in Kentucky with her daughter CORNELIA, and her husband, GRANT THOMAS, in their new home.

The ARTHUR SMITHS, JR., entertained with a dinner party at home last Sunday evening. Pink roses arranged horizontally in a silver bowl centered the table in the pink dining room. SYDNIE served an unusual menu of steak with rice dressing, green beans Hollandaise, asparagus salad, and pineapple supreme to eight guests.

The CHARLES NUNNALLYS, JR., of Alexandria were guests of Louise's mother, LETA TISDALE, last weekend The JIMMY NOES, JR., of New Orleans were also here for Mother's Day, with the JAMES A. NOES, SR.

Guests of the H. G. PROPHITS, JR., are MRS. HARRY PROPHIT and son DON PROPHIT of Fort Lauderdale, Florida. They arrived yesterday and will be here until June 10, when they leave on a six weeks tour of Alaska.

JAY WINK celebrated his sixth birthday Saturday with a back yard party for twelve little boys. 'Twas a luncheon party, with hot dogs the main course. Lemonade, ice cream and birthday cake completed the menu.

A group of the junior high set attended a party at JEANNE ROWAN's home Saturday evening. Yellow roses were used on the dining table, where punch, sandwiches, and cookies were served. Some twenty young people danced to the hi-fi between 7:30 and 10.

On his eighth birthday Saturday, BUDDY DENT had a baseball party. Nineteen little friends came and played ball. Cupcakes, soft drinks, and ice cream were the refreshments after the game.

Also eight years old was GEOFFREY WATTLEY, who had a home party for seven little friends Saturday. The group played games, with DICKIE TOUCHSTONE the winner in the potato race and in the sack race. JOHNNY SANCHEZ and JERRY TRIPLETT won the three-legged race. Hot dogs, ice cream, and birthlay cake were served.

On the lighter side, but full of truth, is Ogden Nash's "I Never Even Suggested It".

and lots of men who are married and lots of men who are both,
And to fall out with their loved ones is what all of them are most loth.
Many the swain who has finally admitted that the earth is flat
Simply to sidestep a spat;
Many the two-fisted executive whose domestic conversation is limited to a tactfully interpolated Yes,
And then he is amazed to find that he is being raked backwards over a bed of coals nevertheless.
These misguided fellows are under the impression that it takes two to make a quarrel, that you can sidestep a crisis by nonaggression and nonresistance,
Instead of removing yourself to a discreet distance. Passivity can be a provoking modus operandi;
Consider the Empire and Ghandi. Silence is golden, but sometimes invisibility is golder.
Because loved ones may not be able to make bricks without straw but often they don't need any straw to manufacture a bone to pick or blood in their eye or a chip for their soft white shoulder.
It's my dut, gentlemen, to inform you that women are dictators all, and I recommend to you this moral:
In real life it takes only one to make a quarrel.

Mrs. Sidney King ushered guests into the dining room where Mrs. T. J. Pearce, Jr., presided over the tea service. Pink tapers in silver candelabra cast a glow over the arrangement of pink carnations, silver hearts, lovers' knots centered with a replica of Miss Mitchell's engagement ring. The pale pink damask cloth formed a lovely background for the arrangement. Assisting in the courtesies were Miss Sherry Rainwater and Miss Judy Mitchell, sister of the honoree.

The many lovely gifts were displayed in the spacious informal living room. Miss Karen King and Miss Lynda Rainwater invited the guests to view the many gifts.

In the music room Miss Ellen Riser presided over the bride's register displayed on the table with a single lighted taper. Small wedding bells graced the base of the candelabra. A replica of the wedding invitation was framed in gold to remind the guests of the wedding date, June 16.

Mother's Club Meets At H. P. Country Club

Our Lady of Fatima Mothers' Club installed officers Tuesday, May 12th at a luncheon held at the Highland Park Country Club. Mrs. Guy Popham, speech instructor from Northeast State College, also, a member of the Mothers' Club, was the mistress of ceremonies. She called on Father Martinez for the invocation, and then expressed thanks to Mrs. L. A. Breard, Mrs. H. C. Richter, Mrs. Howard Landry and Mrs. Eugene Galligan for the beautifully decorated table, which carried out the vacation time theme. Clever place cards, fashioned in the shape of traveling bags, bearing names of famous resorts, marked each place. Sea shells held an arrangement of spring flowers, arranged on green place mats with salt and very small coral shells scattered around them.

The following officers were installed by Mrs. Marvin DuBos, a past president of the year 1956-57. President — Mrs. A. T. Van Veckhoven; First Vice President — Mrs. V. J. Sampognaro; Second Vice President — Mrs. Carey Messina; Secretary — Mrs. John Gebhardt and Treasurer — Mrs. Anthony Lasuzza.

Father Martinez spoke to the members — complimenting them on the past year's achievements and congratulating the new officers.

Bermuda shorts by Virginia High - of Play-knit cotton co-ordinates, cut with a bright swarth across a scoop neck with sleeveless blouse and matching stripes banded the box pleated skirt.

Pedal pushers by Margaret Richter - Fuller's Sailtone separates. The little boy shirt was sleeveless with mitered stripe collar with matching stripes on the waistband of the pedal pushers.

Roselie Tucker modeled a sheath made of very crisp white eyelet. Simple lines gave emphasis to the lacy cotton eyelet fabric.

The Moment Musicale Coterie Meets

In addition to the members present on the program were Carolyn Anspach, Salley Breard, Betty Heard, Mary Lucille Myatt, Janis Powell, Janna Rorex and Mary Jo Simonton. Guests were Phammie Colpin, Peggy Marx and Mrs. Heritage.

Refreshment were served by the hostesses and their mothers, Mrs. F. L. Smith Jr., Mrs. Lee Vanderpool and Mrs. A. K. Kilpatrick.

Welcome Branch Book Club Closed Its Year

Magnolias formed the setting for the annual luncheon as Welcome Book Club brought to a close its club year. Members met in a private dining room of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club on Wednesday where they enjoyed lunch and a delightful program. The T-shaped table held clusters of beautiful magnolia blossoms. These were also used in arrangements on occasional tables around the room.

Mrs. A. S. Gunter presided and presented Mrs. W. H. McGee, Mrs. W. E. Regan of Birmingham Alabama, Mrs. Fred E. Poe, Mrs. R. M. Kettering, Mrs. J. R. White and Dr. Irma Highbaugh of Coffeeville, Kansas who were guests for the occasion.

In a short business session the President appointed Mrs. Zell Smith and Mrs. S. C. Swain on the auditing committee. Excerpts from a most interesting letter from Mrs. Brown of Venezula was read. She gave a resume of each country in South America, its Government and people. She emphasized the need for Economic aid to the lands to the South as a means of underlining our our "Good Neighbor Policy." This was in keeping with the year's study which the club had enjoyed.

Mrs. L. F. Bewick, Program chairman, presented Mrs. May Smith White who delighted her audience with a review of her recent book of Poetry, "Upon Returning." Mrs. White showed some original etchings of scenes in Louisiana used to illustrate this volume. Nostalgiac feelings of days gone by steals over one as they listen to Mrs. White read her poems. "Upon Returning" is a book of poetry written as one looks back upon other days and events. Mrs. White added to their beautiful words in the manner in which they were read.

Mrs. J. Norman Coon conducted a brief installation Service for the new officers of the Club. As she pinned a ribbon each, its color signifying the particular office she outlined her duties for 1959-60. The following were installed: President, Mrs. E. O. Porter, First Vice President, Mrs. A. J. Speer; Second Vice President, Mrs. James Horton; Recording Secretary Mrs. J. D. Petty;

Corresponding Secretary Mrs. J. Norman Coon; Treasurer, Mrs. George Raymond; Parliamentarian, Mrs. W. B. Wheelis: Reporter, Mrs. O. O. Cummings; Historian, Mrs. C. S. Swain.

Following the Installation Service Mrs. V. S. Garnett distributed the copies of the Year Books for the new club year. Mrs. George Rorex, hostess for the Luncheon said good bye to the following members, Mrs. Bewick, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. Cummings, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. Gunter, Mrs. Horton, Mrs. E. E. Lawson, Mrs. Ben R. Oliphant Mrs. Petty, Mrs. G. W. Pomeroy, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Dean Selig, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Speer, Mrs. Swain, Mrs. R. V. Tarver, Mrs. Wheelis, Mrs. Cyril Yancey and guests.

For a chicken shortcake calculated to draw enthusiastic comments from your guests, add tender canned blue lake green beans, sauteed fresh mushrooms and sliced water chestnuts to the creamed chicken mixture. Spoon over split buttered baking powder biscuits. Delicious!

The dinner table was made very festive with a Maypole centerpiece, the ribbon wrapped pole had pastel satin ribbon streamers that led to nosegays of sweet peas nested in maline. Individual corsages of sweet peas marked the place for each guest.

After the short business session Mrs. Ralph Murphy added much to the meeting by giving a nice report on her trip to Lake Charles as delegate to the Sixth Annual Convention of the L. Federation of Women's Clubs. She brought information that should help the club in the next year's work.

Mrs. Minnie E. Mangham tries her hand at modern equ ipment

(Staff Photos By Bill Coleman)

IN MONROE RECALLED

Early Days

By BOB LUCKETT
Staff Writer

Nowadays Monroe is the bustling trade center of northeast Louisiana and has a population of nearly 50,000. It hasn't always been so.

There are a few people now living who can remember when Monroe was a sleepy little southern village with not much more to offer than a resting place between Shreveport and Vicksburg.

To get some conception of just how far our city has advanced in size and importance, one would have to have seen it in the latter part of the nineteenth century.

Mrs. Minnie E. Mangham, 209 Smith Avenue, did.

Today she celebrates her 83rd birthday anniversary.

Although an octoganarian, Mrs. Mangham could easily pass for sixty. Frequent smiles and youthful eyes deceive. Or are they true indicators of age?

EARLY WORK

For she had her part in ushering into modern times one of our most taken-for-granted necessities, the telephone.

She was one of the first telephone switchboard operators in this section of Louisiana.

Mrs. Mangham, who was then Miss Cooper, came to Monroe in 1895 with her mother, half-sister and brother. They made the trip from Vicksburg by rail.

The journey of about 80 miles took almost all day. There was no bridge across the Mississippi then and the train had to be ferried across the vast watery gash car by car.

As the train puffed into the Monroe depot, which was on North Second Street, Mrs. Mangham's first impression of the town was that it "looked like a big mud hole."

There were no paved streets, no sidewalks. Wagonwheels sunk down to their hubs in the river of mud that was DeSiard.

Not infrequently cows could be seen jogging down the streets.

DeSiard was about three or four blocks long and boasted one hotel, a string of gas lights, two banks and several stores.

Monroe and West Monroe were connected by an iron umbilical cord through which the railroad traffic of the day flowed.

The Cooper family moved into a house located at Oak and Seventh streets.

Cumberland's one operator in Monroe quit.

OPERATOR

But Cooper had to have an operator, and his sister seemed to be the only person he could persuade to take the job.

So, Mrs. Mangham was hired. The new "very green" operator took her place at the then complicated switchboard which was located over a men's clothing store on DeSiard.

Seven days a week she "worked the board" from 7 a.m. until 6 p. m. For this she was paid $15 a month.

"It was hard work but I didn't mind it then," said Mrs. Mangham.

At that time, Mrs. Mangham remembered, there were about 150 telephones in the Monroe area.

Now there are about 25,000.

She even remembers the numbers of the two Monroe banks. The Merchant Farmers Bank's number was 22, and Monroe First National Bank's was 1, she said.

For entertainment, Mrs. Mangham told, she used to go for buggy rides and attended "every play that came to Monroe."

STILL ACTIVE

Shortly after her arrival in Monroe she joined the First Baptist Church which today is in the same location. She is still an active member.

Is 1898, during the Spanish American War, Mrs. Mangham married her soldier fiance who was home on leave. She said goodbye to the telephone switchboard.

Two weeks ago Mrs. Mangham was given a guided tour through the Southern Bell Telephone building.

It had been over half a century since she had been inside a telephone office.

The contrast between then and now registered on Mrs. Mangham's face as company representatives explained in detail the complex electronic equipment.

Yet, after all the years, she asked questions that only an experienced operator could ask.

When she sat down to the modern switchboard with its puzzling maze of plugs and snakelike wires and put on the operator's earphones, she smiled and said, "It has been a long time."

Continuing the tour, representatives asked if Mrs. Mangham was tired and wanted to rest. "Heavens no," she replied, "I'm having a picnic!"

Back at her home Mrs. Mangham proudly showed pictures of her three grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

As she displayed the photographs, Mrs. Mangham reflected, "I've had my ups and downs, but I'm still here.

EAST, WEST CONFERENCE

Effort To Ease Tensions

By BEM PRICE
Associated Press Writer

Foreign ministers of the East and West are gathered in Geneva for another effort to ease cold war tensions. Behind the diplomatic language lie the stark realities of military power.

War, or the threat of war, has been called the logical extension of diplomacy. Undoubtedly the relative military strength of the two leading powers at the conference table, the United States and the Soviet Union, will have a bearing on the success of the meetings.

Whether at the foreign ministers' level or at the summit, both great nations must confer in complete awareness that each has the capability of destroying the other with thermonuclear weapons.

One of the overriding factors may well be a belief by one side or the other that it has, or soon will have, a superior system of delivering these weapons, a system capable of achieving a one-punch knockout.

SYSTEM

The United States is linked with 14 other nations in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. These NATO nations have 3,365,000 men under arms, scattered from the United States and Canada to Norway and Turkey.

The Soviet Union and her European satellites have approximately 3,200,000 men under arms. The Soviets alone have 175 divisions, about 160 of them stationed west of the Ural Mountains.

The Communist nations can muster about 35,000 military aircraft; the NATO nations around 49,000. The Soviet Union is believed to have more actual combat type aircraft.

The Soviet Union has about 500 submarines, the NATO nations about 205. Included in the latter total are six atomic-powered U.S. submarines. The United States is building 27 more.

In major surface combat vessels the NATO navies outnumber the Soviet's about 3-1. The Soviet Union has no aircraft carriers. Whether this NATO surface fleet is capable of meeting the huge Soviet submarine threat seems debatable.

While the NATO forces apparently are equal or superior to those of the Soviet Union and her allies in Europe, there are from the Western point of view two disturbing factors:

(1) To date the Western powers have been unable to agree on the size, disposition and control of the NATO forces. NATO's chief, Gen. Lauris Norstad, says he needs more men and equipment.

(2) The Soviet Union's so-called conventional forces could be concentrated easily and possibly could ovrerun Western Europe before local reinforcements could be mobilized or dispatched from the United States.

For the West, the second point raises a vital question: if the Soviet's land forces overwhelmed Europe, would the United States seek their destruction with atomic weapons? The prospect of becoming atomic targets is not inviting to allies.

Any consideration of the Soviet's conventional forces must take into account that the Red army has been completely re-equipped since World War II.

While U. S. intelligence sources are forbidden to discuss the Soviet's missile capabilities it is known that by 1947, using captured German production facilities, the Soviets were in the business of making large numbers of 400-mile-range ballistic missiles designated as the M101.

EXPANDED

The Soviet missile program has expanded rapidly since. Already operational in the Soviet forces are four long-range surface-to-surface missiles believed capable of delivering atomic warheads. The M102 and M103, with a 1,000-mile range; the T3, a true ballistic missile with a 5,000-mile range at 17,000 m.p.h.; and the T4A, a winged air-breathing missile with an estimated range of nearly 12,000 miles at supersonic speed.

M103 bases have been built throughout the Baltic states aimed at Scandinavia and West Germany. Installations have been built in Thuringia and East Pomerania aimed at Italy. Other M103 bases in Czechoslovakia are aimed at Germany and Western Europe.

In addition to these long-range weapons, the Soviets have a series of battlefield type missiles plus an excellent antiaircraft missile.

Any examination of U. S. military posture must begin with the fact that inside the Pentagon there is no firm agreement on what should be the size and shape of U. S. forces, nor whether the United States should be equally prepared to fight an all-out atomic war or a so-called conventional war.

The Air Force generally has argued that the best deterrent to war is the ability to retaliate in massive fashion with atomic bombs.

While conceding the necessity for such a capability, the Army and Navy have argued that an atomic stalemate is possible; that the West should be well prepared to fight nonnuclear wars.

In brief, the Army and Navy have argued for what is called a balanced force. By and large, the present administration has supported the massive retaliation concept of the Air Force.

The United States has 500 to 600 heavy bombers (compared to the Soviet's 150 to 200) and 1,500 medium bombers. The Soviet Union

There are intelligence estimates that the Soviet Union has leapfrogged the heavy bomber phase of transition to missiles.

In the missile field the United States has two 1,500-mile-range missiles, the Thor and the Jupiter. The U.S. arsenal also contains two intercontinental range missiles, the Snark and the Atlas, with a third, the Titan, in an advanced research stage.

As of now the United States has four Thor squadrons based in Britain and has reached an agreement with Italy to place a Jupiter squadron in that country.

CONCEDED

Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy has conceded that the Soviet Union might have two or three times as many such missiles as the United States in 1962-63. But he maintains that the Strategic Air Command will give this nation a continued military edge.

Like the Soviet Union, the United States has a variety of limited range missiles for battlefield use and the mighty Army-developed antiaircraft missile, the Nike-Hercules.

As for the ability to fight a nonnuclear war, both the Army and Navy say they are growing weaker, not stronger. Only the Air Force insists it is not afflicted with creeping obsolescence.

Questioned on the modernity of the fleet, a Navy spokesman replied: "At the present rate of shipbuilding, we are replacing less than 5 per cent of our ships annually. We will have to more than double our shipbuilding program to maintain the fleet at its present strength."

STRENGTH

The U.S. fleet now contains 891 active ships, including 396 warships of all types. President Eisenhower's 41-billion-dollar defense budget proposes to cut this number to 864 active ships, including a large aircraft carrier, and for the modernization of 13 ships.

At present the Navy has an inventory of 10,533 aircraft. Under the budget this would be reduced to 9,300 aircraft, 41 per cent of which would be jets.

There are 21 aircraft carriers in the fleet. Fourteen are of World War II construction or design. Between now and mid-1966, the Navy figures 10 will become obsolescent.

As for the Army, it is something like a business with a 14-billion-dollar inventory which is going broke at the rate of 200 million dollars a year.

The Army figures that by spending eight billion dollars over the next five years above and beyond the 1.4 billion it is now allotted for hardware, the nation could have a ground force equipped with the latest technological devices.

As for manpower, four years ago the Army had 20 divisions of 17,500 men each. By midyear, Army strength will be down to 14½ divisions of 14,500 men each.

In terms of over-all numbers the Army will be reduced from 1,109,000 in 1955 to 870,000 men by mid-1959.

IN AUSTRALIA

History Of Bush Pilot Is Colorful

By HUBBARD KEAVY

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—The history of commercial aviation in Australia can be written around one man—The bush pilot who started it all 39 years ago.

He is tall, rangy and ruddy and probably weighs about four pounds more than he did when he was selling airplane joyrides 40 years ago. He is 64, has friendly blue eyes and smiles without effort.

Sir Hudson Fysh is the name and Qantas is the airline. Only one lineline in the world, KLM of Holland, is older than Sir Hudson's. Australians cannot help speaking of Qantas as Fysh's airline, but the government owns it, lock stock and forthcoming jets.

Australia is so isolated that it must maintain communication with the rest of the world. To compete with other airlines, millions of dollars were needed for postwar expansion. In a country whose population is less than that of Pennsylvania's 11 millions — but whose area is as great as the whole United States—private enterprise could never raise these millions.

FORESIGHT

Foresighted, as well as patriotic, Sir Hudson made no objection when the government offered to buy all of Qantas' stock.

Did young Fysh, just out of the war, intend to start an airline?

"Well, no, we didn't plan it that way," he said. "We had just come out of the war—men of 23 who were boys of 19 when we entered. If we had been able to stay home we'd have learned a trade or profession. But all we knew was flying."

Fysh got a wartime plane and began barnstorming and taking people for rides. A short ride was $2, but a loop was $10. Ex-Flying Lieutenant Fysh preferred the loop passengers. Gradually, Fysh and his partner began hauling passengers over some of the dreadfully remote areas of the northern country. Pretty soon they had an airline and they called it by the impressive title of Queensland and Northern Territories Airline Services. The initials eventually became the official name.

"The great hope for international peace is travel to other nations. We will best foster friendship by tourism, by getting people to know each other."

TRAVEL

He wasn't just speaking of air travel. What he was saying was that all forms of transport — planes and ships and trains — must make it possible by lowering costs for the man in the street to travel.

Although Qantas and its founder are pro-British, and have many ties with the mother country, commercial realism dictates the purchase of equipment. The line now flies California-made Constellations and it soon will take delivery on seven Boeing 707 jets—42 million dollars worth. antas was the first airline to fly completely around the world and it will be the first to fly jets over the Pacific.

With jets the California — Australia flight will be pared from 34 to 17 hours.

Many interesting and wonderful things have happened to Fysh and Qantas in his rise from bush pilot to chairman of the board, but a picture on his office wall is significant. It is a single engine biplane. He points to it when you ask what his greatest thrill was.

"It was when that plane, back in 1920, landed in Australia after flying from England. It was breath taking. I'll never forget it. I reckon, maybe, it told me we'd be flying over the oceans some day."

Strauss Is Given Even Chance In Voting Tuesday

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Sen. E. L. (Bob) Bartlett Saturday rated Lewis L. Strauss' chances for Senate confirmation as secretary of commerce as "only 50-50 or maybe a little better."

The Alaska Democrat, a member of the Senate Commerce Committee which is considering the controversial nomination, said he still was undecided how he would vote when the committee takes up the nomination Tuesday.

But Bartlett reflected the thinking of many Capitol observers when he rated the odds as almost even at the moment, with Strauss probably holding a slight edge.

Nineteenth Century Operator "Works The Board"

Step Toward Outer Space

By LEON BURNETT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—One way you look at it, the Wright Brothers' first flight was modern man's first shaky step toward outer space.

Have to give those Chinese credit, though. They were using missiles — or "arrows of flying fire" — as early as 1232 A.D.

In fact, all man's efforts to break or evade the law of gravity, no matter how halting, have foreshadowed the era of satellites, ballistic missiles and plans for manned voyages into the greatest unknown of them all.

This approach is taken in a fact-packed little booklet, "Missiles, From Concept to Countdown," produced by the Aircraft Industries Assn. In layman's language, the publication concisely traces the history of man's efforts to get himself, and his explosives, off the ground.

MILESTONE

Among the milestones:

—In the 1780's, Indian troops lobbed a fairly advanced form of rocket at the British, against whom they were matched in the Second Mysore War.

As the 19th century began, Britain's Sir Walter Congreve came up with something new in rocket fuels. This enabled the British to pelt the Americans with ship-launched rockets in the War of 1812, which in turn inspired Francis Scott Key's line "and the rockets' red glare . . ."

—An American by the name of William Hale brought stability to the rocket when he rigged it up with nozzle vanes, causing it to spin like a bullet.

—The rocket really began to come of age in 1915, when the Navy and a private contractor worked out a missile that could be guided. No longer was it a mere matter of "aim, fire and hope."

CONCLUDED

But the AIA concludes that the Wright Brothers really made the big step. They got into the air for a few seconds, and thus touched off study and research in aerodynamics and propulsion that were to produce the roaring military and scientific machines of today.

Things began to speed up after that day at Kitty Hawk. During World War I, the Army experimented with a radio-controlled pilotless aircraft known as "The Bug." It wasn't used against the enemy, but it worked.

Between the wars, a lot more research went on. Then, toward the end of World War II, the German's came up with the V-1 "buzz bomb" and the even more potent V-2 rocket.

After Germany's defeat, the United States and Russia staged a tug-of-war over German rocket scientists.

It paid off, though a little belatedly for the United States. There seems little doubt that German know-how figured heavily in Russia's successful orbiting of the earth's first artificial satellite.

Dr. Wernher Von Braun, a German who chose the United States headed the scientific team that put this country's first satellite into orbit with a big mixed-breed rocket known as the Jupiter C.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

The La-Ark Baseball League raises the curtain on its inaugural season Friday night with games here, in Dubach, and at Bastrop.

It's amateur ball but it promises to fill the void left by the departure of professional and semi-pro ball from the immediate area of the Twin Cities, Bastrop, Crossett, Oak Grove and Dubach in recent years.

While the Monroe Sports are in Bastrop for their opener Friday, the West Monroe Volunteers will move into Legion Memorial Stadium here for a night scrap with the invading Crossett Millers. The other league opener sends Oak Grove to Dubach. Second openers will be played Sunday with Dubach at Monroe, West Monroe at Oak Grove, and Bastrop at Crossett.

Meanwhile, Ed Head, who has figured in more departments of baseball of about every class than any other man in these parts, is all set for his role as the league's president. Being president of a league is a new role for Head who has been a high school, minor and major league player, worked a no-hitter as a Brooklyn Dodger pitcher, managed and pitched for Brooklyn farm clubs in the Southern Association, American Association, Eastern League and other minor circuits, and was field and general manager of the Monroe Sports of the Cotton States and Evangeline Leagues.

With his league ready to get away to an expected good start, Head has sent out messages of thanks to press and radio for their "fine support" in helping the progress of organization.

"All members of the La-Ark Amateur Baseball League and I want to thank each of you for the fine support you gave us in the organizing of the league," wrote Head in letters to area press and radio. "All of us know the project could not have been accomplished without your support.

"All of us think we have started a very worthwhile program for boys that have passed the American League age. As one of the board directors stated at the first, a boy in this age group could get into a lot more trouble than in the younger age group.

"Reports from each town are that their merchants are giving them fine support as they are beginning to realize just what the program is being started for.

"We plan to hold baseball clinics for the boys that want to learn more about the game. To show what proper teaching can do: Last year at Bastrop (Head was manager of the Barons in the Big Eight League then) we had two boys, Tom Wells a pitcher, and Tom Schwaner, a shortstop. Neither of these boys had been offered more than a chance to tryout with any major league club or one of their farm clubs. Wells signed with Los Angeles for $40,000, and I saw in one of the New Orleans papers that Schwaner had received an estimated $50,000 from St. Louis. Both of these boys had, as we say in baseball, the tools but did not know how to use them."

For $40,000 and $50,000 in bonuses to sign, we'd say Head certainly helped them find out what those tools were for.

So help the boys get away to a big start Friday. They have worked hard to organize this league. They're going to work just as hard to please you.

ALL ARE STARS

Just to make it official so they will be eligible for selection to the all-state double-A baseball team, we want to inform that the Neville High Tigers that Coach Charlie Brown's entire lineup has made the all-district team.

A rule of the Louisiana Sports Writers Association stipulates that an athlete must make his all-district team in order to be eligible for all-state selection. Neville is the only school in district 2-AA to participate in baseball and thus the entire Tiger team that was eliminated by Menard of Alexandria in the state title playoffs is designated as all-district.

TENNIS RELIC

Twenty-eight years ago a Barkdull Faulk Grammar School pupil passed the school's tennis courts after the 1931 Men's City Singles Tennis Championships had been played. The players had departed, but they had left their neatly drawn tournament bracket.

Charles Copeland, the school kid of yesteryear who had no particular interest in tennis, preserved that bracket through the years. Copeland is now an artist in the city engineer's office. The other day he told Frank Smith: "If you're the Smith I think you are, I have something I think will interest you."

So he brings out the old tournament bracket and sure enough, the same Frank Smith was listed in the pairings with S. L. McConnell, Ernest Bradley, O. B. Morton, Howard Howell, Bill Carter, Raymond West, Max McDonald, Raymond John, Durwood Griffin, David Pace, Mike John, Julius Sapp, Robert Randle, L. D. Cason, John Parsons, Douglas Page, William Wenner, Burt "Jinks" Sperry, Arthur Doehla, Darwin Nichols, Lynnton Ethridge, Dale Lawhead, and Robert Morgan.

Some of them are deceased. Some still live in Monroe, and some we have lost track of. But most of them are remembered by Monroe residents of 1931.

Jerry Smith Wins Feature

Smith also copped the sportsman trophy dash and a trophy donated by the Tower Sports Shop.

Indians Win GSC Track Title

Gulf States Conference Track Champs

Speedy Styrons Spearhead Win

By BOB ANDERSON

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — Northeast's iron twins, Dave and Don Styron, paced the Indians to a runaway triumph in the Gulf States Conference track meet last night as nine records were broken and one tied.

Northeast scored 88 3-5 points. Northwestern was a surprising second with 67 1-10. McNeese, last year's champion came in third with 59, and Louisiana Tech ran fourth with 58 4-5. Southeastern copped 15 points, and Southwestern 7 1-5.

The fleet Styrons scored 36 of Northeast's points, more than two of the conference schools totaled. Don scored 19 with wins is both hurdle events, a second in the 220 to brother Dave, and anchored the winning 440 and mile relay teams.

Dave won the 100 and 220, finished fourth in the broad jump and led off the 440 and mile relay teams for 17 points.

Northeast took eight of the 17 first places, including wins in all three relays. The Indians broke four records and tied another.

Records fell in the javelin, high and low hurdles, the mile and two mile, the broad jump, the 880, the pole vault, and the two mile run. Dave Styron tied the record of 9:7 in the 100.

Northwestern's Dale Hoffpauir broke the javelin mark with a heave of 211 feet and ¼ inch. Don Styron shattered the high hurdle mark with a 14.2 clocking and the low hurdles record with a time of 23.1.

Len Chisholm bettered his mile record by winning a great duel with Northeast's Buddy Eiland in the time of 4:16.0. It was Chisholm's best run of the year, a full second under his previous top.

Eiland came back to crack the two mile mark in a duel with McNeese's Jack Frater and Stan Krowski with a 9:41.9 time, almost 10 seconds under the record. Eiland dueled with Frater for the first six laps and then finished strong to beat out Krowski by about 15 yards. The spent Frater finished far back in fourth place.

Jim Allen went over the rod at 13 feet, 2 and ⅜ inches to break the pole vault record he held with two others.

Northeast's famed mile relay team won by approximately 40 yards to shatter the record with a 3:16.7 time.

Northeast took over the team lead after the century dash, the second event of the night and never lost it, building the margin in the late stages.

The javelin and discus were completed yesterday morning and the other 15 events last night.

Louisiana Tech lost a healthy chance for third place in the meet during the 880 relay. Battling for second place in the event at the end of the third lap, Tech's Bob McCrary and Jim Tullos, blotched their pass, dropping the baton, and failing to finish.

Southwestern was disqualified in the 880 relay and only four teams finished.

The mile and two mile produced the night's most exciting races. Eiland led in the first lap of the mile, but Chisholm took over at the end of the second lap and held the lead the rest of the way, finishing seven feet in front of the Farmerville freshman.

Frater and Eiland jockeyed for the lead in the first five laps of the two mile, with Frater in front by 15 yards at one point.

The McNeese runner was burned out by the sixth lap and Eiland went ahead easily but lost the lead in the seventh to Krowski.

In the 880 dash, McNeese's Clayton Fontenot and Tech's Russell with Lewis giving out on the final by about three feet.

Don Styron, running in the 220 for the second time this season, edged Garrett for second place in the event, as brother Don came in with a 21.1 clocking, only 1-10th of a second over the GSC record.

About 1,500 persons witnessed the meet, held in cool weather with practically no wind.

Trophies to the rest of the GSC team champions were awarded in a special ceremony during the meet, with the football title trophy going to Tech and Northwestern. The basketball and baseball awards went to Tech, and golf and tennis awards were copped by McNeese.

3RD STRAIGHT TITLE

LSU Thinclads Sweep To 17th SEC Championship

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Streaking across the sunny track, LSU Tigers swept the 27th Southeastern Conference Track Meet here yesterday for their 17th SEC championship with 61 3-5 points.

The Tigers were not in need of the crippled Billy Cannon and almost doubled second place Georgia Tech in total points scored.

It was LSU's third consecutive SEC championship.

Sprinter Ralph Fabian paced the Tigers, winning the century, the 220 yard dash and the 220 yard low hurdles. LSU won two first places in field events—the broad jump and pole vault.

Staged before about 3,000 fans for the first time in Baton Rouge, the meet was like the past football season, with LSU out front and Tulane dragving up the rear.

Teams running behind LSU scored as follows:

Georgia Tech, 31½ points; Auburn, 30 1-10; Alabama, 28½; Florida, 21 1-10; Vanderbilt, 20 1-10; Kentucky, 17; Georgia, 13 1-10; Tennessee, 7; Mississippi State, 5; Ole Miss, 3, and Tulane 1.

In addition, Abington copped the two mile with a 9:32.6 time.

Abington ran the mile in 4:12.2 to break the old SEC record of 4:14.8 set by Ed Murphey of Tennessee in 1957.

Auburn Richard Crane set the other new mark of the day by throwing the shot putt 55 feet and 1⅜ inches. The old record, set in 1957 also, was held by Fred Berman of Georgia Tech with 54½ feet.

Cannon, who has been running the 100-yard dash in 9.4 seconds this year appeared in the shot putt contest only. He placed third with a heave of 51 feet and 5¾ inches.

The All-American halfback said later his injury should be healed in a month. He expects to be at full speed by this fall.

With Cannon out of the running and a 4 to 6 mile per hour wind blowing against the sprinters, the 100-yard dash was short of SEC expectations.

Fabian won it in 10 seconds flat. He took the 220-yard dash in 21.4 seconds and the 220-yard low hurdles in 22.8 seconds.

Fabian's 220-yard low hurdles time bettered the SEC record of 23.1 seconds, but was not counted because of the windy conditions.

LSU's other first place wins came with Floyd Engerson, a 22-foot broad jump, and Jesse Fatheree, a 13-foot, 4 inch pole vault.

Tiger freshmen also walked off with top honors by winning the 440-yard relay, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash and mile relay.

GSC VICTORS

Hartzog Jubilant Over Tribe Win

By AUSTIN ABRAMS
Staff Writer

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — "I'm glad the boys won this one and all of the rest of the meets they've been in," said Northeast Track Coach Lew Hartzog, moments after the Indians captured the 1959 GSC track championship.

Hartzog, met by team members and fellow track coaches as he was being awarded the conference track coach of the year award, was greeted by his family at the track railing for first congratulations.

'It was a tough meet and I think we grabbed our lead in the 220-yard dash and in the 880 - relay when Tech dropped the baton," Hartzog added.

Going into the 220 - yard dash, Northeast led Northwestern, who finished second in the meet, 58 to 50.

Sparked by the Styron twins, Northeast clipped off first and second place and Roger Beumer came in fourth to give the Indians 11 points and Northwestern failed to score in the event.

Tech dropped the baton in the 880 and Northeast's relay team came in first for another 10 points giving them a comfortable lead.

The Indians' two - mile flash from Farmerville, Buddy Eiland, whisked through a 9:41.9 two mile run to set a new conference record. The old record was 9:51:1, held by Jack Frater of McNeese and set in 1958.

After the event, Eiland said,"I feel sure I can trim the time even more."

Eiland recalled a 9:31 two-mile he ran earlier this year and said that he could have bettered last night's time if he had not already run in the mile.

Eiland was in a car wreck in January, stayed in the hospital several weeks suffering from a fractured pelvis but said last night his old form and running ease had returned.

"I don't feel any ill effects from the wreck and feel sure that I can go and beat my time tonight."

He came in second in the mile run. Leonard Chisholm of McNeese, who ran a 4:16, breaking the old record of 4:20.8.

La-Ark Amateur Baseball Loop To Open Play Friday

After several months of cracker barrel talks, bush-beating and recruiting, the long-proposed Louisiana-Arkansas amateur baseball league becomes a reality this weekend with a full schedule of games slated to open the circuit action Friday and Saturday.

The six-team loop, originated and promoted by Bastrop businessman Leonard Pratt, will play a 20-game schedule ending July 26. Entered in the league are Monroe, West Monroe, Bastrop, Dubach, Oak Grove and Crossett, Ark.

The league is made up of 18-man teams, with each player carefully screened to assure amateur status. Anyone who has signed a professional contract will be ineligible for play. Players are in the 18-year-old group and over.

Managers include Bob Carter, Monroe; Dave McKenzie, West Monroe; Lucian Smith, Oak Grove Lane "Jelly" Norris, Dubach; Bill Edwards, Crossett; and Leon Langston, Bastrop.

An all-star game, pitting the league-leaders against the top players from the other five teams, is scheduled for July 11.

All games will be played on Friday night and Sunday afternoon each week with the exception of games in West Monroe and Oak Grove. West Monroe will play Saturday afternoon and Oak Grove will travel to Lake Providence for its Saturday night contests.

Games will be seven-inning affairs, except at Dubach where the encounters will be nine-inning contests.

Opening games Friday night send Oak Grove to Dubach at 8 and Monroe to Bastrop at 7:30. Crossett plays at West Monroe Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Sunday's games list West Monroe at Oak Grove, Dubach at Monroe and Bastrop at Crossett.

A season ticket for the 20-game schedule may be purchased for $2.00. Admission at the gate for all games except the openers will be 30 cents for adults and 20 cents for students.

SELECTED BY COACHES

Tribe's O'Conner On All-GSC Nine

NATCHITOCHES, (Special) — Representatives of the six member schools of the gulf states conference elected new officers, named an all-conference baseball team, restricted baseball an basketball scheduling, approved a December invitational cage tourney and voted down an unexpected attempt to change eligibility rules at a four-hour spring meeting Friday night at Northwestern State College.

Dr. Rivers Nesom, of Southeastern, was elected president; Edward Watlye, Northeast State, vice president; and Frank Rolufs, McNeese State, re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Much discussion resulted from a request of the presidents' council, made up of presidents of the six GSC Colleges, for a report and copies of proposed constitutional change, apparently motivated by excessive scheduling in some sports.

As a result, basketball games were restricted to 26, excluding post-season games, to conform to NCAA and NAIA policies, effective with the 1960-61 schedule. Baseball scheduling was restricted to 26 playing dates, excluding holidays, and rained out games were not to be rescheduled.

A yearly GSC invitational basketball tournament, beginning December, 1960 at Southwestern in Lafayette and continuing on a rotating basis, was also approved.

On recommendation of the tract committee it was agreed that formal presentation of all GSC Trophies would be made at the annual meet, beginning Saturday night at Demon Stadium. The football committee recommended that GSC games be played under NCAA rules and asked the exective committee to study interpretation of rules governing work scholarships for athletes by member schools.

Although a request by Coach Morris Obsurne of Francis T. Nichols College for admission was not approved because of eligibility requirements, member schools were urged to help the Thibodeaux college in every way.

The executive committee was asked to study the posiblity of affiliation with the NCAA.

The Lion's share of 1959 baseball honors went to champion Louisiana Tech as five players were named to the Coaches' All-GSC Team and Coach Berry Hinton was designated "Coach of the Year."

Named to the team were, Catcher, John O'Connor, Northeast; Pitchers, J. W. Mercer and Alvin Parker; Tech; Bob Welch, Northwestern; and Willie Baronet, Southwestern; First Base, Sheldon Fernandez, Southeaster; second Base, Jim Orton, Tech; third Base, Wade Scott, Tech; Shortstop, Glenn Schuler, Tech; Utility Infielder, Frank Misuraca, Southeastern; and Outfielders, Amos Ivey and Frank Glen, McNeese Ralph Conrad, Northwestern; and Steve Bracken, Southwestern.

Sports Slate Workout Today At Northeast

The Monroe Sports, pointing for the La-Ark League opener in Bastrop Friday night, will hold another practice session this afternoon at three o'clock on the Northeast diamond, coach Bob Carter said last night.

Carter reported he was well pleased with the progress of the team in recent workouts. The squad will be cut to the 18-man limit after today's practice.

Little Boys

Chapman gave up only two hits as he pitched Louisiana Power and Light to a 13-4 win over Sinclair. Fowler accounted for both hits with two home runs. Hasenplough suffered the loss.

Compton had 2-3, including a homer for the winners.

Farmer-Heard topped Pan Am, 6-5, in other action. Jim Hunt tosses for the winners and Shepard took the defeat. Venable led the farmers with 3-3 and Ezell collected two hits for Pan Am.

Southern AAU Queen And Trophies

Snead Cards Phenomenal 59 To Take 8-Stroke Lead

By GEORGE BOWEN

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—Sam Snead, in the twilight of one of golf's greatest careers, shot his best competitive round and one of the best ever in the United States—a fantastic 59—in Saturday's third round of the Sam Snead Festival.

Snead, who will be 47 on May 27, was 11 strokes under par on the 6,317-yard course where he has been pro for more than a quarter of a century. Only one other competitive 59 for 18 holes has been recorded, by Earl Fry of Alameda in a Northern California tournament on a municipal course.

The Professional Golfers Assn. tournament record low is 60. It has been carded by seven golfers, the most recent being Snead himself in winning the 1957 Dallas Open.

The barrage of nine birdies and an eagle left Snead with a 54-hole total of 196—14 under par—going into the final round of the $10,000 affair Sunday.

He has an 8-stroke lead over runner-up Dutch Harrison of St. Louis, who started the day leading Snead by a stroke with a 36-hole total of 136. Harrison carded his third straight 68 for a 54-hole total of 204.

Husky Mike Souchak of Grossinger, N.Y., fired a 66 to move into third place at 205 followed by Ed Oliver of Denver at 206. Oliver also had a 66.

Snead's score does not count as a PGA competitive record because the tournament here is not PGA-sponsored.

Snead, who has won four of the past 11 tournaments on his home grounds, for once putted like a demon. His eagle 3 on the 483-yard 15th hole was scored on a 35-foot putt.

"I didn't know it could be so easy," he joked.

Snead thought his dream of breaking 60 expired on the next to last hole. A 6-foot putt for a birdie hit the cup and bounced out.

"I figured I had one more chance," he related. "So I fired right at the pin on the 18th."

That was his second shot, a No. 5 iron from 165 yards away. The ball sailed true as a homing pigeon, stopping only two feet from the hole.

Snead putted only once on 11 holes and took 25 in all. His second nine score of 28 was only one higher than the PGA record set by Mike Souchak of Brackenridge Park, San Antonio, Tex., in 1955.

In that Texas Open, Souchak's 257 strokes were the lowest recorded in a PGA 72-hole tourney. Snead needs a 61—which he has shot several times on his home grounds—in Sunday's final round to equal it.

BAYER TWO STROKES BACK

Littler Moves Up At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Steady Gene Littler of Singing Hills, Calif., made his move Saturday in the Hot Springs Open Golf Tournament and annexed the 54-hole lead with an even 200 total.

Littler showed total of 67-69-64 for the three rounds.

Big George Bayer, the second-round leader, slipped to a 1-under-par 71 and dropped into second place at 202. Bayer took a 5-stroke edge into the third round after firing a course record - tying 63 Friday.

Littler was the third leader the tournament has had in three days. Masters champion Art Wall Jr. of Pocono anor, Pa., jumped out in front with a 63 on opening day.

Both Wall and Bayer had putting difficulties while everything Littler tapped on the green seemed to drop.

Wall shot 71 and wound up in sixth place at 207. Jim Feree of Crystal River, Fla., held third with 68 and a 204 total.

"I didn't play any better than I have the other two days, except for putting," Littler said.

30-Round Boxing Card Announced

The biggest boxing card of the season, a 30-round affair featuring Al Boudreaux against Lou Lohman of Youngstown, Ohio, was announced yesterday by promoter Joe Knighten.

The card, slated for Tuesday night, May 26, at B&B Arena, will offer the Boudreaux-Lohman clash as the 12-round main event, with Dewayne Garris meeting Leon Langley of Greenville, Miss., loser to Garris in a disputed decision here several months ago, in the six-round semi-final.

West Monroe lightweight Ladell Pate, winner of an unpopular decision over Dennis Boney here last Tuesday, will seek his 17th straight victory against New Orleans puncher Jimmy Herman in the night's top prelim, scheduled for four rounds.

Sherman Roberts, Winnfeild's highly-promising welterweight, will make his pro debut in another four-rounder against Carlos Sarvdra, another New Orleans boxer.

Two colored boys, Alce Hall of Monroe and James Fountion of Baton Rouge, will clash in the final four-rounder.

The ring program, promoted by Knighten and A. R. Scott, will get started at 8 o'clock.

Advance tickets are on sale at Fink's Mens Store in downtown Monroe. Ringside seats will sell for $3.00, reserved seats for $2.50, general admission seats for $1.50 and children under 12 will be admitted for 50 cents.

Sports Camp For Boys Is 'Y' Project

This summer the Twin Cities YMCA is offering an Outdoor Sports Camp for boys of the sixth through the eighth grades.

The Camp will meet in two periods of four weeks each, the first to last from June 15 to July 10, and the other to be from July 13 through August 7, Monday through Friday, from 9:00 until noon.

The program will be directed by Coach Danny Hoak, who has had many years of experience in the field of youth work. He will be assisted by young men who have been selected because of their leadership ability and Christian character.

The object of the Outdoor Sports Camp is to provide an experience where boys may grow physically, mentally, and spiritually under capable leadership.

The camper may choose six activities that will be offered. Some of these activities are water skiing, boating, swimming, tennis, baseball, softball, volleyball, archery, fishing and many others.

Camp headquarters will be at the Neville High School Atheletic Department and registration will be limited to 50 boys per period.

Registration forms and further information may be secured from the YMCA, which urded those interested to register early.

The YMCA is a participating member of the United Givers Fund of Ouachita Parish, Inc.

Wilhelm Wins 5th As Birds Rout Detroit

BALTIMORE (AP) — Unbeaten knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm won his fifth game as Baltimore scored four times in the sixth inning Saturday to whip Detroit 6-1.

The Orioles had only two hits in the inning off loser Frank Lary, but a costly error by Lary contributed to the rally that sent the Tiger right-hander down to his third loss in six starts.

EIGHTH STRAIGHT WIN

Chisox Edge Yankees, 4-3, On Costly Error By Mantle

NEW YORK (AP) — Del Ennis' 11th inning single gave the Chicago White Sox their eighth straight victory, 4-3 over the New York Yankees Saturday after a costly three-base error by Mickey Mantle in the ninth cost Bob Turley the triumph.

Nellie Fox walked and moved to second on Jim Landis' sacrifice to open the 11th against Art Ditmar, third Yankee pitcher. After Sherm Lollar was walked intentionally, Ennis singled, scoring Fox.

Turley was within one out of a 3-2 victory in the ninth when Mantle misjudged Fox' fly ball and dropped it for a three-base error. Turley walked Landis on a 3-2 pitch and Lollar singled past shortstop, driving in Landis with the tying run.

Chicago scored in the third on singles by Luis Aparicio and Fox and Landis' sacrifice fly. The White Sox stretched the lead to 2-0 in the fourth on a single by Al Smith, Elston Howard's error on a pickoff throw and Aparicio's single.

The Yanks got to Ray Moore for a run in the fourth when Yogi Berra and Enos Slaughter singled and Howard walked to load the bases with nobody out. Norm Siebern's sacrifice fly knocked in Berra but Moore retired the next two men.

BOSOX FALL, 12-6

Colavito, Score Pace Tribe Win

BOSTON (AP)—Cleveland kept its grip on the American League lead Saturday by defeating Boston 12-6 as Rocky Colavito contributed his 10 and 11th homers and southpaw Herb Score an unusual six-hitter.

Colavita, who addresses the ball with a vengeance and his elders as 'Sir,' moved more than a quarter of the way to his 1958 total of 41 home runs and raised his batting average 13 points to .346.

The 25-year-old New York City native capped a four-run first inning Indians' asault on loser Frank Baumann with a towering three-run fly into the left field screen. He hit a solo drive in the fifth and singled in the ninth.

Score, who had a no-hitter until Dick Gernert clubbed a two-run homer with none out in the fifth, gave up the other Red Sox tallies in the sixth when Boston batted around.

He was the victim of three singles, three walks and Gernert's sacrifice fly in that span but held on to complete his third triumph of the season. Score fanned nine.

Braves Whip Dodgers On Homers, 6-0

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves supported Bob Buhl's superb four-hit pitching with an explosion of three homers in the third inning and blanked Los Angeles 6-0 Saturday night before a whopping crowd of 59,389.

Hank Aaron slammed one of the third inning homers, extending his hitting streak to 20 games, and added another homer in the ninth. He now has 10 for the season.

The loss dropped Los Angeles into third place three percentage points back of San Francisco. Milwaukee leads both the Giants and Dodgers by 2½ games.

Buhl allowed only six Dodgers to reach first base. Four singled and two walked.

Buhl, who now has a lifetime record of 16-7 against the Dodgers, fanned three. He is 2-1 on the season.

Bruins Take 4-3 Decision Over Pirates

CHICAGO (AP) — An unearned runs in the ninth inning gave the Chicago Cubs a 3-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday in a game which otherwise was a battle of homers.

Bobby Thomson and Walt Moryn hit homers for an early 2-0 Cub lead, but Pittsburgh's Bill Mazeroski and Dic Groat also homered to tie it at 2-2. Groat's homer off Cub reliever Don Elston led off the Pirates' ninth.

CLIMB OUT OF CELLAR

Cards Tag Phils With 8-2 Setback

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals scrambled out of the National League cellar Saturday for the first time since April 22, dumping the Philadelphia Phillies into last place with an 8-2 victory sweetened by homers by Gary Blaylock and B. G. Smith.

The triumph elevated the Red Birds to seventh place by only eight percentage points .375 to .367. It was the Phillies' sixth straight defeat.

A Busch Stadium crowd of 6,609 watched the 27-year-old Blaylock pick up his second victory against one defeat and Phils' starter Jim Owens drop his third in four decisions.

Blaylock's homer was his second of the campaign. Smith collected his first. Each came with a runner aboard. Harry Anderson notched No. 3 for the Phillies.

Blaylock never was in trouble. The young right-hander surrendered eight hits, struck out five and walked three.

The Cards scored two in the third and three more in the fourth to take a 5-0 lead.

MONROE'S FIRST ANNUAL

JUNIOR BOWLING PROGRAM

For BOYS And GIRLS

Starting JUNE 1st—Ending AUG. 21st

- Junior Leagues, ages 6 thru 17, are now being formed in both of Monroe's Bowling Establishments to begin June 1st. Instructors will be on duty at all times to teach the junior bowlers who do not know how to bowl and also to help those that do.
- Each month bowlers in these leagues will be eligible to enter a twosome tournament with an adult partner. This partner can be a member of the family or any adult that the junior bowler may select. The junior bowlers will be divided into three divisions:

  - the BANTAM DIVISION, ages 6 thru 9
  - the JUNIOR DIVISION, ages 10 thru 13
  - the SENIOR DIVISION, ages 14 thru 17

- It is not necessary that the adult be an experienced bowler because within each division there will be two classes, the novice and bowler class. The adult determines which class the junior will bowl in, depending on whether or not the adult has a 1958-59 average or is a novice. First and second place trophies will be awarded to the winners in each division and each class.
- The winners of the three monthly twosome tournaments will bowl in a house tournament on August 22nd. The winners of the house tournament will receive trophies and be eligible to enter the City Tournament, September 12th to establish the city champions. First and second place trophies will also be awarded in each class within each division to the winners of the city tournament.
- Winners of all tournaments will be decided on pins bowled above their average, thus making it possible for low average bowlers to compete against bowlers with higher averages.

All Boys and Girls who are interested in bowling in this program fill out the form below and take it to the Bowling Establishment in which you desire to bowl. Out of town entries are invited!

STRONG STRETCH DRIVE

Royal Orbit Streaks Home First In Richest Preakness

By RAY AYRES

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Royal Orbit, after trailing the field for half a mile, cut loose with a tremendous drive rounding the turn into the stretch at Pimlico Saturday, and pulled away to win the $190,300 Preakness Stakes.

With jockey Willie Harmatz is the saddle Royal Orbit, blocked repeatedly in the Kentucky Derby two weeks ago when he finished fourth, took the lead a full quarter of a mile from the finish.

Then with a tremendous drive through the stretch he pulled away from the 10 other thoroughbreds in the world's richest race for three-year-olds to haul down a winner's purse of $136,200.

A year ago Cornell shipped the famed Silky Sullivan east for a crack at the triple crown classics only to have old Silky run miserably is both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. He was not kept around for the Belmont Stakes.

"Someday I'll be back with a better horse," Cornell vowed as he shipped the Irishman back to California.

Cornell was back sooner than expected and with a tremendous horse. Once Royal Orbit started to pick up his rivals as he charged down the backstretch, and made his bid on the final turn with his bright red silks shining in the sunlight, the 83rd running of the Preakness was all over.

Sword Dancer, nosed out of the Kentucky Derby by Tomy Lee and ridden Saturday by Willie Shoemaker, the boy who beat him at Churchill Downs, tried gamely.

On and on rolled Royal Orbit to complete the trip in 1:57 flat, the fifth fastest running of the Maryland classic but far off the track and stakes record of 1:54 3-5 set by Nashua in 1955.

First Landing, with Eddie Arcaro aboard seeking a seventh triumph is the Preakness, ran out of gas on the turn into the stretch and dropped out of contention once he reached the head of the straightaway. Arcaro, once his mount was beaten, did not ride him out and First Landing finished ninth.

Marauder. at odds of 198 to 1, was a surprising fourth with Festival King, a 225 to 1 chance, fifth. Then came Our Dad, Rico Tesio, Manassa Mauler, First Landing, Open View and Sundown 2nd.

Prep Sprinter Ties World Mark In Century Dash

ENGLEWOOD, N. J. (AP) — John Mostyn, 18-year - old senior from New Jersey's Bergen Catholic High School, broke the oldest existing schoolboy record and tied a world record when he was clocked in 9.3 seconds for 100 yards at the Englewood Memorial meet Saturday.

Jesse Owens set the schoolboy mark in 1933 with :09.4 while Mel Patton, Dave Sime and Bobby Morrow have :09.3 times in the book.

Mostyn was locked in (09.3 by four timers. One watch caught him in :09.2, another in :09.4.

Meet officials said they would submit Mostyn's mark as a national schoolboy record immediately. There was no wind gauges on hand, but Chief Judge Bill Carr said there was only a cross-wind when Mostyn hit the tape.

JUNE 17-19

Jaycee Jr. Golf Tourney Slated

The Monroe Jaycee Junior Golf Tournament will be held at the local Municipal course June 17 through 19, Jaycee committee chairman Louis Whitfield announced yesterday.

Sponsored by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce and a local soft drink bottling company, the tournament will be open to all boys of this area under 18 years of age as of Aug. 15, 1959.

Whitfield said competition would be held in two flights, a junior flight for boys 12 and under and a senior flight for boys 13 through 17.

Four senior players will advance from the local tournament to the state meet in Jonesboro July 7-10. Qualifiers in the state tournament will go to the national finals in Portsmouth, Virginia, Aug. 22-29.

Last year, Jim Harper, Joe Thomas, Steve Allen and Gene Adams went to the state meet from the Monroe tournament and Harper qualified for the national tourney in Phoenix, ranking among the top 10 until the meet's final day when illness forced him to withdraw.

Thomas missed qualifying for the national meet by two strokes last year. Clayton Cole qualified for the state tournament but was unable to make the trip and was replaced.

An entry fee of $3.00 will be charged for the local tournament. Also included in the tournament will be hold-in-one and driving contests.

Prizes will be awarded to the top two golfers in each flight.

INDIAN TO APPEAR

Double Main Bill At B&B Monday

The female wrestling segment returns to the B&B Arena Monday night in a double main event card, backed by a rematch between a couple of gladiators who are making themselves well known in local mat action.

Cecile Blievens, a comely young lass reputed to be straight from an Indian reservation in the hills Oklahoma, tangles with Olga Zapeda, Mexico City's contribution to the mat circuit, in one half of the double bill.

Frankie Kovak and Firpo Zybysko, who battled to a draw after a ring mishap last week, are paired in the other half of the main event attraction.

Both matches will be over an hour time limit with two falls to win.

In a preliminary last week, Zybysko and Kovk accidentally rammed their skulls together and were unable to continue, with the match resulting in a draw. However, both revived in time and were on opposite sides of the ring in an ensuing tag match. Again the bald-headed, mustachioed Zybysko come out on the losing end.

A 20-minute opener, featuring Al Massey of New Orleans and Prince Omar of Miami and Persia, will begin the night's action. The match will be decided by a single fall.

Other than having a reputation of being a fine grappler, little is known of the Indian maiden, Miss Blievens. Miss Zapeda has appeared here before on infrequent occassions.

Naval Academy Hires Forzano As Assistant

Forzano fills a vacancy created by the elevation of Wayne Hardin to the head coaching job after the resignation of Eddie Erdelatz last month.

Forzano never played collegiate football. He was injured playing freshman ball at Kent State in Kent, Ohio, and cotors advised him never to play again.

He moved into the college coaching field in 1956 as an assistant at Wooster college, and for the past two years he has been backfield coach at Kent State.

Sin Not Real Main Doctrine Of Scientists

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

On Thursday evening in February 1866, a frail young widow named Mary Baker Eddy was seriously injured by a fall on an icy sidewalk in Lynn, Mass.

She was carried unconscious to a nearby home. For two days she remained in critical condition and her friends despaired of her life. Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Eddy asked for a Bible. She read (in the ninth chapter of Matthew) the account of Chirst's healing of a man with palhy.

Although she had read the familiar passage many times before, Mrs. Eddy found in it, on this occasion, a new significance. After a brief prayer, she closed the Bible, arose from bed, dressed herself and walked into the parlor to greet her startled friends.

Out of this event, and Mrs. Eddy's subsequent reflections, grew on of America's major religious denominations—the Christion Science Church. Formally established in Boston in 1879, it now has more than 3,200 branches in 48 countries. In keeping with Mrs. Eddy's wish, the church does not publish membership statistics, but it is known to have several hundred thousand adherents.

EVIL IS "UNREAL"

Christian Science is usually identified in the public mind with spiritual healing. But the church's distinctive teachings about health can be understood only in the context of its basic theology, which is outlined in Mrs. Eddy's book, "Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures."

Christias Scientists believe that God is "infinite good" and that all "reality" in the universe is necessarily good, because God created it.

The evil, sickness and death which men think they see in the world could not have come from God; hence they must be "unreal." They afflict men only so long a "erring human belief" causes them to seem real. When men achieve true "spiritual understanding," the "illusiions" of sin and sickness vanish, just as a bad dream evaporates when the dreamer awakes.

Christian Scientists say that thousands of people have been healed of every kind of disease and ailment, from cancer to broken bones, by the application of this insight. They do not regard these healings as "miracles" but as the natural working of divine laws which are impartially available to all men.

It should be emphasized that, in Christian Science teaching, the "'healing" that flows from apprehension of spiritual truth is not confined to physical illness, but also applies to family and business problems, social injustices, psychological tensions and "moral confusions" — The Christian Science synonym for what other churches would call human sins.

JUSUS THE WAY-SHOWER

When Christian Science denies the reality of sin, it parts company with the main stream of Christian tradition. This holds that evil, however it got into God's creation, is a very real thing, and that Christ's mission on earth was to deliver men from its bondage and enable them to enter into a new relationship of love with God and each other.

Although Christian Scientists acknowledge Jesus in their formal creed as the son of God, their favorite term for him is "The Way-shower." They believe that Christ saved men, not from their sins but from their misconceptions, by demonstrating in His healing ministry and in His resurrection "the allness of soul and spirit and the nothingness of matter."

The Christian Science Church has no ordained clergy. The healing ministry is entrusted to "practitioners," men and women who are licensed for this service after careful examination of their understanding of Christian Science doctrines.

In local churches Sunday worship services are conducted by "readers" elected by the congregation. Most churches also sponsor one or more "reading rooms".

Choir Clinic Held For Area Methodists

Plans call for holding the clinic annually for the purpose of improving the quality of church choirs in the district. It was reported more than 50 church musicians of Methodist churches in the Monroe district attended the conference. Kenneth Adams, chairman, welcomed those attending the two - day session in a general assembly before classes began.

Rev. Gray pointed out the services were open to the public.

Independence Recalls Story Of Mormons

It's the world headquarters of the 170,000-member Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The Reorganized Latter Day Saints are related to — but are not to be confused with — the 1,400,000-member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormons).

The near completion of the building marks another milestone in the story of a denomination that is growing and thriving in an area from which it was once driven by mobs.

The site was dedicated in 1831 by Joseph Smith Jr., founding prophet and first president of the Mormon Church, which he had organized only the year before in Fayette, N.Y.

Independence was to have been the Zion of the Mormons, the City of God. But the promises of a bright future in what was then a frontier outpost did not last.

Two years after its dedication almost all evidences of the early settlement were obliterated by an angry mob.

The mob chased the Mormons across the Missouri River and burned more than 200 homes belonging to church members. Through the years, the property was lost to squatters and back taxes.

The Mormons scattered with many of them settling in Nauvoo, Ill. The Prophet Joseph Smith and his brother, Hyrum, were slain by a mob in Carthage, Ill., in 1844.

A quorum of 12 took over the leadership and it was this group that migrated to Utah in 1846 to establish the headquarters of the Mormon Church.

But some members did not go —among them the men instrumental in setting up the Reorganized Latter Day Saints in 1852.

They took the position that the Utah group had departed from the teachings of Joseph Smith and, therefore, was an apostate group.

At a general conference of the Reorganized group in 1860, Joseph Smith III, oldest son of the founder, was called to the presidency.

His sons, Frederick and Israel, later headed the church and last October, William Wallace Smith, a half-brother, became the fifth president.

It was not until 1906 that headquarters of the Reorganized Latter Day Saints was returned to Independence, the original choice of the founder, from which the mormons had been driven three-quarters of a century before.

Plans Underway For Centennial Of Area Church

COLUMBIA (Special) — The First Methodist Church here is making plans to celebrate its hundredth anniversary on June 14, it was announced today.

"Judge Vincent Mouser is preparing the church history and it will be ready for presentation by that date," the church pastor, Rev. Douglas Williams said.

In addition, Mrs. Adele Redditt and Rev. S. A. Seegars were reported scanning the church rolls for the names of former members. It was hoped by members of the congregation a number of families would return to Columbia to celebrate the occasion.

An old - fashioned basket lunch following the morning service was included in the plans with special music under the direction of Owen Brown, Mrs. Charles Pollard and Mrs. Earl M. Harris serving as organist.

Rev. Williams and Dr. E. L. Carroll, chairmen of the board of stewards of the church, were arranging the worship plans of the day.

Monroe Minister To Speak Today At Area Church

Dr. James T. Harris, District Superintendent of the Monroe District of The Methodist Church, will deliver the message at the 7:30 p.m. service at the Rayville Methodist Church today.

This will be the last service of Dr. Harris in Rayville as the Monroe District Superintendent. His six year term as superintendent expires at the session of the Louisiana Annual Conference in Shreveport, May 26 - 29. At the conference session Dr. Harris will be assigned as pastor of a church.

Dr. Harris is also a former pastor of the Rayville Methodist Church, having served here from 1932 to 1936.

On Thursday evening, May 7, the Official Board of the local Methodist Church honored Dr. and Mrs. Harris with a supper, at which time a gift in appreciation of their service was presented to them on behalf of the Board by the chairman, Col. T. S. Gunby.

QUESTION: Does it ruin your Christian testimony to wear cosmetics? I read about Jezebel, and I would like to have it explained.

M.H.

ANSWER: Quite often people write me about the use of cosmetics. I have passed it off as irrelevant, inasmuch as I have considered this a personal matter. But so many have asked about it, I have decided to devote a column to my opinion on cosmetics.

Of course, cosmetics cover a wide range of items: perfume, powder, lipstick, rouge, etc. The Bible says: "Man looketh upon the outward appearance, but God looketh upon the heart." So, I think the motive employed in the use of beauty aids would determine whether it is right or wrong. If a woman makes up, as did Jezebel, to entice men in the wrong way, I think that would be wrong.

But if she uses beauty aids in good taste to make herself look neat and respectable, then I see nothing wrong with it. Some time ago a dear washed-out looking lady asked me if it was wrong to wear make-up. I thought how much nicer she would look with a little color in her cheeks, and a little wave in her hair, and I said: "No, my good lady, I think you could use a little."

I don't think Christians need to look like a mortuary ad. They should not appear gaudy, nor artificial. But a sensible use of cosmetics, I think, is in good taste. I have known wordly people who don't use it, and committed Christians who do, and the other way around. Whatever we do should be for the glory of God.

THE HOME SHIFT

Meat Survey Set This Week

By MILDRED SWIFT

Sometime during the next two weeks, a Ouachita Parish housewife will come knocking at your door. That means that your name has been selected, at random, to help LSU with a meat survey. You, Mrs. Homemaker, will benefit from this survey.

Such a survey was run a few years ago that led to the better grade of pork you are now buying. It was learned, in that study, that you women wanted fat trimmed from the pork you bought. You wanted a pig raised that would produce less fat — a meaty type hog.

Now, back to the survey that begins in the Twin Cities, tomorrow. The representative will want some information from you. Please stop and give her about thirty minutes of your time. That will make you a part of an important study put on by your own university home economics department. The compiled information should be of great benefit to all of us in the near future.

GARDEN JOBS

The county agent tells us not to worry about the tip moth working on the new growth of our pines. According to those gentlemen, this tip moth will only prune your pines, making them denser. If you feel you must spray use 10 per cent DDT and repeat every ten days until the insects leave or die.

If you have found some of your bearded iris looking sick, turning brown, and the base of the foliage is water soaked, then you must have rhizome rot. Unless it's a prized bulb, dig and discard. If you must keep the bulb it can be saved if the rot has just started. Dig the plant, cut away the diseased tissue, dust the cut surface, Sun for a day or two and replant. Disinfect the soil but best move the iris to a new location.

Root pruning is a practice we'll have to do more about as our gardens become smaller. That is —if you're the average gardener and want to plant pretty heavy. Root pruning is done with a sharp spade. Just cut straight down. I wouldn't advise pruning all around a plant in one season. This would probably be too great a shock.

Root pruning a deciduous shrub now, that you plan to move next winter, would be fine. You'd encourage feeder roots. You'd sever very long roots that would break in the transplanting, anyhow. Nurseries practice this all the time.

Remember when planting your hibiscus that those planted in the shade will not give you as many blooms. You'll get more bud drop, too. These plants belong to the cotton family and must have a well drained soil.

Hibiscus blooms only last one day, but they bloom so profusely you hardly notice that. The blooms keep just as well out of water. If you're using these blooms for corsages, place them in the refrigerator until you're ready to make the corsage or wear it.

ROSE TROUBLES

The most serious threat to roses is black spot, and I know you think we talk about that all the time. Leaf spot is a fungus disease. The organism gets into the tissues of the plant and once there, can't be ejected. An infected leaf will remain infected for its entire life.

The best plan is to prevent this black spot. It's important to spray roses immediately after every rain. The rains tend to wash the fungicide off. It must be there at all times to do a job of prevention. There are a number of effective controls on the market. Captan seems to be a favorite. Others are Manzate and Dithane Z 78. All three are used, 1 tablespoon to a gallon of water.

Sulphur was once popular, but it burns the foliage in hot weather and is acid in reaction. Continuous use causes the soil to become too acid. Sulphur seems to be the material to control mildew.

FLOWERING TREES

Flowering trees offer planting material of interest to the owner of a small city property. Most of the popular ones throw only light shade; so lawns and flowers grow well under them. Their growth is rapid. The selection is so varied that choices should be made on the bases of whether or not the show of flowers is enough, or whether the trees, also have good form, foliage, berries.

These small trees are more sensible on small lots. Larger trees present problems of growing into light and telephone wires.

PLANT BOXES

Plant boxes make your favorite plants portable. Set plants in smart, sturdy boxes, and you can move them for color where and when you want.

Whether you make your box or buy it the following suggestions apply: Raise box so air can circulate beneath it, reducing danger of rot. Bore holes in bottom to insure good drainage. Sink all nailheads and fill with putty, to reduce rust stains.

Paint inside with asphalt emulsion or some other wood preservation. Spread about one inch layer of gravel over bottom before you put in the soil. More gravel for very deep planters.

If you are making these, the bottom should not be a solid piece. Small boards can be cleated together. A good wood preservative will pay dividends regardless of the finish desired. Browns, dark greens and grays are best suited for use on boxes.

Cotton rugs requiring less care because of new soil - resistant finishes soon may be in common use. Some rugs treated with soil resisting chemicals are already on the market.

Experiments show that exterior color and finishing materials of the walls of a house can have much to do with keeping the interior comfortably cool in summer. The experimenters say though, that wide overhanging roofs have little effect on interior temperatures.

Houses with outside surfaces painted dark colors were found to be much hotter inside than those with similar surfaces painted white.

Color was not the only answer to cooler interiors. Some building materials absorbed more radiant heat than others and this caused higher temperatures. Interior temperatures were lowest in houses having exterior of white concrete block, white painted brick and white asphalt shingles.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Glenda Willett will show you how to measure for a pattern; Tuesday, Effie Lofton will give us some ideas on coffee making; Wednesday, Mrs. Jardine and flower arrangements. Thursday and Friday marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

EXTENSION NEWS AND VIEWS

Fine Showing Of New Styles

By AUDREY DAWSON

The women of the parish really did themselves proud in the style show last week. There were 69 entries and we had a wonderful day. The committee in charge of the event was Mrs. C. D. Henderson Mrs. Leon Caldwell, Mrs. M. T. Salley, Mrs. J. G. Haynes and Mrs. Cleburne White.

COUNCIL MEMBERS

Please Home Demonstration Club members, don't forget our council meeting has been changed to Friday, May 29th at 10:00 a.m., Agricultural Building, West Monroe. This is a very important meeting. The president, Mrs. Henderson and program chairman, Mrs. Cleburne White, asked me to tell you we have as our guest speaker, Mr. N. E. Thames, district agent of Agricultural Extension, and we know you do not want to miss his talk.

SURVEY

Ten homemakers will begin the survey you have been hearing and reading about being conducted in the Twin Cities by Miss Betty Wood, assistant professor of home economics from LSU. Be sure, Mrs. Homemaker, if the ladies knock at your door, please, please give them just a few minutes of your time.

STORING CLOTHES

I believe old man winter is gone so it's time you, Mrs. Homemaker, get your winter clothes ready to take a rest for the summer. Molds and insects are the two most harmful enemies of clothes. Thorough cleaning before storage helps to prevent damage from both of these enemies.

Mold develops in damp, warm, poorly aired and poorly lighted places. Sun and air clothing and other articles stored in closets from time to time. Moisture and heat in a closed bag make an ideal place for mold to grow.

Clothes moths and carpet beetles are the most damaging insects in clothing. Thoroughly clean all woolen garments to kill eggs. Sunning and hard brushing helps to remove insect eggs.

Clothes and storage containers need protection in order to completely control insects. Buy a high quality mothproofing substance. Read the directions on the label and use the required amount to kill fabric pests. Just hanging paradichlorabenze containers in a closet will not do the job.

Spray the inside surface of all closets and storage containers with a good insecticide. Also spray suits and coats along the seams in the cuffs under collars and around the hems. If you want your clothes to be in good shape this fall, get them in good storage now.

FREEZING FOODS

It's that time of the year again when we hear everyone saying, "My food freezer is about empty. I must make plans to fill it again." Here's some things to remember if you want quality frozen foods.

Use only moisture vapor proof containers and wrapping materials. When buying freezer paper look for the word laminated on the wrapper or box.

Vegetables should be young and freshly gathered.

Apples to be used in pies and cobblers freeze satisfactorily.

Blanch vegetables according to proportion of one gallon boiling water to 1 lb. or 1 quart of the prepared vegetable.

When preparing peaches, apples or figs for freezing, use one of the recommended methods of controlling discoloration — ascorbic acid or one of the commercially prepared mixtures.

Most people spend more time and energy going around problems than in trying to solve them.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Battle Vines From Top Down

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Of all the sweet smelling plants common to our Southland, the Chinese-and-Japanese honeysuckle is the most widespread. In fact, there is surely not a corner of the South except in the high mountains and in the deep swamps where this invasive vine has not established itself. When it blooms every year, we exult in its fragrance at night. When it has passed flowering time, however, we slave over it, trying to eradicate it from gardens, grounds and woods because it is wearing out its welcome.

FROM ORIENT

It is rather surprising that this oriental plant was not sent home to England until 1805. In that year, the Court of Directors of the East India Company had it sent by Mr. William Kerr in their ship, "the Hope, Capt. Pendergrass." This was the same botanist from Kew Gardens for whom they named Kerria japonica. In America, this vine was much admired and sold by the nurseries as a choice fragrant vine.

Like many other Chinese plants which have found a home here, the honeysuckle has come to be a very great menace to our woods and to the wild flowers. As we have mentioned in the column several times, we shall have to defend our wild vines and plants from it or face their eventual destruction. Many a large tree in our woods has the deep scars of the honeysuckle vines that tried to choke it to death when it was a sapling. Few little trees can ever survive this strangling. Although honeysuckle is vulnerable to weed killers, the dead vines left behind after its destruction with these chemicals look very bad. So one is faced with the choice of spraying it first and then pulling down the dead vines or pulling down the vines first and then spraying the new shoots as they reappear. If you have a great deal of honeysuckle to get rid of, you can save some money by removing the vines first. It will take much less spray to kill the roots through the new shoots.

We reported some years ago in the column that some institutions had found it possible to spray honeysuckle which had encroached on periwinckle patches. The practice is to wait till August and September when the periwinckle has hardened off its foliage for the winter, and then spray the honeysuckle. This practice does not seem to harm the periwinckle at all.

If we are going to enjoy the most beautiful of our native vines like yellow jessamine, wild clematises and cross vine, we shall simply have to bring them into our yards and gardens because the oriental honeysuckle is killing them out fast. Our native red honeysuckle which we call woodbine is being destroyed, too. When it comes to a fight between our orange (sometimes yellow) trunpet vine or cow itch vine, your columnist will bet on the cow itch!

Filter Butts Pose Problem In Etiquette

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — There has been very little written about garden etiquette and until recently there was really no need to say more than:

1. Return borrowed tools promptly and in the same condition they were received.

2. Never step on seeded areas or areas you think may be seeded.

3. Never give in to an impulse to pull weeds in someone else's garden without permission. Those little spears of grass may be the owner's prized miniature gladiolas; that purslane may be portulace; that Joe Pye - weed may be there by design rather than chance.

4. If you are a cigarette smoker, ask the groundskeeper what to do about the butts. Some gardeners prefer that you throw them on the ground to burn out to ashes; others ask that you split them horizontally scattering the tobacco and then crumple the paper into a tiny ball which will disappear into the grass.

Etiquette's item four has a new aspect, however, which so far has defied solution. That is the increasing popularity of the filter cigarette. Filters don't burn out. If one opens them up they make more of a mess than if left alone. And no smoker, as far as my observation goes, carries an ashtray with him. Nothing is uglier than a filter-butt-studded lawn. Receptacles may work when placed around a sitting area but you can't scatter enough of them around the garden to do much good. Best way of controlling the filter cigarette problem—and it may be a little rude—is to ostentatiously bend over and pick up a butt shortly after it is thrown.

There are so many outdoor chores to be undertaken now that one has little time for such unnecessary work as picking up cigarette butts. In most sections of the country the soil has warmed up sufficiently to set the seedlings into their permanent growing positions.

If the plants are going from a flat into the garden bed, take as much soil with that plant and its roots as possible. Keep the plant out of the ground the very shortest possible time. Put it into a hole large enough to accomodate the roots comfortably —and not all balled up. Use plenty of water, both to settle the soil around the roots and to help get the plant over the shock of movement. And cover the plant for a couple of days as it recovers.

Any plant dug up from its growing place suffers a certain amount of setback from the disturbance. If you are buying seedlings, it may be a bit more expensive, but invest in seedlings growing in plant bands—light, bottomless wooden containers which may be peeled away from plant and soil, which may then be set into the ground with a minimum of setback. Those who raise their own seedlings might experiment with growing plants in special pots of pressed peat and other organic substances which may go right into the soil along with the seedling.

GOOD READING GUIDE

New Titles Added At Parish Libary

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Each week a number of new titles are added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Library. Among this week's additions are several books which are certain to have great appeal. "Cone of silence" is the title of David Beaty's new book. This is the story of civil aviation and the pilots who test the new planes, often at the risk of their own lives. It is a story of danger and romance and has just enough mystery in it to make it popular with a variety of readers, "The third choice" by Elizabeth Janeway is the story of a search into the human heart, told on two levels of characterization. Mrs. Janeway has succeeded in bringing to life, two women and telling their story well. This is a book you will not want to miss. "I'll die for you" by Stephen Ransome is an intriguing story of an impersonation which almost had fatal results. It is a story which the mystery enthusiast will not want to miss.

The young adult section is one of the most popular sections of the library and new books are placed here each week. Leading the list in this category is "The witch of blackbird pond" by Elizabeth G. Speare, a very fine book which received the Newbery medal this year. Other books which will appeal to girls are "Carol of long chance mine" by Helen Reynolds; "Miss Gail" by Helen Miller, "Maid of honor" by Marjorie Paradis.

Young men will want to read "The mystery of Barrowmead Hill" by Bertram Edwards and "The five-dollar watch mystery" by Patrick O'Conner and they will be especially taken with "The global atlas" by Frank Debenham. All young adults who have a diet problem will want to read "The teen-age diet book" by Ruth West.

The field of non-fiction offers a great variety of material, ranging from the practical to the reudite. Some of the practical titles are "How to get that part time job", published by the Arco publishing Co.; "The ministry of preaching" by Roy Pearson; "Streamlining your executive workloan" by Ray Josephs"; "The farm journal and Country gentleman country cookbook" by Nell Nichols "The gourmet kitchen" by Evelyn R. Patterson, "The intelligent layman's medical dictionary" by Harry Swartz; and "My camera pays off" by Ozzie Sweet. two new scientific books are "Introduction to geo physics" by Benjamin F. Howell and "Modern chemistry" by Charles E. Dull. People interested in forests and forest products will want to read "The great forest" by Richard Lillard and "Forest management" by H. A. Meyer, while rose gardeners will be glad to know that we have the American Rose Annual for 1959.

Three new plays are "The last days of Lincoln" by Mark Van Doren; J. B. by Archibald Macleaish (which just won the Pulitzer prize for drama) and "The little moon of Alban and "A wind from the South" by James Costigan. Artists will want to see "Picasso" by Roland Penrose; "French are of the 18th century" by Albert Gilor and a biography of "Velazquez." a new book on architecture is "The golden city" by Henry Hope Reed. There has recently been a great awakening of interest in books about the Second World War and there are two new titles in this category. They are "War is a private affair" by Edmund G. Love and "D-Day the 6th of June, 1944" by David Howarth. Coin collectors will welcome "A simplified guide to collecting American coins" by Hugh M. Knight.

Public Usage Outgrows Size Of Play Areas

VICKSBURG, Miss. (Special) — The American people are rediscovering the great outdoors. In 1957 visitation at recreational areas bordering Army Corps of Engineers reservoir projects totaled 84,700,000. Popularity has greatly increased in hunting, fishing, boating, swimming, picnicking and many other outdoor activities and these public use areas provide some of the few remaining places where there are no posted signs.

The recent greatly increased public use has completely outgrown the existing facilities such as access roads, parking areas, drinking water wells, sanitary facilities, picnic and camp site areas, boat launching ramps, and other improvements designed to improve safety, sanitation and greater use of the recreational facilities. For this reason limited funds have been made available to the Corps of Engineers for improving recreational facilities on 35 Corps of Engineer Projects during the fiscal year 1959.

Of these funds, for projects in the U. S. Army Engineer District, Vicksburg, $20,000.00 has been allocated to the Blakely Mountain Reservoir on the Ouachita River and $10,000.00 to Narrows Reservoir on the Little Missouri River. Work is now underway to provide additional facilities and at Blakely Dam, four new comfort stations are being constructed, three wells for drinking water are being drilled, circulation roads for picnic areas are being built as well as parking facilities at these areas, two new swimming areas are being buoyed off and additional concrete picnic tables, fire places and trash cans are being provided. At Narrows Reservoir new facilities being provided are two new comfort stations, drilling two wells for drinking water, and concrete picnic tables, fireplaces and trash cans.

All of these additional facilities will be completed and ready for use before the summer season begins.

The Corps of Engineers is trying to provide and maintain necessary basic facilities for access and public use which will point the way to full development by non - Federal interests. State and local government are encouraged to develop and operate public parks on Corps of Engineers' lands, subject only to requirements specified in the Master Plans for Reservoir Management.

Swiss Slate Flower Show For Summer

One of the largest flower shows in the world will take place on the shores of the Lake of Zurich, Switzerland from early summer to October 11th. 1,600,000 square feet of ground will be converted into a panorama of beautiful flowers for the first Swiss Horticultural Exhibition.

As part of the exhibition which will cover both shores of the Lake of Zurich, "poets' gardens, "philosophers' gardens", "lovers' gardens" and "French gardens' modeled after those of 18th century Paris will be created. In addition, there will be a variety of modern suburban landscaping on display.

Special features of the Horticultural Exhibition will include music and theatrical performances, fashion shows, ballet and many unique exhibitions of flowers from all over the world. Several restaurants will be constructed which will serve rare Swiss specialties.

Transportation for visitors between both shores of the Lake of Zurich will be provided by a chair lift.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Daylily Time Again In Area

By MARY JARDINE

Maytime is here again and the month of May in North Louisiana is daylily time. These versatile flowers are just beginning to bloom in gardens all over the Fifth District and by the latter part of this month will be at their peak.

The name hemerocallis has been given the daylily. The word is derived from the Greek language and means "beautiful for a day"; this name, however, does not reflect the full truth. While it is true that individual flowers last only for a day, some of the well established plants have as many as 50 buds to a scape, which bloom on successive days.

If you dig into daylily lore you will find that Pliny, that great Roman botanist and naturalist, made reference to it sometime during the latter part of the first century, A.D. and prior to 1575, long before the first pioneers ventured across the Atlantic to settle at Jamestown, it was featured in many European gardens.

HYBRIDS

One who is familiar with the newer hybrid daylilies with their great variety of color, form and size would hardly suspect them of being direct descendants of such common plants as the lemon and tawny daylilies. However, our modern daylilies have all been bred from the imported Asiatic species of these plants. Daylilies are one of the most up-and-coming perennials we can choose for our gardens, and they are growing rapidly in popularity. There are over 7,000 named varieties of daylilies from which we may choose. If we select from plants in bloom for our individual needs, the selection is more likely to give us satisfaction and beauty in our garden. With very little care, the plants will grow more beautiful through the years. The plants are simple to grow, require no pampering, and are resistant to most insects and diseases. They can be easily crossed to produce new varieties.

Appropriately enough our exhibitors this week were members of the Dixieland Daylily Society. Each day we have had on exhibit colorful trays of seedling blooms from the gardens of Mrs. Collier Murphey, Mrs. W. H. (June) Hill, Mrs. W. R. Gates and Mrs. Suzee Gorman. Members of the Dixieland Daylily Society cordially invite you to visit their gardens at any time. There will be a special tour date, a little later, date to be announced, but each day new varieties are blooming if you care to visit now. The following gardens are open: Mrs. W. R. Gates, 404 Linderman, Mrs. June Hill, 304 Anderson St., Mrs. Collier Murphrey, 202 Slack St., Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Pittard, Norris Lane, Mrs. J. H. Savage, 406 Clayton, Mrs. Beulah Albright, Whites Ferry Road, Mrs. Ruth Pylant, Whites Ferry Road, Mrs. Mary Willet, Whites Ferry Road, all in West Monroe and Mrs. Georgia Williams, 3800 Lee Avenue, Monroe.

AT CENTER

In the flower show at the Center horticulture blue ribbons were awarded as follows: Mrs. F. R. Hayton, Sr., for Briarcliff Rose, Mrs. John Williams for White Salvia, (rare in this section) and Mrs. Suzee Gorman for daylily Mary Lindergrine. This is a beautiful tawny yellow hybridized by Mrs. T. S. (Jo) Mangham.

Top score in the design division went to Mrs. Suzee Gorman. Monochromatic in color the design was vertical in pattern and featured the blooms of the lowly garlic. This interesting plant is a favorite with flowers in spite of the pungent aroma. Mrs. Gorman selected a carafe of green glass, the perfect foil for her materials. The vertical line was established with three stalks of garlic in the bud stage. The sheath covering the blooms is a greenish white and the first florets to burst thru are green changing to a soft violet. Background materials were three leaves of gray-green mullein with a green hydrangea as a center of interest. Transition was achieved with a lacy wild grass. Very cool and lovely and will last for a long time.

Mrs. F. R. Hayton was awarded second place. Variegated foilage of the euonymus and pittosporum was featured in the triangular design and very well related to the green pottery container selected. This was placed on a rectangular brown base. The top of the triangle was composed of tall spikes of nandina buds, green and white, followed by placements of yellow green euonymus. Clusters of green and white pittosporum were placed at the base of the vertical axis. Very pleasing and again, long lasting.

Mrs. John Williams' design was as fresh as a Florida breeze. A palm spathe was Mrs. Williams selection for a "container" The needlepoint holder was placed in a fair sized shell and smaller shells were effectively placed in the palm boat. Furled green and white ribbon grass formed a vertical "sail" which was enhanced with deep red hollyhock. Lower placements were of variegated hosta and bottle brush blooms. A gay summer design suitable for the porch or patio.

NEW FOR CELESTE

NEW YORK (AP) — A complete change of pace is being prepared for the next stage appearance of Celeste Holm.

Miss Holm, who has appeared in big musical, drama and comedy, is in line for "What A Day!," described as a commentary with music. The story concerns a busy woman's day.

GIELGUD READIES PLAY

The production is the same one Gielgud staged in London in 1952 and which set a record run of 227 performances.

Ballet Boss Likes U.S. Audiences

NEW YORK, (AP) — "We specially like the warmth of American audiences," said the big boss of the Bolshoi Ballet after he had seen and heard his famous company applauded time and again in the Metropolitan Opera House.

"The fact that your audiences like us more and more as they see us more and more," he went on, "is due in part to the dancers' response. Finding out that you like them, they like all the more to dance for you."

Were his programs, "Romeo and Juliet," "Swan Lake," "Giselle," "Stone Flower" and selections of high lights, chosen purposely to please us, or did Russian audiences see the same things?

"The programs are our own choice, and they are the same fare we offer in Moscow," Georgi Orvid told me.

HEADS OPERA

He is director general of the Bolshoi, which puts him in charge of two arts, opera and ballet, and two theaters, the Bolshoi and an associated house. He is also the Soviet Deputy Minister of Culture.

"It shows," he continued, "that you Americans and we Russians have just the same opinions about good things in art."

Occasionally as he spoke I caught a word that sounded like our "spectacle," "choreograph," "theater," and "ballet," and the French word for ticket, "billet." But Orvid talked through an interperter, an attractive young woman named Julia who learned all her fluent English right at home in Moscow, and who when I told her her blue and white blouse was pretty, spoke up proudly:

Orvid said his city had a 10-month opera and ballet season, about a third of it ballet. Even with 100 of his dancers appearing in New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Toronto and Montreal last month and this, 120 were left to perform on their two stages in Moscow. Top prices in one house there are about $3.50 and not much over $2.50 in the other for exactly the same dancers, orchestra and repertoire. The ballet also has the great benefit of a state subsidy of 40 per cent of its costs.

How does a Russian dancer get a start? "There are many groups, or circles, we call them," he explained, "in all the schools. Any particularly gifted youngster is spotted easily, and then taken under the government's protection. He doesn't need to spend any of his own money to study either ballet or opera."

In what specific way does ballet serve the Soviet state? Here, I pointed out, we have one standard, an esthetic, creative, humanitarian one, while he must keep his government in mind. He illustrated with a couple of the numbers danced here:

GOVERNMENT

"We Stalingraders" obviously is a tribute to World War II soldiers. But can't you also see an advantage to the state in a more abstract work like "Dance Suite?" There certainly is. It shows how Soviet youth feels, it lets the young display their abilities, it reveals how glad they are, and grateful for the kind of life they lead.

"The same ballet that deals with art deals with people, and when it deals with people it also deals with the people's government. Even in your country you can't divide people from art, people from government, and art from government. It all goes together, these things can't be separated."

I mentioned Shostakovich and he answered:

"The composer made a mistake: He got too far from the people. But he soon realized what he'd done and drew close to them again, in his 10th and 11th symphonies"—which American criticism, incidentally, has regarded as particularly uninspired.

Son of a military bandmaster, expert on the trumpet, onetime Moscow Conservator professor, Orvid has a high forehead with thinning hair apt to leave it higher. His face is round, his eyes small and pale blue, his nose turns up. He looks like a man always ready with a joke. How did it happen he had such a jovial disposition I asked, like other countrymen of his I'd met here?

CONDEMNS PASTERNAK

I told him I'd been saving one, about Boris Pasternak and the novel "Doctor Zhivago."

"I have read some of the novel but not all of it," he emphasized. "And I feel hostile to it not because that's the proper recommended opinion but because I honestly disapprove. You (to me) say you like it. But we are better judges of whether it is truthful, and I think it is not.

"Remember, Pasternak didn't fight in our civil war, he sat in his studio all that time. I took part. He has eaten the bread we earned. He doesn't know at what a cost we built our society. I think the book is not creative, and doesn't give a correct picture."

His Bolshoi is the third Russian ballet company to visit America, all sponsored by Russian-born impresario Sol Hurok. Moiseyev came first and scored an unforgettable triumph. Next came the Beryozka Dance Company of which the director, Nadezhda Nadezhdina, is Orvid's wife. But the Bolshoi is really official; on its handsome red curtain you see an effective design motif made out of what looks like "cccp" meaning USSR.

-THE ARTS-

Characters List

The Transatlantic Smiths. By Robert Allerton Parker. Random House. $4.

Tales of American heiresses being married to European titles used to be popular fare in books and newspapers. But the parallel story of the influence exerted by American money on the culture of the Old World is not so familiar. We know about expatriates like the Steins and Henry James, who went to the Continent to do their own individual work. Now Parker tells of another family that worked abroad and also spent wisely, that left a proud distinct mark on book and painting, that began as Quakers but devoted its brains, energy and uncommon sensitivities to the cultivation of the sensual and sensuous.

In 1851 Robert Pearsall Smith married Hannah Whitall, of the Whitall-Tatum glass works, in Philadelphia; they had three children who grew to be adults and are the principal figures in this intriguing biography:

Mary, born 1864; Logan, born 1865; and Alys, born 1867. Alys was the last to die, just a century after her parent's' wedding.

Robert, though taken into the prosperous business owned by his wife's father, finally decided, with the old Quaker gentleman's unhesitating approval, that he should give his time to spreading a good word of human fellowship and salvation. He made two trips abroad, particularly to England and Germany, and for a time, until a possibly unjustified charge of scandal attached to him, won a considerable body of followers. Hannah, in the meantime, wrote best-selling inspirational books.

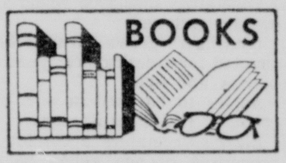
But most importantly this travel inculcated in his family the European habit. Mary studied in Cambridge, where Logan followed her—conversely, Gertrude Stein was to follow brother Leo to the same seat of learning. It was Mary who boldly interested the other Smiths in their half notorious half famous Camden neighbor Walt Whitman — they invited him for a night, he stayed a months.

In 1888 they all moved to England and settled just south of London at Friday's Hill. Here they began to make their literary marks on their generation and ours, too. Alys was Bertrand Russell's first wife; Mary married a barrister named Frank Costelloe to whom she had two daughters, one of whom married Lytton Strachey's brother, and the other, Virginia Woolf's brother. Then she deserted this family for Bernard Berenson, whom she finally married when Costelloe died in 1899. Her money helped build I Tatti, Berenson's fabulous villa and art treasury outside Florence, and she managed to survive the terrible war and occupation by the Nazis.

Logan, not the marrying kind, became the author of that near classic, "Trivia," first privately printed half a century ago and offered to a grateful general public in 1918.

Parker writes many absorbing pages — James and Logan Pearsall Smith doing imitations of other authors, on the satiric side; Logan torturing his sister Alys, on the tragic; and on the social, American money, from an upstate New York heiress, from a Brooklyn department store, from a California law office, spreading its munificence benignly in Florence.

His larger question is whether the three children after their fashion did not act out of fundamentally the same compulsive emotions as their missionary parents even though they diverged so radically from what Parker calls Quaker ideals and principles. He calls them the forerunners of our footloose expatriate intelligentsia and fears they suffered for the break from their original life - giving roots. The name Smith is "ubiquitous and noncommittal," he acknowledges; you would never dream you'd find so much fascination in Smiths. This is a gallery of unique flavorsome characters, and a grand dramatic encounter of art and literature with life.



The Marauders, by Charlton Ogburn, Jr. (Harper): The triumphs and final tragedy of one of America's most famous battle organizations—Merrill's Marauders, 3,000 volunteers who fought up to 27,000 Japanese in northern Burma in the early days of 1944. The Marauders waged five major and 17 minor battles in three months, during which they marched 600 to 700 miles over some of the toughest terrain on earth. Few U.S. soldiers have ever been asked to give so much in return for so little recognition, and in time the Marauders became discouraged and angry. An inspection in May, 1944, revealed "an almost complete breakdown of morale" and the unit was disbanded. Few books have captured the sound, smell and strain of battle as accurately as this one.

Joy Ride, by, Dwight Taylor (Putnam): Among the golden lads and lasses of the 1920's, Taylor had a special privilege: he was not only a talented artist and writer but through the friends of his mother — Laurette Taylor, the beloved actress — he had entree to the intellectual elite of the age. On John Barrymore's advice he went to art school rather than college; Somerset Maugham saved him from shipboard card sharps, and F. Scott Fitzgerald remembered him in a story ("Crazy Sunday") which proved that fiction can be stranger than truth. This is less of a memoir than a collection of anecdotes recalling Taylor's experiences with the notable and the grotesque during his early manhood.

NEW YORK (UPI)—Nancy Wickwire, who has known employment as TV "soap opera" leading lady, is going to get a real work-out this summer at the American Shakespeare Festival Theater.

The blonde, green-eyed actress from Harrisburg, Pa., will be seen first at the Stratford playhouse in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," playing the pivotal role of Titania. This is a hold-over production from last season, at which time she was the Hippolyta of the cast.

While getting ready for the Titania role, Miss Wickwire also is preparing for the role of Lady Capulet in "Romeo and Juliet." Later she will appear as Mistress Ford in "The Merry Wives of Windsor" and as Helena in "All's Well that Ends Well."

Miss Wickwire burst upon the Broadway scene in 1951 in the Theater Guild's production of Shaw's "Saint Joan" starring Uta Hagen. She had just returned after studying under a two-year scholarship at the Old Vic in London which had followed her graduation from Carnegie Tech.

Few actresses have worked more steadily in off-Broadway productions or have been more in demand for same. This past winter she was busy in "A Clearing in the Woods" at night. During the day she appeared regularly on the CBS-TV serial, "As the World Turns."

Miss Wickwire has rapidly gained stature as one of the outstanding younger leading ladies of the stage, and the Stratford repertory should really boost her career.

The New York run of "Sunrise at Campobello," the Dore Schary drama about Franklin Delano Roosevelt's comeback after a polio attack, will end May 30, and the company will open June 1 in the National Theater in Washington, D. C.

Ralph Bellamy remains in the cast in the leading role for this opening engagement on a national tour. the play will leave here with a record of 558 performances since its premiere Jan 30, 1958.

Japan's all-girl Takarazuka Theater is scheduled to make its first American visit this summer. There will be a company of 52, including 14 stars, and the numbers will range from modern Japanese entertainment to the classical.

The company will arrive in Vancouver, B. C., Aug. 10 and play for a week each in Seattle, Portland, Los Angeles and Chicago Then it will come to New York for 21 performances at the Metropolitan Opera House beginning Sept. 16.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

With some of the larger southern cities as Dallas and New Orleans musical events—the heat seems to draw on musical comedies and entertainers rather than more serious efforts — northeast Louisiana is working its way through faculty and student recitals to end the spring semester.

In connection with this, the Northeast College Faculty String Trio pointed out their program slated for tomorrow has been postponed until the first week in June. It will be recalled this group won praise for its initial performance several months back.

As the abbreviated comic strip "Peanuts" in the Morning World — Monday through Saturday — points out sometimes, there are those people who scream "Good Grief" whenever string trios and quartets are mentioned. Let's face it, these classic combos have a good amount of the snob appeal element.

Composers and music "shop talkers" are inclined to like the smaller outfits, though, because they furnish the opportunity for a tryout of a new idea which may be put into action later in a full symphony or opera.

An automotive engine designer is afforded a like opportunity when he watches one cylinder out of eight or more go through its paces. Then he — like the composer — may conclude if his idea works in one unit, it should with certain adjustments fill the bill when the complete power plant swings into action.

Incidentally, the trio is not quite as thin as the quartet because the piano in the trio does a fine fill-in job.

FOR SOLOS

Aside from the fill-in job in the trio and yeoman duty as furnishing accompaniments, the piano still survives as a solo instrument as attested by Duchein Cazedessus' Tech faculty recital Friday of last week.

The "Prelude Chorale and Fugue" of Cesar Frank emphasized the harmonic depth which the instrument can reach and the pieces by Milhaud leaned toward the novel percussive effects noted in more modern compositions.

From our 20th Century vantage, we often think of the piano as the modern version of the harpsichord of Bach's day. While the paino all but displaced the old harpsichords and clavichords for nearly a century and a half, the history book boys have finally convinced some circles that the older instruments had a place all their own. So we can expect to see more harpsichords — possibly in colleges and universities — throughout the country during the coming generation.

The basic difference — the piano evolved from a big zither played with felt hammers and the harpsichord grew out of the plucked string guitar category. The fact that a keyboard was attached to the business end of both instruments did not make them one and the same, especially in regards to the sounds seeping out from under the lids.

So with many recordings now available featuring both instruments, the age of Bach and the other 18th Century composers may come back with a renewed surge of popularity.

Enjoyment Without An Involvement

THE THIRD CHOICE. By Elizabeth Janeway. Doubleday. $3.95.

An aunt and niece and the men in their lives are the subjects of this new novel. a Book - of - the - Month Club choice, from a writer who without the help of clubs enjoys already a wide following among readers of magazines and books and the public that sees movies made from them.

While Diana, seriously injured in an accident, recalls from her hospital bed the men she both married and loved, niece Lorraine goes through a crisis brought on as much by her stuffy husband as by the attraction exerted by her aunt's handsome Dr. Savage. It is the aunt who, from the perspective of her years, does the moralizing, though at the same time she has not learned to control the fiery temper of her youth. The story wanders freely over the last half century and in and out of European as well as American cities.

You will not find yourself involved in the least, but you are always conscious of the professionalism of this work. You admire the poise and urbanity of the author as author, and the even pace of the story; you don't read breathlessly, but you don't falter.

Old Man Lives It Up Until The Last Leg

THREESCORE AND TEN. By Walter Allen. Morrow. $3.50.

Billy Ashted, six years past the span allotted by the Psalmist, suspects he hasn't much time left. What little there is he intends to use to suit his fanscy, and he has just rebelled at living with his son Will and runs away to haunts dear to him for decades. Ordered back like a naughty boy by his aged sister Lizzie, he determines to write his autobiography — Allen's novel.

Born in a poor family, he had known how to better himself, by reading, by joining the labor movement, by skill at his trade, by sobriety, by his friendship with George. George began life one short rung higher but wound up rich and in parliament; his sister Rose married Billy and there survive two sons, Phil and Will who are successes, and Tom, the ne'er - do - well, dearest of them all to the father.

Though you will find this slow, and a bit sententious, it's a substantial, worthy recreation of a life neither dramatic nor humdrum, but a life felt, relished and understood with honesty.

Rekindling Love

THE REUNION. By Robert Molloy. Doubleday. $3.95.

It is his meeting with her 30 years later, when she is widowed and he is married and the father of a boy and girl, that climaxes this story. It's a good climax, and you have fun as Molloy works his way up to it.

Andrew Graham, fairly successful New York businessman, husband of Celia and and father of Janet and Charlie, is reminded of his youth in Charleston — the locale of Molloy's other fiction — when an old friend shows up at his office to tell him Rutledge Ford has committed suicide. Rutledge was a climber, and so good at it he won the hand of Nell, the girl Andrew can't forget. He has been reasonably faithful to Celia, he can't help compare her familiar charms with the untasted and mysterious delights that lie in Nell, there are squabbles, he is ripe to rebel. Along with this affair of the fading and blossoming loves, there are the problems of his boy who is attracted to an older woman, his daughter who is going with a Catholic, an old Negro acquaintance who gets rich and wants to move into the exclusive neighborhood, an employer in Chicago with a yen for filthy pictures.

Molloy is a different kind of Southern writer, neither the moonlight and magnolias sentamentalist nor a man of the heavy Faulknerian mood. He is a wit, and he has given us here a first-rate comedy of manners. A sly dry humor breaks through almost every page, nothing is forced or strained, this is the human condition plain, blunt and close to universal.

Paul Anka Has School Problems

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—His millions of teen-age fans will be interested to know that singer Paul Anka has school problems, too.

Paul is the 17-year-old Canadian who claims eight gold records for one record alone—"Diana," which he composed himself. He is here for his first movie, "Girls Town," and he ran smack-dab into California laws concerning under-age actors.

"I finished my junior year in high school in my home town, Ottawa, and I quit," he said in his Beverly Hilton Hotel suite. "I was traveling around the world too much to continue school work.

"But the California law says I have to keep studying until I'm 18, which is three months away. So every day at the studio I have to spend three hours at school work."

Paul argues that he's getting his education through travel. His argument is pretty convincing. In two years, he has sung from Tokyo to Algiers.

"Everywhere I go, I try to learn about the people," he said. "When I was in Algiers, I wanted to see the rebels and how they lived. I went right into their country."

Paul's saga is another example of the fantastic music business. In his early teens, he formed a quartet called the Bobbysoxers in Ottawa. The group was soon earning $250 a week. Paul quit to become a single singer, and his school grades suffered as he gained success.

PRE-VACATION MUSTS

Leave a note for the milkman. Stop delivery of the paper. Get the car checked. And be sure to drop in here before you leave for your two weeks in the sun. With one quick stop, you can stock up on all you need to bring back a picture record of your vacation fun.

Things like what? Well, like a good supply of film. Buying a few extra rolls now will save you the frustration of running out of film when you're miles from the nearest store.

If you shoot Kodachrome movies or slides, a supply of Kodak Prepaid Processing Mailers is another good idea. They come in real handy. You put your exposed film in the mailer while you're still on vacation. Send it to Kodak for processing. And Kodak mails your processed film to your home. Convenient—and the price is the cost of processing alone.

Can you stand another suggestion? Then bring in the family camera and we'll see if it's in good working order. No charge, of course. If it needs repair work, we'll give you an estimate.

Or, if you don't think "old faithful" is up to the trip, we'll be glad to show you all the new Kodak and Brownie cameras that have been introduced this spring.

Caldwell Not As Bitter As He Once Was

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV WRITER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Still as banned as ever, Erskine Cadlwell appears to be mellowing toward those who ban him.

A little, anyway. Perhaps it is his ailment that has softened his indignation. He suffered a painful calcification of his hand and underwent an operation to cure it. The hand must remain in a cast and elevated, so Caldwell's vast literary output is stopped temporarily.

"I've always typed with two fingers—couldn't possibly dictate," he says.

Caldwell and his lovely wife had come here from their San Francisco home to discuss filming of his 35th and latest book, "Claudelle Inglish," with Warner Brothers. So far no area has banned this one, but it's early yet.

"I had to change the title for England because the spelling of Inglish was considered to be an affront over there," he reported. "Also in France, because it was considered insulting to the memory of a writer named Claudel who had died recently."

The chronicler of raw life in the South said he is banned regularly in Boston, but "Detroit is worse. There they have three members of the police department who pass on all the books, plays and movies. They've got to ban something, in order to justify their jobs."

Caldwell's treatment of Negro-white themes has caused him to be banned in South Africa. Even his native Georgia gives his works the heave-ho at regular intervals, he said.

Moving around is part of Caldwell's nature. He has lived all over the East and West coasts, and he may move anywhere next. Anywhere but Chicago.

COX TO BROADWAY

NEW YORK (AP) — Wally Cox, the "Mr. Peepers" of television, is being lured back to Broadway after a nine year absence.

Producers Leo Kerz and George Justin have signed him to portray in "Moonbirds" a man who can transform people into birds. The Marcel Ayme comedy is to be directed by Jules Dassin, noted French filmmaker.

'Young Land' Opens Today At Paramount

"The Young Land," a major - scale Technicolor production stirringly dramatizing the struggle for law and order in California just following its acquisition from Mexico after the Mexican War, opens today at the Paramount Theatre. The exciting saga stars Pat Wayne, Yvonne Craig, Dennis Hopper, and Dan O'Herlihy.

"The Young Land" is a powerful and exciting screen drama written by Norman Shannon Hall from a story suggested by the novelette, "Frontier Frenzy," by John Reese. It is the re-creation of the turblence first trial held under American law for the slaying of a Mexican by an American. In a sense, it shows American justice on trial in a sensitive and proud young land, the California of more than a century ago.

Produced by Patrick Ford and directed by Ted Tetzlaff, "The Young Land" also promises to be history - making cinematically, for it presents together three brilliant young screen personalities. The trio of new stars includes Pat Wayne, the handsome he-man son of John Wayne, Yvonne son of John Wayne, Yvonne Craig, lovely ballerina from Dallas, Texas, and Dennis Hopper, the gifted youth who gave distinguished acting performances in featured roles in "Giant" and "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral." The fourth actor starred in "The Young Land" is Dan O'Herlihy, the Irish actor who won an Academy Award nomination for his portrayal of Robinson Crusoe a few years ago.

As for the rest of the eighty-odd characters re-creating the drama - packed story before the cameras, producer Patrick Ford planned to have an astonishing sense of realism. One look at the set of "The Young Land" shows he got exactly what he wanted. All the dangerous looking men playing the drifters, killers, rustlers and adventurers who flocked to the young land of California in those days are men who live dangerously; they had no trouble looking their parts. Some of them were rodeo stars, cowboys, ex-football players, boxers and Marines. Some of them are famous Hollywood stunt men, who have performed hundreds of perilous deeds to thrill movie audiences. Producer Ford planned this because he felt it would inject added vitality to the gripping story of the first trial of an American for killing a Mexican.

TOURING THEATER

NEW YORK (AP) — A series of flexibly - designed stage productions is being planned for cross-country tour by Sol Hurok, Broadway impresario.

Included on the agenda are the Katharine Cornell-Brian Aherne play, "Dear Liar," the Dorothy Stickney version of Edna St. Vincent Millay's "A Lovely Light" and works of Schiller and Shakespeare. The show formats are being planned so that they can travel light and alternate bookings in regular theaters with appearances on college campuses and other non - theatric centers.

U.S. May Fire New Type Atlas Missile In Week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas said Friday the United States should fire its first production-line Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile in the next week or two.

He said in an Armed Forces Day speech that this country was proceeding on schedule with its plan to "equip our first Atlas squadron with missiles this June.' He said the Atlas, as well as the Thor and Jupiter intermediate missiles, are proven weapons.

Comparing U. S. and Soviet missile strength, Douglas said this country has no evidence that Russia has intercontinental ballistic missiles on the firing line. But he said the Soviets could have a small unit before the end of the year.

Douglas said U. S. military strength should deter Moscow from starting a war unless Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev "is grossly misinformed on the strength of our air power relative to his own."

Hi-Y Club Honored

The "Club of the Year" Award was presented by David Barker (left), president of the Ouachita Parish High School Student Council, to the McCranie Hi-Y Chapter of the Y.M.C.A., at a recent assembly of the student body. Receiving the award is Gary Futch, president of the Hi-Y Chapter. The club is selected on the basis of projects and member participation.

Salvation Army's Role Is Explained

The religious and welfare activities of the Salvation Army in Monroe were outlined today by Major Louis Mockabee in connection with the observance of the week of May 17 thru 24 at Salvation Army Week.

This week recalls that the Salvation Army has been established in Monroe since 1927, and focuses attention on the dedicated service rendered by The Salvation Army in this community.

In Monroe, The Salvation Army offers not only spiritual guidance and a way of life to those who have no church, but a diverse program of aid to the troubled, needy and unfortunate.

The Headquarters at 510 Harrison Street provides service for transients, homeless men, women and children, family and spiritual counceling, welfare for families in need, camp vacations for children, youth clubs, aid to prisoners' families, jail services, and a League of Mercy.

In connection with the observance of Salvation Army Week in Monroe, Major Louis Mockabee has issued an invitation to the community to view, first hand, the facilities and work here. The doors of the Salvation Army will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, May 24th to an informal open house.

During this "come and see" tour of the institution, on hand to greet the guests will be Major and Mrs. Mockabee, Hugh Balfour, chairman of the Advisory Board, and members of the board.

During World War I, when American troops marched into Europe, The Salvation Army was beside them. Through the grimmest and most dangerous days of battle, the cheerful "Sallies" provided a note of hope - a touch of home - for the boys at the front.

After the war, the troops came home shouting the praises of the gallant service of the blue-bonneted women and the blue-uniformed men of The Salvation Army.

Devoted service to the armed forces, however, is but one aspect of the manifold program which The Salvation Amy conducts in cities and towns all across the country.

Theirs is a record of family circles restored and strengthened, alcoholics given a faith to cling to, unmarried mothers sheltered and given care, prisoners visited and their families assisted. No set of statistics can encompass the work of The Salvation Army, but yearly through quiet, devoted service, their hands have reached out with help to millions of Americans.

In 1865, William Booth, a Methodist minister, began preaching Christ's message on the street corners of London's worst slums. The converts who accepted his words of hope and salvation joined him in carrying the Gospel to others among the poor, illiterate and dissolute. Under William Booth's leadership, this group became The Salvation Army, a religious organization dedicated to the spiritual, moral and physical reformation of all who need it and to the care of the poor and sick.

Today, throughout this country and the world, The Salvation Army offers its helping hand in the name of God to everyone in need without distincition as to race or creed.

This has been designated National Salvation Army Week. It gives the people of our community an opportunity to become acquainted with the work and faith of The Salvation Army — A peaceful Army whose creed is Christ's words: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, My brethren, ye have done it unto Me."

Art Appreciation Study

By BILL HARDIN
Staff Writer

"The beautiful is as useful as the useful."

That is one of the remarks of the renowned Victor Hugo, but the statement is as true today as when the great European said it. Many know it to be true, many others accept it in a routine way; many others never heard of it so never bothered to know of its true value; and still many others know it, believe it, but never do anything about furthering it. In this last category most of us remain, perhaps not enjoying this fatalistic acceptance, but nevertheless, doing nothing to move into one of the other spheres.

And so it has been with most of the educators of today when one regards the lack of education of the finer things in life. Take the arts, for instance. In today's world of the sputniks, in the passing age of the jet planes and into the guided missile, few if any think of other fields of education than physics, mathematics and the related sciences.

But if the children of today must live in a world which has inherited the arts of the masters of the past centuries, they should learn to enjoy them. . .to appreciate them. . and to know the full meaning of the arts, particularly the paintings which the civilized world has cherished for all these years.

SPECIAL

It is with that in mind that a group of educators in the Monroe City School system have begun a special course in art appreciation. While it is not specifically confined to the great paintings, it must necessarily deal with this particular field. For through the appreciation of the great paintings of the past, the quest for the finer things in art can and will be brought into being.

The faculty of Lexington Elementary School has been working for the past several years on the true appreciation of the arts. basically divided into two aspects. These are that of the producers and that of the consumers. One without the other cannot be full.

Since there was no basic guide for the faculty to go by, the teachers under the general chairmanship of Mrs. Sara Ellen (Bruno) Bottorff have worked out a guide for themselves. The compilation of the information has been termed an excellent outline and is being watched by more than one person higher up in education fields. One of the principal persons both aiding and watching the work is Mrs. Irma S. Willard, state consulatant in art education, Louisiana State Department of Education.

The study, which Miss Rosa Belle McDonald, principal at Lexington School, says will continue until "all of us are satisfied with the work" is basically an attempt to lead children to see that it is a great experience to be able to create anything truly beautiful. But as important in the eyes of the teachers is the effort to guide the children in observing and enjoying the beautiful everywhere.

This, then, does not mean that this small group of teachers believe the children should learn to enjoy a certain picture and disregard that which is all around them. The relationship of one thing to another is basic in the appreciation of the arts.

IMPORTANCE

Mrs. Mary Fink, one of the principal workers in the movement, points out the importance of proper use of leisure time. This, she says, is one of the most important phases of a liberal education, yet it is being ignored, or at least, given little emphasis. The future with its promise of automation will give more leisure time.

The study of art in the schools deals not only with drawing and the other manipulative skills, but the appreciation of art as well. Its purpose is not to make artists of all students, but "to enhance the powers of observation and encourage art as a medium for the expression of ideas."

One of the foremost of the modern artists, Valenti Angelo, once said "If children are given no guidance in the matter of beautiful things. they are bound to acquire or take whatever is at hand. If children are to get on the path to appreciation of art, they must be given those things that enrich their lives. Children will grow to recognize that things are beautiful providing these things are placed constantly within their sight and reach."

This statement provides the basis for the entire program being conducted at Lexington Elementary School.

A glance around the school shows reproductions of many of the great paintings of the past. "The Madonna of the Chair" by Raphael, "The Fog Warning" by Homer, and the "Boy with Rabbit", are some of the many reproductions. They, along with many other pictures brought fleeting moments of the years in another grammar school, Georgia Tucker when a number of years ago, I, too, heard about these same paintings. To this day, the brief history of the picture and the artist remain.

CONTRAST

What a contrast these pictures are from the "zig-zag" of today's art!"

When one looks at these pictures of old, he can see almost a story without any explanation. Take "The Fog Warning," for instance. The fisherman weary from his day's toil, tugs at the oars of his open boat in an effort to reach the shore before the oncoming fog spreads over the entire sea, blocking his vision. In the rear of the boat is a large fish, a halibut.

The choppy seas, the apprehension of the fisherman and the distant fog. . .all combine to create an illusion of action.

A child can look at the picture and grasp the magic of the sea. An adult views the painting and feels the tense feeling gripping the fisherman. There is no need for an explanation; it is all there in the picture.

The results in the are classes at Lexington have proved that this program is rewarding. These experiences, as the teachers prefer to call them, show continued improvement with each grade. No two are alike, but all show an originality of the children.

And, what is more rewarding to many, particularly those who do not enjoy and-or understand the modern art, few if any of the "experiences" in art at Lexington must be explained to the viewer. The pictures show a definite trend of the children to depict some item of life as it is through their eyes. Perhaps the tail on a dog is too long, or the coloring is not according to the strokes of the masters, but it is as the child sees it. That is what is most important.

As he or she progresses into the next higher grade, the pictures become progressively more lifelike.

Perhaps the results of the art program can best be summed up in statement of purpose, printed in the outline of art appreciation, compiled by the school faculty:

"The study of art in the schools includes not only drawing and other manipulative skills, but art appreciation as well. Its purpose is not to make artists of all students nor to develop high artistic skill, but to enhance the powers of observation and encourage art as the medium for the expression of ideas.

"It is our goal to provide the children with an outlet for inner expression and to enjoy art with them.

"Our hope is to create the supportive king of environment needed for children to gain a measure of confidence in the field of creative expression."

Speaker

John D. Holland, 36-year-old mayor of Vicksburg, Miss., will be the speaker at the 42nd annual dinner meeting of the Ouachita Parish Chapter of the American Red Cross at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Virginia Hotel ballroom. A graduate of Louisiana Tech, he served five years in the Navy and is owner of a car agency at Vicksburg. He is a member of many civic clubs and at one time was national vice president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Ike Approval For Nuclear Plane Likely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Melvin Price (D-Ill.) said Saturday there is "a good chance" the White House will approve a revived Defense Department plan to build a nuclear-powered plane to be completed in 1963.

Price, chairman for research and development on the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, revealed in an interview that the project would not require additional appropriations this year. Over the next four years, the additional cost would be about 300 million dollars.

The Illinois Democrat has been leading a fight to rescind an administration order delaying construction of the plane until a high - performance military aircraft can be built.

Lt. Gen. Roscoe Wilson, Air Force deputy chief of staff for development, said Friday the last decision of the late Deputy Defense Secretary Donald A. Quarles was to appeal to the President for the construction go-ahead.

The Pentagon, meanwhile, said nothing in writing has gone to the White House as yet on the subject. A spokesman added that a series of meetings has been held to discuss the matter. Price also said he had seen nothing in writing. He added, however, that Quarles' decision was the result of a visit which Price, Quarles and top Air Force officers made last month to the General Electric plant at Evandale, Ohio, where a most advanced version of a nuclear aircraft engine is being built.

The question was whether construction of an air frame to go with the engine or engines should start now. Price said Quarles and the Air Force representatives were in agreement that Pentagon research funds contained enough money to finance the first year of the air frame effort.

Cotton Mart Prices Close On Soft Note

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures prices turned soft this week after a firm start.

At the close of trading Friday, active contracts on the New York cotton exchange from July, 1959 through July, 1960 showed net losses ranging from 55 cents to $3.10 a bale.

The distant October position scored a net gain of 65 cents a bale. The May 1959 contract which expired Wednesday, went off the board unchanged from its closing prices on Friday, May 8.

Steadiness in the spot month bolstered the entire market at the outset of the week, but once may went off the board, the list weakened. Bullish influences included liquidation prompted by favorable weather reports from the belt, and a commodity credit corp. report showing an increase in loan repossessions.

Uncovering of stop-loss orders hastened the decline.

Exports of U.S. cotton for the week ended Tuesday amounted to 57,000 bales vs. 46,000 the previous week and 135,000 in the like week last year. This brought the season's total to 2,224,000 bales, 51 per cent below the 4,506,000 bales exported at approximately the same time a year ago.

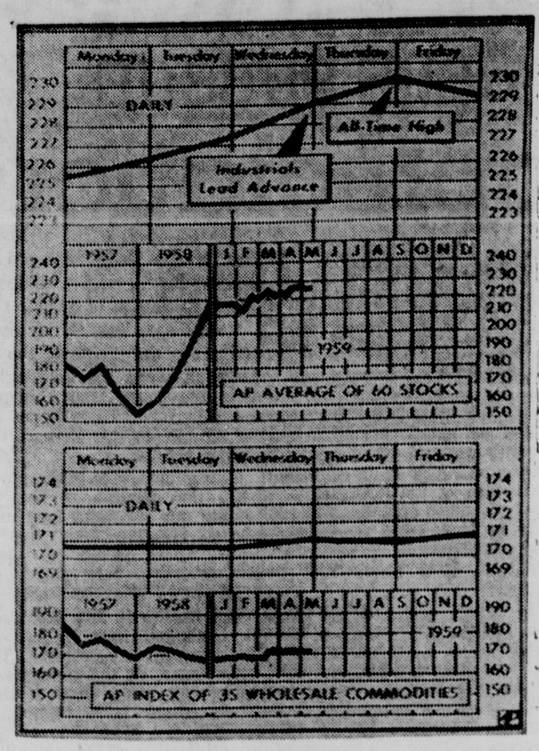
Trade sources predict exports for the full 1958-59 season will total no more than 2,850,000 bales, compared to 5,717,000 last season.

Masonic Banquet Slated May 21

Western Star Lodge No. 24 will hold its annual Past Master's Banquet May 21, at the Masonic Temple in Monroe.

There will be no degree work, but Judge Jesse Heard, well know local jurist, will be principal speaker, according to W. G. Nixon, worshipful master.

Judge Heard is well qualified as a speaker, and Western Star Lodge is very fortunate in having Judge Heard on the program," the worshipful master said. All master masons are invited to attend. The banquet will begin at 6:30 p. m.



Stock Averages Rise Sharply

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose sharply for the first time in three weeks when it closed Friday at 229.2 from 225.5 a week earlier. For the first time in five weeks the comomdity index moved higher, finishing at 171.1 from 170.8 in the preceding period. Livestock showed the widest gain. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Moderate Gains Registered By Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Moderate gains were the rule this week in grain futures prices on the Board of Trade but they did little more at best than cancel out last week's setbacks. In some instances, they fell slightly short.

May wheat and rye, both long-time steady losers, were the only contracts to show additional losses for the week. May rye slumped as much as 5 cents a bushel and May wheat another 1¼ cents. Most other contracts finished on the plus side in the 1 to 2 cent range.

Significant commercial influences were scarce and at least some of the firmness was attributed to a somewhat general move among dealers to establish long positions in distant deliveries.

With trading in all May contracts ending next Wednesday, interest in those deliveries sagged except or evening up transactions. However, there appeared to be more short covering than liquidation of those contracts.

At the end of the week, wheat futures were 1¼ cents a bushel lower on May to 1½ higher on new crop months, May $1.88½-⅜; corn ¼-2 cents higher, May $1.26⅜-¾; oats ½-1½ higher, May 68⅜; rye 5 cents lower on May to 1½ higher on new crop months, May $1.34¾-35; soybeans ½-2⅛ higher, May $2.31.

Oil Compact Is Up Again For Renewal

WASHINGTON (AP) — In February, 1935, in the era of rich oil strikes in Texas and Oklahoma, representatives of several states met in Dallas, to seek a united front against waste of the nation's oil and gas resources.

Out of that meeting came the draft of an interstate oil compact for conservation of oil and gas. Legislatures of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Illinois, Colorado and Kansas ratified the compact in short order and in August of the same year Congress approved.

A House Commerce subcommittee readily approved, after hearing the compact praised as a substantial success.

The compact, which now has 30 oil states as members, would be extended under the pending legislation, for four years from Sept. 1, 1959. when its present life expires.

Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) of the House Commerce Committee wrote the extending legislation approved by the subcommittee after a brief hearing. The legislation will go before the full committee soon.

Harris and Navy Capt. M.V. Carson Jr., director of the Interior Department's Office of Oil and Gas, supported the extension at the hearing.

Carson recalled that in the 1920s and 1930s, when lush oil fields were being discovered in Texas and Oklahoma, there were no adequate conservation measures.

Then some oil men and state officials, he said, saw the need for conservation and that led to drafting of the compact.

The meeting at Dallas followed a conference of oil state representatives called by Gov.-elect E.W. Marland in Ponca City, Okla. in December 1934.

Carson said the primary purpose of the compact is to prevent the physical waste of oil and gas.

The compact is administered by a commission from headquarters in Oklahoma City. The commission operates through various committees whose overall job is to improve conservation practices.

AT OIL EXPOSITION

Cost Saving Items Sought By Oilmen

By MAX SKELTON

The recent recession set off an economy wave within the oil industry.

Crude production and products demand are increasing but the oilman continues to emphasize his cost reduction efforts. The improved conditions offer little hope for crude or products price increases.

A survey emphasizing spiraling costs was released to the industry last week. Another is expected in a week or 10 days.

The cost survey committee of the Independent Petroleum Assn. of America (IPAA) estimates the costs of such major items as labor and equipment have increased over 57 per cent since 1947-1949. Some of the increase has been offset by improved efficiency but prices have increased only 4 per cent.

The survey soon to be released will emphasize drilling costs. It is the second such study to be made jointly by IPAA, the American Petroleum Institute, and the Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Assn.

The high cost of dry holes will be among the points to draw emphasis in the joint survey.

An average of 145 wells are expected to be completed by the domestic industry every 24 hours in 1959. Included will be 87 oil or gas producers and 58 dry holes. Each day's operations are expected to require over 111 miles of drill pipe costing over $65,100 a mile.

Cost saving items on display here range from devices for rapid duplication of office records to portable drilling rigs that can be moved by helicopter.

Nearly a dozen chemical companies are emphasizing the latest process for combatting corrosion. In the past five years the industry has developed extensive programs to combat this high cost enemy.

General Electric Co. has a vehicle wheel that reduces maintenance by elimination of transmisions, axles and gearshifts.

The wheels utilize power from a single direct current generator. Four or more can be bolted to heavy equipment haulers.

Equipment for simultaneous recording of a complete log for wells is being displayed by Schlumberger Well Surveying Corp. Schlumberger spokesmen say the average operating time for running the technical tests separately can be cut as much as 25 per cent and reduce costly rig time.

Caterpillar Tractor Co. is demonstrating to oilfield and pipeline contractors a tractor with special blade that reduces the time required to knock down and shear off trees from 1.71 hours per acre to 1.45 hours.

U.S. Steel has a new oil storage tank designed to reduce fabrication, freight and erection costs. The use of constructional alloy steel for the shell is estimated to save up to $14,000 per tank.

PREVENTS THEFT

LONDON (UPI)—U. S. Army officials Friday credited -Sgt. Frank O'Neal, 63, of Boston, with preventing the theft of $33,600 from two messengers. O'Neal hit one of the holdup men with a pair of handcuffs and forced him to drop the money bag before fleeing. The money was being delivered by American Express messengers.

AS STEEL TALKS GO ON

Business Tempo Continues Brisk

NEW YORK (AP) — As steel goes, so goes the nation.

That's what captains of industry, finance and labor were telling each other this week as steel company and union chiefs settled down to two-fisted bargaining on a new wage contract.

President Eisenhower, on a flying trip to New York, met briefly with President David J. McDonald of the United Steelworkers but gave every indication that the White House is still maintaining a "hands off" attitude toward the steel wage poker game.

Still unanswered at week's end were three key questions:

Would the contract talks result in another year of labor peace? Would they produce a new inflationary round of steel price boosts? Or would they bring on a strike that could stifle the nation's industrial comeback?

Wall Street didn't know the answers, but the guessing was that if it came to a strike, the walkout might not be as long or as severe as some steel executives had expected.

Whatever course the steel bargaining might take, most segments of the nation's business kept rolling right along as if there were nothing but blue and cloudless skies on the economic horizon.

Big banks around the country raised a "go-slow" signal — and lifted their prime interest rates. This is the rate charged big borrowers with top credit ratings. Starting Monday, blue chip corporations borrowing in New York will pay 4½ per cent on short-term loans instead of 4. Rates charged other borrowers are scaled upward from that floor.

Banks usually raise their interest rates in times of high-stepping prosperity. The psychological effect is to keep optimism from running wild, discourage over-ambitious expansion plans, and put a damper on reckless speculation.

It also indicates the banks feel demand for funds is so strong that they can earn a better return on their money.

Just about all the other news this week spelled "boom" in capital letters.

The Federal Reserve Board announced that the nation's industrial output last month crashed through to a new record—a sizzling 149 per cent of the 1947-49 average.

Housing starts in April were the highest ever for that month.

Employment clinbed to an April high of more than 65 million. Unemployment dipped to 3,627,000—down 735,000 from a month ago and 1,493,000 below the recession-swollen total of April last year.

Average pay of factory workers inched up to a record $89.87 a week. That's a gain of $9 since April 1958. The average work week stretched to 40 1-3 hours, up two hours from a year ago.

Auto output this week climbed to within kissing distance of the 1959 weekly high of 137,000 cars set in January.

Stock sales in the latest week totaled 18,115,455 shares compared to 18,993,800 shares in the previous week and 13,308,453 in the same week last year. Bond sales had a par value of $30,000,000 in the latest week against $31,884,600 in the week before and $22,628,000 in corresponding 1958 week.

Other favorable indicators:

Freight carloadings in the week ended May 9 showed a 26.5 per cent gain over the same week last year. The total — 677,000 cars — was the highest in seven months. The improvement came despite continued loss of business to trucking interests.

Department store sales in the May 9 week scored a 14 per cent gain over last year.

Republic Steel Corp. will spend 375 million dollars in the next four years improving and modernizing its mills and mines. That's the most Republic has ever spent in such a short time... J. Gordon Dakins, executive vice president of the National Retail Merchants Assn., says consumers will spend 210 billion dollars in the nation's retail stores this year —up 5 per cent from the 1958 record.... The Pennsylvania Railroad will buy 23,500 freight cars this year, and 10 million dollars worth of diesel locomotives.... Aluminum Co. of America is increasing its production of primary aluminum by 40,000 tons a year.

LITTLE THEATRE

Before we continue our saga of players in search of a playhouse, we must head this column with an "Ivan Needs" paragraph. Because there are four scene changes in Country Girl, Ivan needs a crew of seven men and two or three women. Please give him a ring at FA 3-4263. He also needs a small chaise longue; it doesn't have to be elegant or even very long. And he needs a pier glass on a stand. We are not exactly sure what a pier glass is, but anyone who owns one surely knows and we'd surely like to borrow it.

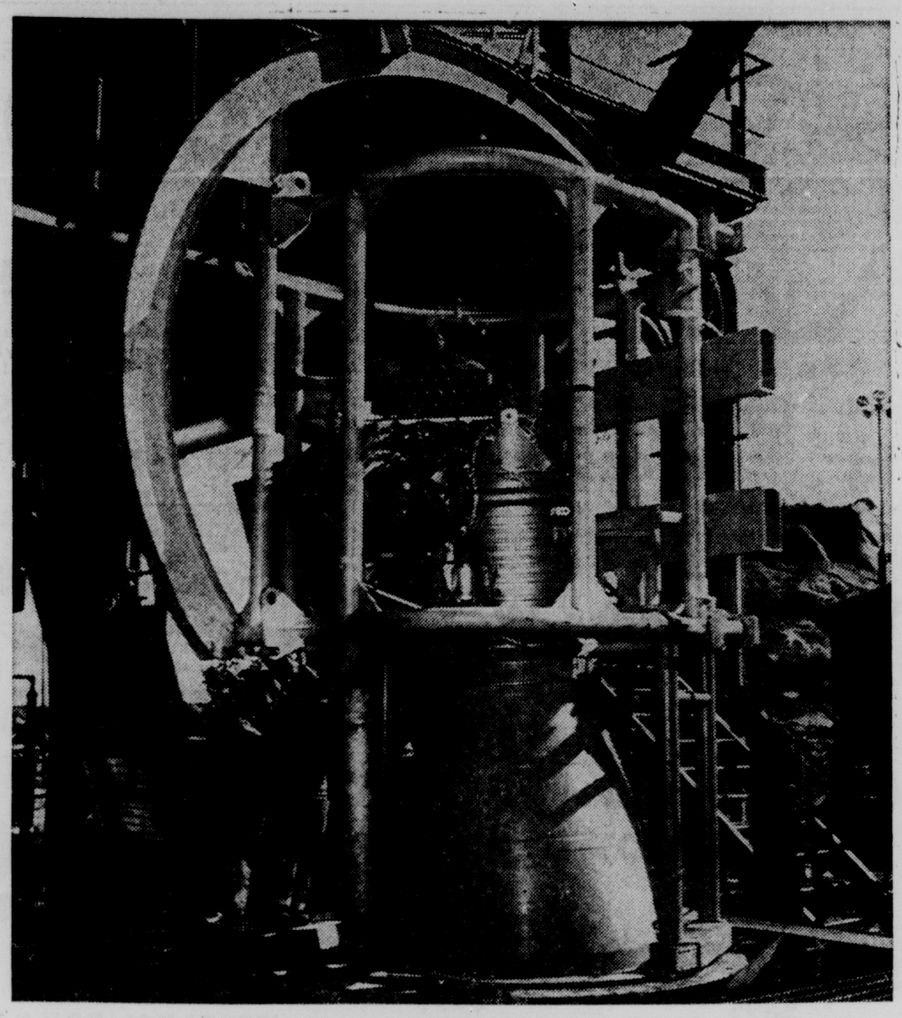
Now, on with the story of our rovings. During 1946-48, with Kay Causey as director, our plays were given at Neville which cannot by any stretch of the imagination be regarded as a little theater. Though equipped with excellent facilities, the huge stage and auditorium precluded that feeling of rapport between actors and audience which is so warm in our present little playhouse—dilapidated though it may be. There too, conflicts in schedule were unavoidable. Furthermore, plays which were very good theater of Broadway sometimes seemed unsuitable when given in a school. The crisis was precipitated by the fire cracker explosions in "You Can't Take It With You" and a bar room scene in "Uncle Harry". Little Theatre was again without a stage. We did not even have a place to store our scenery until Toney Veasey came to our rescue and allowed us storage and rehearsal space at the Red Cross. In gratitude, Little Theatre gave a Christmas play at the Veterans Hospital in Alexandria every year for seven years.

In 1948 we borrowed the courthouse for our play "The Night of January 16th". That locale was not only compaptible but agreeably economical, for we did not have to construct any scenery. Unfortunately, we could not make an entire repertoire of court room dramas and we went house hunting again for "Dear Ruth". We think this was performed at performed at Georgia Tucker without a single on-stage rehearsal; in fact, we had nearly a whole season there. Continuing practice sessions at the Red Cross, we were allowed dress rehearsal and two night at Ouachita Parish High School and Mr. Hays stayed back stage the entire time, warning that if he saw anything at all amiss he would bring down the curtain at once and declare the entertainment to be over. We gave the proceeds of one show to help the choir of O P H S take its memorable trip to Wales. The students and their parents turned out in droves, filling the auditorium and swelling the coffers of the Wales fund.

But obviously we could not go on like that. In 1949, Gilbert Faulk, who was President of the Board of Directors at the time, explored Selman Field looking for a building we could use. Having negotiated with the city to allow us to use our present playhouse, our devoted members (some of them) scrubbed, painted, and patched, adapting everything that was donated or scrounged to some decorative and practical use. For example, we used an old bathtub for our pool in the lobby. Don't you remember how we had a fountain in it for awhile? Outside we had to build a bridge across the ditch and cut down the high weeds. From time to time we were plagued by vandals who broke the windows and poked holes in the walls. Years passed before we had a concrete walk.

Stocker Fontelieu was our first director at Selman Field, giving a professional smoothness that has been so brilliantly continued by Ivan Uttal, our present director.

Our dilemma for some time now has been what to do about the physical condition of our little playhouse. We either had to spend a great deal of money on a new roof, a big paint job, adequate plumbing, and other expensive repairs or find another theater. In either case, where would we find the money? Then came this splendid offer of the Strauss Foundation to match any amount which we could raise up to $50,000. This is our chance of a life time. Think what it will mean to mean to Monroe and the surrounding area. We are depending on our public to make this proposition a reality.



Part Of Power Plant For Project Saturn

Eight of these H-1 liquid propellent rocket engines, will be clustered to form the 1½ million pound thrust propulsion system for the Advanced Research Projects Agency's new Saturn space vehicle, according to the Defense Dept. which released the photo in Washington. The engines are simplified versions of those now used in the Jupiter and Atlas rockets. This one is in place on a test stand in a field laboratory. Dr. Wernher von Braun, the Army's top missile scientist, described the Saturn project, under way at Redstone Arsenal, as bigger than anything Russia has yet demonstrated. Registration For Summer School Slated

Northeast Louisiana State College will open the nine-week summer school with registration beginning June 5 and closing June 6 at noon. Class work will start June 8 and the semester will end on August 7.

The schedule provides for classes on a five-day basis, Monday through Friday, and the time program extends from 7 a. m. until 12:50 p. m.

Persons wishing to earn credit in the college should file with the Office of Admissions an application for admission on an official form and a certificate of eligibility signed by his high school principal, and parish superintendent, as required by legislative act. He also should file official transcripts of high school and college records and results of a physical examination on a form supplied by Northeast.

VETERANS

All veterans entering college for the first time should have at the date of registration certificates for education and training. Questions concerning veteran eligibility should be addressed to the nearest Veterans' Administration Office, the director of admissions said.

The college provides housing facilities during the summer term and meals may be obtained at the cafeteria on the campus. All inquiries concerning dormitory applications and deposits should be sent to the Director of Housing at Northeast State.

A room deposit of $10 should acompany application for a dormitory room. The dining hall will be open for students beginning with the evening meal on June 4 and meals will be served seven days per week.

Summer study provides special opportunities to students graduating from high school this spring who wish to begin their college work this summer. Students taking courses for degrees in various fields at other colleges or universities will find sufficient work offered at Northeast to apply toward their degrees. Through the history of summer terms here, records show that many regular Northeast students attend the term to shorten the time required to graduate.

Studies will be offered this summer in the following curricula: agriculture and home economics, business administration, education, fine arts, liberal arts pure and applied science and pharmacy.

Rainach Claims Long To Offer Voter Law Bills

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Sen. W. M. Rainach of Summerfield, Louisiana segregation chief, said Saturday he has learned Gov. Earl Long plans to offer the Legislature two bills aimed at the white citizens councils in their negro vote purges.

There were indications Rainach's segregation forces headed for a showdown with Long on the measures if they are introduced.

Rainach said the Long bill is intended to revise the voter qualification laws.

He said the changes would prevent removal of any voter from the registration rolls who has been on the rosters more than one year — regardless of whether he was qualified properly — and make it difficult to remove a registered voter for errors made in filling out application cards.

A showdown on the segregation matter would put lawmakers on the political spot since they will be standing for re-election.

Building Trades Wage Scales In South Advance

ATLANTA (AP) — The Department of Labor said Saturday that Southern building trades wage scales advanced slightly during the past year.

The federal agency said increases ranged from 2.7 per cent for bricklayers to 6.6 per cent for building laborers in the South between April 1 last year and April 1, 1959.

The department said bricklayers in Jackson, Miss., made $3.50 per hour on April 1 this year, while carpenters got $2.85, electricians $3.150, plasterers $2.875, plumbers $3.40 and building laborers $1.45.

Dr. D. Cronk Participating In Convention

Dr. Dale H. Cronk, associate professor of pharmacy at Northeast State, will take part in the national convention of American College of Apothecaries, which opens today for a three-day session in New Orleans at the Roosevelt Hotel.

The Northeast instructor is a member of the Pharmaceutical Education committee for the 1959-60 year. He is a faculty fellow of the organization which includes professional pharmacists throughout the nation.

EMPHASIZED

Emphasized on the convention agenda will be discussions of trends in pharmacy, new drugs and problems related to pharmacy today and tomorrow. The organization's personnel strongly endorses attendance of the meetings, Dr. Cronk said, He pointed to the effort which leaders in the field are making with a view toward stimulating the professional area of pharmacy and problems related to it.

The pharmaceutical education committee of which Dr. Cronk is a member is headed by Louis Zopf, dean of the College of Pharmacy at the University of Iowa, and who was a participant at a two-day Pharmacy Seminar recently held at Northeast State.

Consideration of this committee will be given to the development of a close liaison between the practicing professional pharmacists and those involved in pharmaceutical education to assist in the furtherance of training in this field.

Dr. Cronk explained that one of the committee problems is to establish an understanding of relationship of faculty fellows of the American College of Apothecaries within the college activities. "We should establish a clear definition of what the faculty fellow should expect from the college and in turn what the college can expect from fellows," Cronk said.

The first recorded Christmas celebration in North America was held on St. Croix Island, Maine, in 1604.

ON HOUSE FLOOR

Showdown Near On Housing Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)— A key House Democrat claimed the votes Saturday to block a coalition attempt to cut the Democratic housing bill even below the amounts sought by President Eisenhower.

A showdown on the issue is due next week when the controversial Democratic bill, which carries a $2,100,000,000 price tag, comes up for House debate and amendment.

Many southern Democrats and Republicans are expected to rally behind a move to substitute a scaled-down bill by Rep. A. Sydney Herlong (D-Fla.). his is a $1,300,000,000 bill, compared with the administration's $1,660,000,000 plan.

A forecast of defeat for the Herlong measure came from Rep. Albert Rains (D-Ala.), chairman of the House banking subcommittee on housing. Rains told a reporter the vote might be close but that he was confident the House would reject the substitute.

Rains said he looks for crucial tests to come on amendments to water down the public housing and urban renewal provisions of the Democratic bill, after the Herlong bill is turned down.

The $2,100,000,000 Rains bill would authorize $1,500,000,000 in grants for urban renewal and slum clearance over three years. This compares with a six - year $1,450,000,000 plan of the administration and a two-year 600 million dollar program in the Herlong bill.

Rains' legislation also would authorize 35,000 new public housing units a year until all funds authorized by Congress for this program are exhausted. Rains has said this would mean 140,000 more units.

The administration, which like Herlong would provide for no new public housing, has challenged Rains' interpretation of that provision in his bill. The administration contends the bill would authorize 190,000 units and boost the cost of the measure by $3,700,000,000 over a 4-5 year period.

ON PRESIDENT'S PROGRAM

Demos Assailed For Slow Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican National Committee said Saturday the Democratic Congress has ignored the sation's needs while engaging in bickering, "self - righteous uproar" and harassment of presidential appointees.

The GOP berated the Democrats in Congress in one of its "battle line" memoranda to party leaders.

It cited President Eisenhower's special message to congress this week calling for action on bills dealing with his requests for higher gasoline taxes, home mortgage guarantees, and the wheat surplus.

"The President limited his plea for action to those three programs in which the time element is vital," the GOP said. "But he could have broadened his challenge to encompass almost the entire spectrum of legislation."

The memo said that in more than four months the 1959 session of Congress had passed only 31 public bills, of which only Hawaiian statehood, extension of the draft law and unemployment benefit legislation could be called major bills.

"With the rest of the nation's needs left hanging, the Congress has been occupied with bickering among Democrats, much running for the presidential nomination, much haggling over the bungling of the majority leadership, much self-righteous uproar over nepotism and related payroll scandals," the Republicans said.

"Harassment of qualified presidential appointees to gain headlines has been a major partisan activity which has failed to produce the political dividends intended."

The memorandum charged the Democrats with a "concerted plan to hamstring" the administration by inaction on presidential appointments. As of Thursday, it said there were 913 presidestial nominees awaiting Senate approval, including Secretary of Commerce Lewis L .Strauss and other Commerce Department executives, and 39 federal judges.

STEVE CANYON

by MILTON CANIFF

DEEN, ARE YOU CERTAIN YOU'RE ALL RIGHT?

YES, STEVE. ONE TROUBLE WITH BEING A DOCTOR IS THAT YOU KNOW WHEN YOU ARE SICK!

ALTHOUGH I WOULDN'T CARE TO SPEND THE REST OF MY LIFE DOWN A WELL—

HOW DID YOU MANAGE TO DOPE THE ENTIRE GARRISON OF THE GIRLS' SCHOOL?

THE KID WHO WAS BITTEN BY THE RAT WAS NOT INFECTIOUS, BUT I PRETENDED SHE WAS...

THAT WAY I COULD SEND YOU OUT FOR WHAT LYNX THOUGHT WAS A VACCINE

ACTUALLY IT WAS A POWERFUL SEDATIVE WHICH I PLANNED TO USE AS AN EMERGENCY MEASURE—

THE MASS VACCINATION WAS ALL A FAKE — I HELD ON TO THE SEDATIVE!

WHEN THE ORIENTAL GIRL RECOGNIZED ME AND I WAS TAKEN TO THE WELL, I HAD NO CHANCE TO USE IT DID THE RAT VICTIM PUT THE DOPE IN THE CHOW?

NO—IT WAS LYNX! SHE KNEW THEY WERE LICKED!

SO SHE KNOCKED OUT EVERYONE EXCEPT HERSELF—SO SHE COULD EXIT THROUGH THE TUNNEL WHICH LEADS TO THE SEA FROM THE SAME WELL YOU WERE IN!

I DOUBT IT! —AFTER SHE LOST THE SCHOOL SHE PROBABLY DIDN'T HANKER TO FACE A RED FIRING SQUAD!

DEEN, YOU REALLY SAVED THE DAY FOR DEAR OLD OUR SIDE... MAYBE NOW YOU CAN RELAX AND LET ME SHOW YOU SOME OF THE LOCAL SIGHTS!

WHY—AH—YES, COLONEL— I COULD USE SOME SIGHTSEEING OTHER THAN WATCHING YOU SMOOCH WITH LYNX—STRICTLY IN THE LINE OF DUTY—OF COURSE!

BUT STEVE WILL HAVE A VERY SHORT TIME TO ENTERTAIN DEEN WILDERNESS — BECAUSE AT THIS MOMENT A NAVY SHIP ON PATROL IS PICKING UP A SHORT-WAVE MESSAGE WHICH MENTIONS HIS NAME...

CHIEF, I KEEP HEARING THIS PHRASE OVER AND OVER! IT'S IN ENGLISH — I GUESS!

IF I DO FORGET, I'M SURE YOU'LL REMIND ME!

YOU'RE A PAL, JIGGS--I GUESS I MISJUDGED YOU!

NONSENSE! WHY CAN'T YOU WEAR YOUR OTHER DRESS SUIT TO THE OPERA?!

BECAUSE THE TICKETS WERE IN THE SUIT BIMMY WORE!

JUST SHOWS YOU HOW EASY IT IS TO GET FOOLED! WHAT WE THOUGHT WAS A REAL SEA MONSTER WAS ONLY TH' FIGGERHEAD FROM AN OLD VIKING SHIP!

YEAH! WEREWOLF WILLIAM HAD IT ON A SHIP HE SCUTTLED HERE IN TH' COVE, TH' RECORD SAYS.

STORM JUST HEAVED IT UP TO TH' TOP! SURE LOOKED LIKE A REAL MONSTER! S'POSE THERE IS TREASURE IN THAT OLD SUNKEN SHIP?

IF THERE HAD BEEN PIRATE GOLD DOWN THERE, WOULDN'T Y'THINK SOMEBODY'D HAVE GOT TO IT, LONG 'FORE THIS?

GUESS YOU'RE FORGETTIN' 'BOUT TH' BLACK DEVIL DOWN THERE.

AFTER SEEIN' THAT FIGGERHEAD IN TH' DAYLIGHT, DO YOU STILL BELIEVE IN THAT BLACK DEVIL LEGEND?

WELL, TH' TOWN FOLKS DON'T ANY MORE! THEY FIGGER THAT BLACK DEVIL GAG IS FIVE-STAR MALARKY!

SH-H! LOOK! TH' SKIN DIVERS! THEY'RE ALL SET TO JUMP IN AT ONCE!

GOIN' TO RACE TO SEE WHO'S FIRST TO FIND TH' CHESTS O' GOLD AN' PRECIOUS JOOLS!

THERE THEY GO! SIX OF 'EM! YOUNG FELLAS LIVE IN TH' VILLAGE!

HALF AN HOUR LATER.

GEE! SURE BEEN A LONG TIME SINCE THOSE SKIN DIVERS WENT DOWN. Y'D THINK IF THEY'D FOUND ANYTHING...

MEBBE THEY GOT FOUND INSTEAD!

Y-Y-Y'MEAN, FROG, Y'THINK MAYBE TH' BLACK DEVIL IS REAL, AND HE'S STILL DOWN IN THERE?

AYE! BUT I DON'T AIM T'GO LOOKIN' T'SEE IF HE IS OR AIN'T!

AS NIGHT COMES ON.

NOT A RIPPLE NOW FOR OVER SIX HOURS!

FOLKS JUST SITTIN' IN THEIR BOATS--NUMB! STARIN' INTO TH' BLACK WATER!

WHY DOESN'T SOMEONE ELSE GO DOWN TO FIND OUT WHY THOSE SIX GUYS ARE TAKIN' SO LONG?

RECKON FOLKS OUT THERE HAVE GOT AN IDEA WHY! THEY'RE QUIETLY STARTIN' HOME.
